No Wisecracking, Uphill.
J. I. Straus' Poll.
Job, Ford and Valentino.
Turning Real Money Away.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

CYRUS H. K. CURTIS asks why Mr. Hoover is so "sombre."

Mr. Coolidge, says Mr. Curtis editorially, "used to drop a word of humor, of sentiment, of homely common sense." In intimate conversations he "made the most delicious of dry New England wisecracks."

Mr. Curtis' editorial writer would have President Hoover make some "delicious wisecracks" also.

It will be remembered, however, that Mr. Coolidge spent eight years merrily rolling along on the high tide of prosperity. That makes "wisecracking" easy.

There is a difference between sliding downhill on your toboggan, and dragging it uphill. Mr. Hoover is dragging his up.

JESSE I. STRAUS, president of R. H. Macy & Co., discovers after a careful poll of former Democratic delegates and alternates that Gov. Roosevelt, of New York, is the overwhelming Democratic favorite, with 473 votes as against 125 for former Gov. Smith. New York is not included in the poll.

Nevertheless and notwithstanding, any candidate who gets the nomination should be careful to get, with it, the earnest indorsement of former Gov. Smith. Without that delegates and their nomination would not be very useful.

DOROTHY DIX, who understands men and women, answers the question: "what kind of husband do women want?" thus:

"A woman's ideal husband would show a composite picture of Valentino, Henry Ford and Job."

She suggests Valentino's beauty, Ford's money and Job's patience in a husband.

But Henry Ford, with his high forehead, is, for an intelligent woman, much better looking than Valentino ever was, and he has more patience than Job, who only sat down and complained. Ford works.

A woman wants a husband "who can make love with one hand and money with the other," says Miss Dix.

That is part of clever writing. The reality is that a good woman wants a husband that she can respect, one able to provide for his children, and possessed of loyalty. That is not too much to ask.

FEODOR M. ZYAVKIN, general manager of the Amtorg Trading Corporation, which is Russia's buying agency in the United States, is told that he can't stay any longer. He is here legally, with a visitor's permit, but the government refuses to extend it.

That same government extends permits to all sorts of actors, lecturers, and Heaven knows what from Europe. This seems a queer time to expel somebody who is here to spend real money, and Amtorg is spending it by the millions.

MANY, DURING the boom, treated superciliously the advice: "Don't gamble." F. O. Morse, aged 65, of Rochester, N. Y., lost all that he had, including the house in which he lived. Convinced he was too old, at 65, to "come back in Wall street," he solved his problem by killing himself, his wife and her brother.

He who gambles when he is old is doubly foolish, gambling away the chance of a peaceful death.

HANDS ACROSS the sea can be shaken mournfully. Great Britain has a deficit of $125,000,000.

President Hoover, back from the Virgin Islands, finds what looks like a deficit of $700,000,000, due to a drop in income taxes.

Fortunately, Uncle Sam is not without resources. He could, if he chose, print the money and everybody would take it gladly. Also he can slow down his recklessly rapid program of paying off war debts, letting those that come later have the honor of contributing part.

WALL STREET was peevish yesterday, reminding you of the querulous invalid who asked:

"Doctor, am I ever going to get well?"

It is sad for a Wall street man to know that he can borrow all the money he wants for 1½ per cent, to buy stocks, and not know of anything that he wants to buy.

OTHER PATIENTS get well and Wall street will recover, along with the rest of the United States, and then it will wish that it had used some of the 1½ per cent money now.

As Otto H. Kahn said recently:

"In a little while we shall look back and not believe that today's bargains really existed."

REPORTERS on the President's voyage to the West Indies heard that Republican "big shots" planned to drop Vice President Curtis in 1932, and put Secretary of War Hurley in his place.

Home again, Secretary Hurley says he is for Curtis for renomination, which seems wise.

In crossing a stream you do not swap horses, either of them. And there may be quite a stream to cross by the time 1932 arrives.

LANG ADMITS PRESSURE BY KLINE

Says Mayor Named Men to Works Payroll Who Were 'Unfit;' Evans Hits System

That Mayor Charles H. Kline has made appointments in the Department of Public Works for political reasons regardless of fitness for positions, was admitted today by Director Edward G. Lang, in answer to questioning of Henry Oliver Evans, former city controller and accuser of the department.

Director Lang's admission, startling in its frankness, was the feature of the fifth day of the public hearing upon charges of inefficiency in the Department of Public Works before City Council, and was the forerunner of a long argument over the advisability of permitting Evans to continue his attack upon the alleged patronage system in the works department.

WANTS KLINE

Following this statement by Lang, Attorney Evans turned to President John S. Herron, back at his post after a short illness, and said:

"Mr. Chairman I ask you to call Mayor Charles H. Kline."

The hearing was adjourned at noon until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. Immediately after adjournment President Herron instructed City Clerk Robert Clark to send a letter to Mayor Kline, informing him that Mr. Evans desires to question him before the City Council probe. Mayor Kline was not in his office today. It was declared that he was en route

BLUE LAW FOES WIN TEST

HARRISBURG, March 31.—Repeal of the Sunday blue laws, bound up in the possibilties of the Schwartz milk delivery bill, was a step nearer today, in the opinion of a number of liberal legislators.

An attempt by stand-pat forces to push back into committee the bill, which provides for an additional hour to sell milk on Sunday, failed in the House last night.

The test vote, much desired by those who favor modification, repeal or local option, was obtained.

Fifi Dorsay Applies For U. S. Citizenship

LOS ANGELES, March 31.—(AP.)—Fifi Dorsay, screen actress, yesterday filed a petition for citizenship. She gave her birthplace as Montreal, Canada. Before coming to the United States she was a stenographer in a Montreal law office, later going to New York as a model. She got her start in motion pictures when Will Rogers, looking for a French girl for his "They Had to See Paris," selected her from several hundred applicants.

QUAKE ROCKS MANAGUA; 40 DEAD

Fire Sweeps Nicaraguan Capital After Temblor Devastates Large Area

PANAMA CITY, March 31.—(AP.)—Forty persons were reported to have been killed in a terrific earthquake which devastated the city of Managua, capital of Nicaragua, today.

Tropical Radio advices said that the city was under martial law.

The quake, which began at 10:10 a. m., was of short duration. It was followed by a fire which started in the market in the center of the town and traveled westward, threatening to sweep the entire city.

The Tropical Radio operator in Managua reported that the cable office there was in ruins, and that the Tropical company was operating from a plant five miles outside the city.

The seismograph at the Canal Zone registered the quake, which appeared of unusual intensity, centering in Central America. A complete reading of the record had not been made, but officials said that it was very distinct.

MANAGUA DESTROYED

SAN JUAN DEL SUR, Nicaragua, March 31.—(AP.)—Advices received here this afternoon indicated that at least half of the city of Managua was destroyed by an earthquake today. Communications with Managua were interrupted.

NAVY RUSHED AID

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(AP.)—The Navy Department today ordered four naval vessels, including one of the big aircraft carriers to start at once for Nicaraguan waters to extend aid to earthquake stricken Managua.

The Perrysville avenue car, in charge of W. H. Massey, of 2618 Charles street, had made an emergency stop when the West View car crashed into it.

Motorman W. A. McConnell, of 2705 Norwood avenue, was injured about the foot, and Mary Jane Shettley, of 128 Martsolf avenue, West View, and Don Yekel, of Hazelwood, were cut. They were passengers in the West View car.

Noted Tourists Accounted for, All But Crater

President Hoover is back to the farm. But not back to the farm policy.

He's leaving all that to the farm board, a crew of unbiased jurors who have not formed opinions on anything. And never will.

So the farmers are just where they started. For while the President was taking an ocean trip wheat went for a sail also.

Mr. Hoover is tanned and healthy and his cup of joy is full because the Senate is empty.

That still leaves Mayor Walker out in the sunshine. His honor the Jimmsie is posing in garments that indicate he wants to

Woman Charges Policeman Beat Crippled Youth

Charges of brutality were directed at Patrolman Daniel Shope, attached to Woods Run Station, by Mrs. Mary Williams, of 3017 Kohuta street, today at a hearing in Morals Court.

Mrs. Williams, arrested, she said, when she tried to prevent Shope from beating her crippled brother, George Kupa, 18, was fined $1.

In her testimony, she charged the officer hit her brother with his mace, tied a strap around his neck, dragged him and handled her in a rough manner.

Mrs. Williams said:

"I asked the officer not to continue beating my brother. I told him I thought he was killing him. He (Shope) grabbed me, tore my apron, and threw me into the patrol. I didn't have many clothes on, and I felt the cold terribly."

The officer denied the charges.

Kupa and two other youths, according to the officer, were arrested while engaged in a dice game near Kupa's home. Kupa denied he was playing dice.

Kupa testified:

"I came out of the house to chase the boys away. Just then the cop came and hit me on the head with his mace."

Mrs. Anna Huckovitz, a sister of Mrs. Williams, corroborated her sister's testimony.

Kupa also was fined $1 by Magistrate Thomas Jones.

Mills Here to Benefit By P. R. R. Steel Order

Orders for 120,000 tons of steel are understood to have been placed by the Pennsylvania Railroad. It is generally believed that a large share of this will be produced in Pittsburgh mills. The material is to be used for the electrification of the line between New York and Washington.

The order is only slightly smaller than the record amount of tonnage placed with the United States Steel Corporation a few weeks ago for the Rockefeller Radio Center in New York.

In addition to the steel, the Pennsylvania is expected to place orders for about 150 electric locomotives. Part of these will be made at the East Pittsburgh plant of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

FAMOUS NOTRE DAME COACH MEETS DEATH IN KANSAS WRECK

KANSAS CITY, March 31.—(AP.)—Knute Rockne, famous football coach of Notre Dame University, and seven others were killed when a trans-Continental and Western Air Passenger and Air Mail plane crashed in flames today in a pasture several miles southwest of Bazar, Kan.

Rockne boarded the plane here en route to California at 9:15 a. m. and about 11 a. m., the ship, identified by its department of commerce license number, crashed and burned as it fought a fog and storm en route to Wichita, Kan.

The body of Rockne and the other victims had not been definitely identified at the scene, but it was certain the noted coach was a passenger on the wrecked air liner and that all those aboard had been killed.

Edward Baker, farm youth, said he saw the crash, a short distance from where he was feeding cattle. He said apparently something about the craft exploded, and a moment later it nosed to the earth.

Ambulances were sent for the bodies from Cottonwood Falls.

PASSENGER LIST

The passenger list announced here.

Knute Rockne.

H. J. Christensen, Chicago.

J. H. Hooper, 2037 Powell avenue, Chicago.

W. B. Miller, 312 Farmington avenue, Hartford, Conn.

F. Goldthwaite, 333 East Forty-third street, New York.

C. A. Lobrech, 10 Oak Park, Chicago.

The pilots were Robert Fry and Jess Mathias.

Baker was a short distance away from the scene of the crash, near his father's farm. He rushed to the wreckage and found the bodies.

Western Air officials said their plane was a 10-passenger Fokker, tri-motored air liner. Its departure, regularly set at 8:30 a. m., was delayed until 9:15 o'clock this morning because of the late arrival of mail it was to carry westward.

Foggy weather and drizzling rain made for bad flying conditions in this section, and several local pilots said they did not care to venture aloft today.

At Rockne's home in South Bend, Ind., it was said he left yesterday bound for California and, although his mode of travel was not known, he frequently traveled by plane.

MURKY WEATHER

Although murky weather made flying hazardous, the 10-passenger Fokker air liner took off here this morning with passengers and a cargo of mail.

Departure, scheduled at 8:30 o'clock, was delayed three-quarters of an hour, awaiting the mail for the West.

Rockne's presence in Kansas City between planes was not generally known.

ROCKNE TEAMS WON, LOST HERE

By JESS CARVER

Knute Rockne, famous coach of Notre Dame's football teams, killed today in an airplane accident, was well known here. He first appeared here as a member of the Notre Dame team that opposed Pitt in 1912; and in 1922, when coaching the Irish, he began a football rivalry with Carnegie Tech that has been carried on without interruption every season since 1927 since that time.

Last fall a new Pitt-Notre Dame football rivalry was inaugurated. In addition to appearing here with his teams, Rockne often came to Pittsburgh in the role of banquet speaker, and to visit Elmer Layden, one of his former star players, who has been head football coach at Duquesne University since 1927.

Rockne succeeded Jesse Harper as head coach at Notre Dame in 1918. The choice for the job lay between Rockne and Gus Dorais, quarterback on the teams on which Layden played end. A coin

Rockne's Death Great Shock to Pittsburghers

Father James R. Cox, pastor of Old St. Patrick's Church, commenting on Rockne's death, said: "The entire country has lost a sterling character in the death of Knute Rockne. He came from a race of courageous Vikings. It is a pity to lose a man who has done so much for the youth of the country.

W. Don Harrison, director of athletics at the University of Pittsburgh—The death of Knute Rockne is a blow to the world in general. He was one of the greatest figures in the country, and I, for one, feel his passing keenly.

Jack Sheedy, treasurer Notre Dame Club of Pittsburgh—I am too shocked to make a statement. The Notre Dame Club of Pittsburgh will miss Knute Rockne, who has made football the sport it is today.

Common Pleas Judge John P. Egan, well-known football official—I am shocked almost beyond words. The death of Knute Rockne not only takes from the game of football one of its outstanding figures, but removes from the world of sport as true and fine a gentleman and sportsman as ever existed Rockne's death comes as a great blow to the nation.

Joe Bach, teammate of Elmer Layden under Rockne at Notre Dame and now line coach at Duquesne University—I am shocked beyond words. It can't be true that "Rock" is gone!

NO TAX INCREASE UNDER PRESENT BUDGET, SAYS HOOVER

U. S. DEFICIT CONTINUES TO MOUNT

Expenditures Increase While Income Tax Collections Slump, Explaining 'Spread'

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(AP.)—President Hoover said today that unless Congress increases the budget figures there would be no increase in taxes.

Mr. Hoover said he had canvassed the entire financial situation of the government through various government agencies and departments and declared he saw no necessity for a taxation increase.

The President said:

"There will be no increase in taxes if the next Congress imposes no increases upon the budget or other expenditure proposals which the administration will present. But for Congress to do this, the people must co-operate to effectively discourage and postpone consideration of the demands of sectional and group interests."

DEFICIT MOUNTING

The treasury is facing a mounting deficit, the latest estimates of which totaled $700,000,000. Increased government expenditure and an unusually large decrease in income tax payments accounted for the spread between the government's income and its expenses.

On March 28 the treasury reported today, only $1,624,446 was collected in income taxes, as compared with $2,861,762 on the same day of last March.

The day's receipts brought the total for the month to $330,741,438 as compared with $552,821,980 for the same number of days of last March. For the fiscal year the collections have totalled $1,502,172,462, as compared with $1,805,486,212 in the same period of last year.

WALKER PACKS 23 TRUNKS TO RETURN EAST

Displays List of Charges He Received From Governor; Ready to Fight Accusers

International News Service.

PALM SPRINGS, Cal., March 31.—Mayor James J. Walker, of New York, was ready to leave for the East today, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Bloomenthal.

The Mayor has finished packing all 23 trunks he brought with him for the vacation in the desert. He will return to his desk in New York with a ruddy coat of tan.

At a press conference yesterday the Mayor waved a bulky typewritten manuscript with the assertion:

DEFENSE READY

He also read a note from the Governor asking that a reply be made after Walker arrives in New York.

The Mayor has promised to make his first statement in defense of charges brought against the New York administration within 48 hours after his arrival in the metropolis Friday.

Mayor Walker said he will be in Los Angeles during the coming Olympiad.

ATTACK CONTINUES

NEW YORK, March 31.—(AP.)—Mayor Walker is given 100 days by John Haynes Holmes to enjoy his return to the city, Mr. Holmes, at an overflow mass meeting in Carnegie Hall last night, said:

"Then he will have come to his Waterloo and will have started upon his exile."

The Mayor is due from California Saturday.

The meeting was called by the city affairs committee, which has preferred charges with Gov. Roosevelt against Mayor Walker.

Speakers were Mr. Holmes, chairman of the city affairs committee; Norman Thomas, Socialist leader; Heywood Broun, columnist; Dr. Sidney E. Goldstein, associate rabbi of the Free Synagogue, and Paul Blanshard, executive director of the city affairs committee.

More than 3,000 persons cheered indictments of Tammany. Denunciations were mingled with demands for federal, state and city action to relieve unemployment.

BURKE BROKE AS TRIAL NEARS

International News Service.

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., March 31.—Fred (Killer) Burke, described by police as "the most dangerous gangster in America" and the purported slayer of 21 men, is nearly broke, according to the killer himself today.

The super-assassin declared that he was depending on New York and Chicago gangsters to raise a fund to finance his defense against charges of first-degree murder in connection with the slaying of Patrolman Charles Skelly here.

He was said to have had several thousand dollars at the time of his arrest, but "it isn't near enough for my defense," he stated.

EXPECTS ATTORNEY

Burke, who less than two years ago posed as a retired and wealthy man, and lived in a pretentious home here, declared that he was expecting an attorney from either Chicago or New York to fight the murder charges. Burke insisted:

"There will be a lawyer here. Don't know who he will be, or where he will be from, but there will be one."

Barratt O'Hara, Chicago criminal lawyer, whose arrival here yesterday led to rumors that he had been retained to defend Burke, left late last night after learning Burke was without funds, according to reports. He might return, O'Hara admitted, but he was not at all sure.

Meanwhile, it was learned that officials here are seeking Mrs. Viola Brennerman, formerly of Kankakee, Ill., who lived with Burke as his wife prior to the Skelly slaying.

WOMAN MAY TALK

Police believe that the woman may be ready to talk now as the result of Burke's marriage to another woman, the daughter of a Missouri farmer.

April 8 was set as the date for an examining trial when Burke was arraigned yesterday before Justice Joseph Collier, Jr. He refused to make any plea when arraigned.

over Knoxville. Lieut. Commander Bertram Rodgers dipped the ship in honor of his mother, Mrs. Clara Rodgers, of 310 Orchard street. Mrs. Rodgers, ill for some time, had been taken to a window to see the ship.

Thinking that the dirigible may have become lost, efforts were made by attaches of radio station KDKA to communicate with the ship. The beacon light on the Grant Building also was turned on.

Airmen at Rodgers Field who attempted to communicate with the dirigible got no response.

Due to the fog, the ship flew low. Its motors attracted the attention of many residents of Mt. Lebanon as it circled about over the township high school and once headed back toward the downtown. It flew unusually low over Swissvale and Wilkinsburg. In outlying districts it frightened cattle and poultry.

The ship was first sighted over Greensburg at 7:05 o'clock and 20 minutes later it was downtown. Scores of telephone calls were made to newspaper offices from those who could not distinguish its markings.

HOOVER'S FOES SEEK 'PANACEA'

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(INS.)—A sharp division of opinion was revealed between friends and foes of the Hoover administration today over the role American business can play in hastening the end of economic depression.

While administration sources reported an improved trend toward business recovery, Democratic spokesmen proposed that national leaders in all lines of commercial activity unite in drafting a program for speeding the restoration of prosperity. The suggestion met with immediate opposition from administration leaders, who declared such a conference would lead only to political confusion.

Senator-elect Hull (Dem.), of Tennessee, former Democratic national chairman, declared the Hoover administration and its business support had failed completely to meet the issue of unemployment and economic depression. He declared only a new regime in national politics, bringing a fresh business leadership into the federal government, could remedy the situation.

Movie Rival Sued By Mickey Mouse As Imitator

LOS ANGELES, March 31.—(AP.)—"Mickey Mouse," through Walt Disney Productions, Ltd., has filed suit against Pathe Exchange, Inc., and the Van Buren Corporation, of New York, for an injunction to prevent the defendant companies from further use of animated cartoon characters "in any variation so nearly similar as to be mistaken" for the original Mickey and his side kick, Minnie.

Mickey contended his alleged double is doing all sorts of things he (Mickey) wouldn't think of doing, and has brought down on the bewildered creators of Mickey a flood of irate letters and complaints.

MISS LEONA CANTWELL

GIRLS' TEAMS IN FIST FIGHT

New and unexpected laurels came to Miss Leona Cantwell, a member of the Goldenson Vanities basketball team, during a game last night with the California Independents at California. Today Miss Cantwell was receiving plaudits for her new found ability —boxing.

Miss Cantwell's opponent in the impromptu battle was Miss Sarah Robertson, of the California team. The fight occurred at the end of the first half, which ended with the score tied 19-all, and followed a grueling period of rough and tumble basketball.

Miss Cantwell hails from a family of basketball stars. Two sisters, Eva and Viola, the latter a mother of a baby boy, are also members of the Vanities. The Vanities are champions of Greater Pittsburgh and have lost but one game in the last three years. Last night's affair was declared a forfeit when the Vanities walked from the floor.

The Vanities and the California team have qualified for participation in the tri-state tournament which begins Friday at East Liverpool, and it is likely that the two teams may meet again.

Weather Conditions.

The disturbance that appeared over Texas yesterday morning is now centered over Southern Alabama. It is causing cloudy weather over the eastern half of the country, and rain over the Gulf states and as far north as Southern Iowa. Another disturbance of marked intensity is located in Alberta and covers the entire Northwest section, causing light rain in the Far West, rising temperatures over the Canadian Northwest and southward over the Rocky Mountain states. The temperatures are also rising over the remainder of the country except west of the southern extremity over Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas, where it is colder than yesterday, with frost and freezing temperatures as far south as Abilene, Tex.

2 BOY SLAYERS EXTRADITED

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 31.—(INS.)—Extradition papers for surrender to the state of New York of Stanley Chero and William Schemnitzer, of Broughton, Pa., youthful slayers of Sergt. John Frey, New York state trooper, were honored today by Gov. W. H. Murray.

The papers were presented the Governor by Capt. J. W. Keeley and C. C. Updyke, of the New York state police force.

Capt. Keeley and Updyke were to leave immediately for McAlester, where Chero and Schemnitzer are under arrest, and present the papers to Sheriff Bob Lackey for surrender of the prisoners.

After receiving the extradition papers from Gov. Murray, Capt. Keeley said he and Updyke would return Schemnitzer to New York tonight.

The woman fainted and fell to the floor as she left the stand. She was carried into a nearby room and revived.

"PAID HOSPITAL BILL"

Mrs. Sigal said Hymie paid a bill at the hospital for his mother and was there between 12:30 and 1 p. m., and also later that day.

The defense contends Martin was in Akron by 8:30 p. m. that night. The state claims the killing was near 7 p. m.

Mrs. Edith Hawkins, who spent the evening of February 3 in the building where Potter was slain, was the first witness called by the defense to attempt to fix the time of the killing. She testified she heard three loud reports like shots between 8:30 and 9 p. m.

The sound startled her hostess, Mrs. Don Ambrose, whom she was visiting, Mrs. Hawkins declared.

Earlier defense testimony was given today to corroborate Martin's alibi that he was in Akron by 8:30 p. m., which was told to the jury yesterday by his sweetheart, "Akron Mary" Outland.

TWO FRIENDS TESTIFY

Mark F. Marion, salesman, of Akron, told the jury he saw Martin in front of an Akron gasoline station about 8 p. m. on February 3. He said he had known Martin for several months. Abe Kodish, also of Akron, testified he received a telephone call from Hymie a few minutes after 8 p. m.

Mary, the first witness to present the alibi, said Martin had stopped at the gasoline station to call up a friend about that time.

As the trial entered another day of sessions, the report was current that the defense would introduce evidence to show that Potter was no stranger to the apartment building in which he was slain.

This testimony was slated as the next "surprise" of the defense, which yesterday presented evidence revealing that Betty Gray and J. J. Redlick, held as material witnesses by the state, were in the murder suite an hour before the time set by the state as the period of the killing.

WOMAN ACCUSES BLONDE

Mrs. Joseph Berger, resident of Suite 11 in the Parkwood Drive murder apartment, and second defense witness, electrified the crowded courtroom late yesterday when she dramatically declared:

"I saw a man greatly resembling J. J. Redlick and a blonde woman greatly resembling Betty Gray in suite 4 about 6:30 p. m. on the night of February 3."

PATIENT LEAPS TO DEATH

Gauro Mulicevic, 45, of 108 East Oliver avenue, Duquesne, jumped from a fire escape on the third floor of the McKeesport Hospital to his death today. He landed in an inside court.

William H. Cox, superintendent of the hospital, said Mulicevic left the sun parlor while the attending nurse was treating another patient, and walked to the fire escape. Cox said Mulicevic had been moody.

The man was admitted March 27 after, he said, he had fallen down the steps of his home. He was being treated also for an ear condition.

Nine Years for Bogus Clothing Salesman

Pleading no defense to 30 charges of false pretense, Alfred B. Frank, 40, of Long Island, N. Y., was sentenced today to nine years in the penitentiary by Judge George V. Moore. Coolidge Cites U. S. Power In World Money Market

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., March 31.

To the Editor of The Sun-Telegraph:

The return of Montague Norman, governor of the Bank of England, to this country, where he has been a frequent visitor for the past decade, indicates the interdependence of finance among the nations and the importance of the United States in the economic world. For years after the war, foreign exchange was fluctuating and uncertain. The effect on exports was bad. It took careful co-operation of the banking world, with the help of loans made here, to stabilize exchange. Farmers, wage-earners and our whole business structure were benefited.

Mr. Coolidge

Not only our great general financial resources but at the present time the gold in our banks, now the largest amount on record, makes us a power in the world money markets. No really great public or private financing is done without our participation. Last year our foreign loans exceeded 900 millions of dollars, those of the British exceeded 550 millions. The placing of these great loans is a grave responsibility affecting the prosperity and possible peace of many people. Even an informal conference between experts like Mr. Norman and our financiers would be mutually helpful in the discharge of domestic and foreign duties.

Pittsburgh and Tammany May Be '32 Issues

HARRISBURG, March 31.—Pittsburgh, as a center of Republicanism, may become a national issue through its city government difficulties, in the event the Republicans attempt to make Tammany and Mayor Jimmy Walker the butt of the next political campaign.

This was learned today from Democrats who returned from a New York conference.

The issue to be made in Pittsburgh would revolve, not so much around the local figures, but about the national leaders, cabinet officers, senators and others who are part of the political life of Western Pennsylvania.

The part the Mellons and their associates play in politics and their dominant position in Pittsburgh are considered in New York to form a fair target, it was said. New York's investigation of its city investigation has already drawn considerable national publicity.

Political leaders there fear the Republicans will sharp-shoot from Washington and elsewhere, echoing the "Tammany corruption" cry that has been used so often in the past, sometimes successfully from a political viewpoint.

Pittsburgh would not be used as an example of corruption, however, unless the Republicans moved to subject Tammany to national derision in the next campaign, which will involve presidential and congressional battles.

Motion picture leaders were planning to greet him tonight, and a conference was to be held between Carl Laemmle, motion picture producer, and Rockne tomorrow to complete arrangements for the pictures.

AT PEAK OF CAREER

NEW YORK, March 31.—(AP.)—The death of Knute Rockne, striking the sport world in general and football ranks in particular like a thunderbolt, came as the famous coach's career was at its very peak.

Only just past his forty-third birthday, the wizard of Notre Dame had sent his last two football teams through unbeaten seasons to national championships, climaxed by the sensational victory of his 1930 eleven over Southern California at Los Angeles last December.

His genius was at its height, his system of gridiron teaching the most widespread in the country and just this spring adopted almost in toto at Yale, and his fame as far-flung in the great college sport as was that of Babe Ruth in baseball, Bobby Jones in golf or Bill Tilden in tennis.

NOT "INVINCIBLE"

Let only a few weeks ago Rockne, in a radio interview with the sports editor of the Associated Press at Miami, Fla., laughed at the invincibility of Notre Dame football teams and remarked:

"We will be lucky if we do not get trimmed three or four times this season."

He went to Miami for a rest, looking to be in the pink of health, despite a strenuous country-wide tour in which he concentrated on giving "pep talks" to the salesmen of the Studebaker Corporation, with which "Rock" was connected as a promotion manager.

Rockne had hopped from Atlanta, via Jacksonville, to Miami by airplane to get as much time for rest as possible. He said:

"What's the use of wasting time on trains and automobiles? This is a fast day and age. I've got to get around to do things and reach places."

AMAZING ACTIVITY

Rockne's career, especially in the last half dozen years, has been meteoric, in constant demand as an after-dinner speaker, as a radio talker, as a syndicate and magazine writer, as an adviser to colleges seeking the establishment of his football methods, Rockne's activities outside of Notre Dame were of amazing proportions.

A football coach once said:

"I would rather have Rockne for a friend than anyone else in the business. He is big-hearted and generous to the point where he overtaxes himself."

It was two years ago that a leg infection, aggravated by his insistence upon keeping active, forced Rockne to his bed. He was on the sidelines for less than half the games during the 1929 season, but his team, under the guidance of assistants, had an undefeated season—"Fighting for Rock."

was tossed, the winner to take the Notre Dame job, and the loser to go to the University of Detroit.

Rockne won the toss, and thereby began a career that has carried him to the top of the intercollegiate football ladder.

In 1922, Carnegie Tech and Notre Dame met for the first time, the Irish winning by a score of 19 to 0. The following year Notre Dame triumphed again, this time by a 26-to-0 count and then, in 1924, in a memorable struggle at Forbes Field, a great rally in the last half enabled the South Benders to win by 40 to 19.

At South Bend, Ind., in 1925, Notre Dame triumphed for the fourth consecutive time, 26 to 0.

Came 1926, and Carnegie's first triumph, when paced by the great Howard Harpster, all-America quarterback star, the Tartans defeated an unbeaten Notre Dame eleven, hailed as the best in the land, by 19 to 0.

There was no game scheduled in 1927, but in 1928, at South Bend, on Cartier Field, the Tartans repeated their victory of 1926 by the decisive count of 28 to 7. In '29 Jack Elder raced 66 yards for a touchdown in the Stadium to enable his team get back into the victory column at the expense of Carnegie, the Irish winning 7 to 0.

Last season, Notre Dame, playing Tech in the third game of a rugged schedule—one of the hardest ever attempted by a college eleven—won by 21 to 6, adding Tech to the list of victims which already included Southern Methodists and the Navy, and which later was to boast the names of Army, Pitt, Northwestern, Indiana, Drake and powerful Southern California.

Elmer Layden, popular coach at Duquesne University, and fullback of the famous 1924 Four Horsemen, regarded by football critics as the greatest of all backfielders, was too grief-stricken to make a statement when informed of his former tutor's death.

All Layden could say when told of the mishap by a Sun-Telegraph reporter was:

"It can't be true."

King Carol Wants Crown Without Helen as Queen

BUCHAREST, Rumania, March 31.—(AP.)—King Carol today expressed the wish to be crowned ruler of Rumania shortly without Princess Helen who has persistently refused a reconciliation.

King Carol returned to the country on June 6, 1930, after five years in exile and was proclaimed king a month later, superceding Crown Prince Michael. Though he proclaimed Princess Helen his queen, she refused to consent to an annulment of their divorce and has continued in estrangement.

DANCER FREED IN MURDER

SALT LAKE CITY, March 31.—(AP.)—Jean Dayle, dancer, was acquitted of the murder of Sam Frank, Memphis jewelry auctioneer, by a jury which returned its verdict today.

The court instructed the jury to return one of six verdicts, ranging from first-degree murder to acquittal, without considering the morals of either the victim or the defendant.

Frank, 65, was found slain and gagged with a woman's stocking in his hotel room last December 6. He had been robbed of money, a diamond ring and a stickpin.

A purported confession quoting the girl as saying she killed Frank to rob him was barred by the court as having been obtained under duress.

Previously she said two men, unknown to her, forced their way into the room and slew Frank with a whisky bottle while he was under the influence of a drug she had administered.

MELLON TO SEE BRITISH BANKER

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(AP.)—Two quiet, retiring men whose policies control the fiscal affairs of two nations will meet in Washington soon for a visit in an atmosphere both love—one of art.

Montague Norman, governor of the Bank of England, who prefers gardening to gold and loves books and art, will be the guest of Secretary Mellon, whose love of art has moved him to gather a noted collection.

When Norman will arrive has not been announced. He intends to visit Secretary Mellon before he leaves for Europe on April 14. He arrived in New York last week.

Gov. Norman is even more retiring than Secretary Mellon.

They undoubtedly will discuss international problems, but it is doubtful if ever a word they say reaches the public.

Gov. Norman has visited Secretary Mellon before, but their conversations never were divulged.

What Gov. Norman is doing in the United States no one has learned.

DUQUESNE CO. PROFITS JUMP

A sharp increase in earnings was reported by the Duquesne Light Company last year in spite of the depressed state of general business. Net profit showed a gain of $1,107,459 over the previous year.

The company, which, according to witnesses testifying at the House Committee investigating the Public Service Commission at Harrisburg, values its properties at $49,000,000 for tax purposes and at $149,000,000 for rate making purposes, showed net profit for 1930 of $14,042,981 after deducting operating expenses and all other charges, including reserves for depreciation and other special charges. This compared with $12,917,522 in 1929.

EXPENSES CUT

The increase in net profits was due to reductions in operating expenses and to the fact that smaller deductions were made for reserves according to the report.

Gross earnings totaled $28,67[illegible] 702, an increase of $107,132. The increase was shown in spite of a reduction in the use of industrial power. A substantial increase in the use of electricity by residential customers was reported.

Net earnings before appropriation for retirement reserves increased $416,137 or 2.35 per cent to a total of $18,055,871.

RATIO IMPROVED

Improvement in the ratio of expenses, maintenance and taxes to gross earnings continued. The ratio for 1930 was 37.03 per cent compared with 38.25 per cent in 1929.

Net construction expenditures for 1930 totaled $8,790,432. The 1931 construction budget totals $8,736,000.

BERLIN AGREES TO PACT STUDY

BERLIN, March 31.—(INS.)—Foreign Minister Dr. Julius Curtius announced today that the German government, in accordance with proposals made by Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson, of Britain, has consented to submit the projected Austro-German customs union treaty to a juridicial investigation by the League of Nations Council.

Dr. Curtius, in making the official announcement, forecast exclusively by International News Service two days ago, qualified his statement to the Federal Council as follows:

"We cannot admit that such an investigation is necessary, but we do not reject it. Our political objection is directed against treating such a purely economic agreement as a danger to European peace."

Battle With Tiger In Cage, Kills Painter

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 31.—(AP.)—Frank Tefelske, 48, a painter, who was attacked by a tigress a week ago, died in a hospital today.

Last Tuesday Tefelske entered the cage of Kitty, a 15-year-old tigress, to estimate the cost of painting the cage in the Washington Park zoo. The animal was placed in an adjoining cage but the door apparently was insecurely fastened. The beast entered the cage with Tefelske, leaped upon him and inflicted a four-inch gash in his left arm.

2 Killed, 1 Injured In Airplane Crash

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., March 31.—(AP.)—Phil Schmidt and Clarence Budgett were fatally injured last night in an airplane accident. A machine piloted by Jack Hollister, chief pilot of the Sioux Skyways Airport, fell while he was attempting a vertical bank. Hollister was injured.

Thaden, Putnam Form Club Of Fliers' Husbands

NEW YORK, March 31.—(AP.)—Husbands of women who fly are going to organize, provided they can find out the names of each other.

The club has the tentative name of "49.5 Club," on the naive hypothesis that the husbands of famous aviatrices are just under being "better halves."

George Palmer, husband of Amelia Earhart, and Herbert V. Thaden, of Pittsburgh, husband of Louise Thaden, are prime movers in the project. It is not their purpose to organize a group of men to bask in the reflected glory of famous wives. They seek only to find out who each other is and possibly swap boasts about what a great aviatrix the respective wife is.

Putnam said it might be difficult to determine the husbands' identities. Of course, there is Walter Camp, Jr., married to Ruth Elder, and there is a fellow wed to Florence Lowe Barnes, who is understood to be a minister, who could be chaplain of the club. Putnam thinks the best way to do would be to write letters to the husbands in care of their wives.

B. AND O. CUTS CLERKS' HOURS

BALTIMORE, March 31.—(AP.)—Approximately 1,500 employes in several clerical departments of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad will go on a 40-hour week schedule, effective next Saturday, F. X. Milholland, assistant to the senior vice president, announced.

Faced with the alternative of reducing materially the forces in the accounting, claim and several other smaller branches of the clerical service, officials agreed with representatives of the employes on a four-hour reduction in the working week to allow the retention of the entire force.

DUNN TO LEAD SCHOOL RIPPER FOES' FIGHT

Commerce Group to Attend Rooney and Root Bills Hearing; Contest Urged

Thomas A. Dunn, first vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, denouncing the Rooney and Root bills as schemes of conniving politicians to make use of the city's public schools for their own interests, last night announced that he would lead the chamber's delegation to Harrisburg April 7 to fight these measures at the committee hearing. He will be accompanied by Marcus Rauh and Dr. Samuel B. Linhart, directors of the chamber. Dunn said:

"Pittsburgh has a school system that is independent of politics, and rated among the best in the United States, and we cannot afford to lose this work of 20 years by the passage of either the Root or Rooney bills in the last days of the Legislature. There will be much logrolling by assemblymen anxious to get back to their homes; and unless we go to Harrisburg and put up a strong fight, we may discover ourselves with the same kind of an elective school system as we ripped out in 1911.

"Since the first school board was appointed in 1911, more than $52,500,000 has been expended for property, erection of school buildings and improvements and equipment. This appointive board has also disbursed $250,000,000 in salaries, supplies and interest. It is also interesting to know that all this money has been expended without a single charge of suspicion of corruption or misappropriation of a dollar of public money. There is no reason why this most effective system should be changed. It is evident that the vast majority of the public does not desire it."

The trip will be the third made by Dunn at the head of a Pittsburgh Chamber delegation to fight against elective school measures.

It showed 102 votes to keep the Schwartz measure on the floor. There it is possible to amend it to include local option or other departures from the 1794 blue laws, such as Sunday sports and amusements.

The standpats polled 91.

BACKERS CONFIDENT

M. A. Musmanno, sponsor of the local option bill which the Law and Order Committee has refused to release; James A. Wettach, sponsor of a modification bill, and Dr. Joseph G. Steedle, all ardent repealers, as well as Louis Schwartz, author of the milk measure, declared today they feel they can hold the 102 votes and pass the amended measure through the House when it reaches a vote next week.

During the interim, three more votes to secure the 105 needed to pass the measure will be sought.

LOCAL MEMBERS' VOTES

Members of the Allegheny County delegation who voted to send the bill back to committee and kill it were Edward B. Goehring, of East Liberty; John Rhodes, McKeesport; Frank J. Riddle, of Turtle Creek; Arthur Storer, of Elizabeth; James A. McClure, of Glassport; Thomas W. Neely, of Sewickley, and Louis Hagmaier, of Aspinwall.

Carl Baldridge, of Swissvale, did not vote. Representatives Tucker and Soffel were absent. The remainder of the Allegheny County delegation: Representatives Lynch, Metzler, Maloney, Dwyer, Spann, Dietrich, Bell, Wettach, Rooney, Grenet, Stadtlander, Hoffman, Reed, Steedle, Gangloff, Musmanno and Dunn, all voted in favor of keeping the bill moving.

The motion to send the bill back to the Law and Order Committee, from which no blue law bill would ever return, was made by Glenn Moore, Pinchot floor leader.

ROLL CALL DEMANDED

There was little debate, Representative Clinton Sowers defending the measure.

Speaker C. Jay Goodnough called for a standing count, which would have avoided a roll call and the test. It had hardly been started when Representative Robert S. Spangler, of York, demanded a roll call.

Even the most optimistic of the blue laws' foes considered the move a defeat until the nays, which meant an indication of repeal sentiment, began to follow in rapid succession.

What amendments will be attempted on the milk bill next week have not been decided, but will be arranged at a meeting next Monday. The measure will be on third reading when next week's session opens, and ready for final passage or defeat.

Asks Sunday Traffic Ban Under Blue Laws

HARRISBURG, March 31.—(AP.)—A concurrent resolution calling upon Gov. Pinchot to institute quo warranto proceedings against bus lines and electric railway companies operating in Pennsylvania on Sunday was introduced last night in the House by Representative Bever, Philadelphia.

Asserting such operation of passenger railways is in open violation of the blue laws of 1794, the resolution states:

"We deem it our Christian duty to call attention thereto, and to solemnly declare that such service on the Lord's Day is highly detrimental to the good order and morals of ourselves and neighbors."

STAND UPHELD BY MUSMANNO

Representative Michael A. Musmanno, sponsor of a bill for the repeal of the Blue Laws, has replied to the Rev. W. Wofford T. Duncan, who in a sermon Sunday charged that Musmanno with "labored efforts to prove his anti-Sunday movement American."

Dr. Duncan made his statement in a sermon in his church, the Emory Methodist Episcopal Church.

Musmanno said:

"Dr. Duncan said I am engaged in an anti-Sunday movement. This is thoroughly ridiculous. I have no quarrel with Sunday. I love Sunday. I regard it as the Lord's Day. I go to church every Sunday. I believe that Sunday is a day for religion, for rest and recreation, which will make the citizens more law abiding than he is at present.

"I cannot honestly see anything wrong about that, and I cannot see why Dr. Duncan should use such violent language in talking about it; and I cannot understand why he should attribute to me things that have not happened and arguments that are not mine.

"Dr. Duncan has set up a straw man and then violently and ferociously knocked it down."

2 Russian War Aces Study in U. S. School

NEW YORK, March 31.—(AP.)—Two wartime air aces of Russia are students at New York University, Col. Paul Alexander Samoilo, 47, a nobleman, was commander of the Czar's air forces in Siberia. Lieut. They are preparing to take an active part in their country's development "when the Soviet regime falls and the firing squad that awaits us is disbanded."

UTILITIES QUIZ SIFTS CAB DEAL

HARRISBURG, March 31.—(AP.)—Albert M. Greenfield, Philadelphia realtor, today told the Senate investigating committee that he did not have anything to do with the Diamond Cab Company purchase by P. R. T.

Greenfield, questioned by William A. Gray, counsel on the committee for Gov. Pinchot, said he did handle the Cunningham Cab Company. He said J. A. Queeney paid him $150,000 for the Cunningham Cab Company on December 7. The following day, he said, the $150,000 was returned to Queeney.

He said P. R. T. had apparently made a contract or agreement direct with the cab company and paid the company direct, so that he returned the money to Queeney.

POLL TAX BILL UP TO HOUSE

HARRISBURG, March 31.—The House is expected to duplicate the Senate's action in passing Senator James J. Coyne's bill imposing a 50-cent poll tax in Allegheny County as a voting qualification. The bill abolishes the present occupation tax, which ranges from $1.50 to $14.

That measure and a companion bill requiring assessors to sit in Pittsburgh, Clairton, Duquesne and McKeesport to enroll voters for the tax, passed the Senate last night without opposition.

Senator Frank J. Harris, Crafton, has introduced the reapportionment bill, which gives Allegheny seven instead of six members of the State Senate. It was prepared by the Allied Boards of Trade of Pittsburgh.

FAIR RATE BILL REPORTED TO HOUSE

Committee Submits Pinchot Measure for Abolition Of Service Commission

HARRISBURG, March 31.—The administration "fair rate" board bill, abolishing the Public Service Commission, was reported from the House Judiciary Local Committee today. It was introduced last week by Representative Staudemeier, Schuylkill.

Numerous amendments were made in committee, but members said they were unable to outline the purport of these changes. It is planned to recommit the bill.

The Senate today passed two bills backed by the Senate committee investigating the Public Service Commission.

PEOPLE'S COUNSEL

By unanimous vote the bill creating a "people's counsel" was passed. The counsel is to be a state lawyer to aid rate payers and municipalities in prosecuting complaints against utilities before the commission.

The second bill gives the commission jurisdiction over security issues of utility companies.

Both are sponsored by Senator John J. McClure, Delaware County, member of the committee of inquiry.

An unsuccessful attempt was made last night in the House to discharge the Roads Committee from further consideration of a bill of Representative Sowers, Philadelphia, to reduce the annual fee of automobile drivers from $2 to $1. Sowers lost by a vote of 69 to 131.

CHAIRMAN QUIZZED

Sowers, before speaking in favor of his motion, interrogated Representative Bidelspacher, of Lycoming, chairman of the Roads Committee, who replied that his committee had not considered the measure. Sowers asked:

"Is there any invisible government detaining you in considering this bill?"

"None whatever."

"I decline to answer."

"Has there been any request from the Governor to delay consideration?"

"I cannot speak for the Governor."

Sowers declared the Governor possibly entertained the hope that the House would kill any bill to reduce license fees, thus assuming responsibility for failing to enact one of the Governor's campaign pledges.

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 31.—(AP.)—Two more transfusions and Joseph W. Lynch, 38, will retire as a professional donor of blood. The ninety-eighth transfusion was for a friend injured in an accident. The eighty-fifth was the last for which he accepted compensation. He began in 1914.

Bill Reducing Child Labor Hours Beaten

HARRISBURG, March 31.—The Senate today defeated the bill of Senator Samuel W. Salus to decrease the legal maximum working hours of children under 16 years from 51 to 48 hours a week.

The bill received 17 votes in favor and 24 opposed.

TWO ARRESTED IN HOLDUPS, SHOOTING

Patron Wounded in 'Hill' Robbery; Nurse, Escort Victims of Armed Trio

Two men, suspected, police say, of being members of a trio of bandits who held up a nurse and her escort in an automobile on the Paris Lake road, near St. Clair Country Club, attempting the robbery of a conductor on a Charleroi street car near Elwyn stop, and a Wylie avenue restaurant, were being questioned today by city detectives.

The two men were arrested following an attempt early this morning to rob the Avenue Lunch, 1401 Wylie avenue. Charles Molton, 32, Negro, of 70 Fullerton street, was shot twice when he fought the bandits. The suspects were held for further investigation by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg following a hearing in Center Avenue Police Court. Police Inspector Albert Beebe, who said a third man is being sought, said he believes that the trio participated in the three holdups.

The robbery of the street car was frustrated when Conductor William Zorg drew his ticket punch. The bandits, thinking that he was reaching for a revolver, fled from the street car and escaped in the darkness.

PURSUE BANDITS

Following the shooting of Molton the bandits fled, pursued by police. At Seventh avenue and Grant street, a suspect who said he was William Freshwater, 24, of 1643 Perrysville avenue, was arrested. A short time later Harold Breardon, 24, of 1228 Hodgkiss street, North Side, was brought in.

Molton was treated at Fassavant Hospital for slight wounds in his leg and hand, and later taken to his home. He appeared as a witness in police court and is said to have identified the two suspects.

The youthful highwaymen held up Miss Irene Thompson, a nurse at the City Tuberculosis Hospital, Leech Farm, and a companion while they were driving near the country club. The robbers forced the car into a ditch. Miss Thompson was robbed of her purse and a gold pencil. Her companion saved his wallet by dropping it to the floor of the machine.

As the trio drove away, Miss Thompson obtained their license number by tracing it with her finger on the fender. The robbery was then reported to Mt. Lebanon police, who say the machine had been stolen several hours earlier in Virginia avenue, Mt. Lebanon. A short time later the attempted holdup of the interurban car was reported to county detectives.

After viewing pictures of the prisoners in the Sun-Telegraph, Miss Thompson said Breadon and Freshwater resembled two of the men who had held her up.

CAPTURED ON ROOF

Two alleged burglars were arrested this morning while, police say, they were making an effort to enter the 901 Penn avenue building through a skylight. A squad of police found the men on the roof top. The prisoners said they were Samuel Asgue, 28, of 73 South Thirtieth street, and James Williams, 26, of Youngstown, O., Negroes.

J. J. Ryan, hardware dealer of Swineburn street and Sylvan avenue, reported that thieves entered his establishment during the night and stole goods valued at $75.

Two bandits obtained $30 in a holdup of a chain store at Camfield and Tarragonna streets late yesterday after they had threatened three employes and a customer. The men menaced R. T. Waugman, manager; Carl Klein and Miss Viola Kalbakapf, clerks, and a woman customer.

Ruben Kanarek, of 3389 Parkview avenue, was robbed of $100 and his automobile by an armed highwayman at Parkview avenue and Ward street last night. Kanarek had just stepped from his machine when the man stepped alongside the car. He took the money from Kanarek, stepped into the automobile and drove away.

Cincinnati Banks Cut Savings Rates

CINCINNATI, March 31.—(AP.)—The majority of Cincinnati's banks posted public notice that interest rates on savings deposits would be reduced on May 1, from 4 per cent to 3 per cent. The notice said the interest rate was cut to adhere to "sound and conservative banking."

ARRESTED IN ROBBERIES

HAROLD BREARDON, 24 WILLIAM FRESHWATER, 24

PAIR ARRESTED OVER BEATING

Bella Gorbach, alias Pearl Davis, 47, of 39 Tunnel street, and Harry Stern, 42, of 306 Craft avenue, were arrested today by homicide detectives in connection with the injury of George Stoner, of Toledo, O., who is confined in Mercy Hospital with severe scalf lacerations.

Dixie Davis, 23, her sister, Mrs. Edith Silverman, and Jackie Morgan, who told police they found Stoner, bleeding, in the hallway of their apartment, 1411 Fifth avenue, were arrested yesterday in connection with the case.

According to homicide detectives, Stoner was injured in a fight at the Tunnel street address, and went to the rooming house in Fifth avenue afterwards. It was first reported that he had been injured in the Fifth avenue house.

Holdup Man Given 15-30 Years in Pen

Convicted on five charges of robbery, Samuel Molesa, 41, of Webster avenue, today was sentenced to 15 to 30 years in the penitentiary by visiting Judge Charles M. Culver, of Bradford County. Rosario Magrino, 40, of 1728 Wabash avenue, was sentenced to one year in the workhouse. He was charged with pointing firearms.

Molesa was convicted of robbing five members of a section gang of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad in the West Liberty yards.

Our Celebrated Tourists

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

be the Mahatma Gandhi of Tammany.

Jimmsy walks around in a beret and a sheet while California's violet rays tint him a delicate bronze.

His homecoming will be a trifle more hazardous than Herbert's because nobody soaped the White House steps.

A beret and a sheet is an ideal costume for sun-spanked California. Of course, when you go to a night club you only check the beret.

Which accounts for all our distinguished vacationists except Judge Crater.

Height of civic pride is for one city to point at another and holler:

"You're worse than we are."

In the old days municipal arrogance took a different stride. Man from Chicago met friend from New York. They shook hands and Chicago citizen would say:

"Boy, I live in a great town. Five lakes, free parks, good water and burials at club rates. Climate is almost permanent. Good roads and plenty of schools."

That would start an argument that could only be settled by a neutral bartender. New Yorker would come to the rescue of Manhattan and dilate upon the wonders of the Bronx Zoo, subways and dial telephones.

That's all gone. Nobody wants to talk about his home town any more. When the man from Chicago fetches up with the man from New York, he says:

"I see that you had 3,000 murders in 1930 and nobody convicted."

The New Yorker nods his head yessly and retorts:

"Three thousand murders and nobody convicted? It's worse than that. Nobody was even suspected."

Then they weep on each other's lapels and break into large, interstate sobs.

Before the New Yorkite can start some sincere filibustering about Illinois, both the Chicagrine and the Manhatter agree that it would be better for Chicago and New York if they both talked about Philadelphia.

Which indicates that civic pride was carried out one decimal point too far and fell overboard.

We have lapsed into the wicked days of the West when nobody asked a man where he came from for fear that he might have.

It's the same all over the works. Go into South Bend and say:

"Nice town you have here."

What happens? The South Benderoo remarks:

"Yep. But Toledo is worse than we are."

And when you put a friend on a train and wish him bon voyage to anywhere he thinks you are nothing but sarcastic.

MOTHER LACKS BURIAL FUNDS

CINCINATI, O., March 31.—(AP.)—Torn by grief and lacking money for burial, Mrs. Alma Hall Tepe, 27, telephone operator, whose home is in Proctor, W. Va., kept the body of her day-old baby daughter 11 days.

Emmett D. Kirgan, detective chief, revealed last night that Mrs. Tepe told him she did not have enough money to bury the baby and kept it wrapped in a blanket, trying to think of ways to raise funds for the burial. She added she did not know she was violating the law by not summoning authorities to obtain a death certificate.

Coroner Scott Kearns said the child had been dead at least 10 days. He announced an autopsy would be performed to determine the cause of death and ordered Mrs. Tepe to a hospital for observation.

The investigation was started, Kirgan said, by a former husband of Mrs. Tepe, under whose name the child's birth was recorded. The man, since remarried, said he had not seen his former wife for more than a year.

RADIO TO GUIDE CAVALRY DRILL

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(AP.)—Cavalry troops deploying during May over the Texas country where Billy the Kid once rode, will guide their horses with the fingers of the radio. Maj. Gen. Guy V. Henry, chief of cavalry, said today the coming maneuvers of the First Cavalry Division around El Paso would test the control of mounted troops through radio.

Another problem will be the training of cavalry men in mountain warfare and side by side with this test of fighting methods will be maneuvers to show how armored trucks and motor cars compare with the horse over rocky hills and mesquit covered sand.

"The great value of American cavalry," Gen. Henry said, "in a war of movement is its ability to rapidly transport across the country on the backs of its horses and deliver at a given place a terrific volume of machine-gun, machine rifle, automatic rifle and anti-tank fire."

U. S. Scouting Fleet Ready for Training

U. S. S. ARKANSAS, March 31.—(AP.)—For the next month the scouting fleet, which arrived at its Cuban and Haitian bases yesterday, will do intensive target practice before proceeding north on May 4.

The Saratoga and Lexington, airplane carriers, loaned by the battle fleet for maneuvers in the Caribbean Sea, will return this week to Panama and thence to the Pacific Coast.

Credit Association Sponsors Banquet

Capt. William B. Rodgers will be toastmaster. Addresses will be delivered by H. M. Oliver, executive manager of the Credit Association; L. I. MacQueen, secretary of the Pittsburgh Builders' Supply Club, and A. W. Forsyth.

Loss in Two Fires Reported at $15,000

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., March 31.—Three business establishments in the Ban Franklin Building, Masontown, were damaged by fire, and four persons were routed from their home yesterday. Loss was estimated at $10,000.

The Steve Yourkivich home, near California, also was razed, with $5,000 damage.

AUTO AND TWO STILLS SEIZED

An automobile, two stills and a large quantity of moonshine were seized by prohibition agents in seven raids yesterday.

Michael Cain, 27, of Robinson street, was arrested, agents said, when 20 gallons of moonshine was found in an automobile he was driving at Vulcan way and East General Robinson street. The car and contents were confiscated.

A 150-gallon still was seized at the home of Frank Abel, 24, at 219 Kentucky avenue, Mt. Lebanon Township, according to the agents. A 100-gallon still was confiscated in the home of Joseph Specit, 42, Blackadore avenue extension, Penn Township, raiders reported.

In a club at 123 Grant avenue, and in another in the basement of a building at 5 Frederick street, both in Millvale, the agents seized several bottles of moonshine, they reported. Confiscation of moonshine also was reported at 412 and 422 Devilliers street.

PARK CITES BOY CRIME AGAIN

Action to check the steady stream of youth going to penal institutions was urged by District Attorney Andrew T. Park in an address last night before the Men's Club of the First Presbyterian Church.

During 1930, he said, the courts have handled more than 8,000 criminal cases. He declared the number reflected the steady increase of youthful criminals. Park said 90 per cent of those jailed for crimes of violence are between 16 and 22. He declared 75 per cent of these commit crimes for excitement, not for money. No Boy Scout has ever been a defendant in Criminal Court here, Park declared.

AIR TESTS GIVEN CHAMBERLIN

NEW YORK, March 31.—(AP.)—Clarence Chamberlin underwent tests at Roosevelt Field, L. I., to determine whether he knows enough about aviation to deserve a transport license.

He's the same Chamberlin who flew across the Atlantic to Germany a few years back, and now he is New York City's official aviation adviser.

But Chamberlin fell afoul of federal regulations when he flew too low. He had also failed to renew his license. Hence the tests.

Inspector O. P. Harwood had the somewhat embarrassing duty to watch the famous flier through a series of landings, takeoffs and air maneuvers.

Chamberlin's tests, written and active, will be sent to Washington, where department officials will announce whether he got the answers right.

REPAVING OF 2 STREETS ASKED

Requests to repave three thoroughfares in the Spring Hill and Sheraden districts were in Council today.

Repaaving of Lagoda and Berry streets, from Middletown road to the Windgap road, to provide a new outlet to the West, is asked by the Sheraden Board of Trade. Part of the cost is to be borne by Ingram Borough. Consent for this has already been given by the Council there.

Mrs. F. L. Rossbach, of 1 Kaiser avenue, Spring Hill, asks that that thoroughfare be improved and repaved. She charges that the street is in impassable condition, has no drainage and is a mud hole in wet weather.

Her husband's health has been effected by water draining into the cellar of her home from the street and the water has undermined the foundations of the Rossbach garage, she says.

URGE $100,000 STREET JOB

Inclusion of the Lemington avenue boulevard project in the proposed September bond issue has been requested of Council by the Lincoln District Board of Trade.

In Council's hands since 1928, immediate action is requested on the matter to provide opening of residential sections in the Lincoln district. Another improvement which would result from the boulevard opening, according to the board, would be a direct automobile outlet from that section. Estimated cost of the thoroughfare is $100,000.

How Smart Shops Make Glassware Sparkle

BY MARY LEE WORK

A New Easy Way to Wash Dishes And Do 2 Other Hard Jobs In Half the Time

Ever wonder how the smart shops get glassware and fine china to sparkle like jewels on display?

It's really very simple. You can wash your own dishes the same way—get the same results—and actually save half the time you now spend. Here's how they do it.

They use a product called Climalene. Your grocer either has it or can obtain it for you.

Ends Grease Scum

Add one teaspoonful of Climalene to a dishpan of water, use only ¼ the amount of soap you now use. It instantly cuts the grease from dishes and cooking utensils, makes glassware sparkle and china gleam. The Climalene-softened water; plus certain bland cleansing agents, cuts your dishwashing time ⅓ or more—saves ¼ or more the soap you now use.

To Avoid Faded, Gray Washings

Use 2 tablespoons of Climalene, and ¼ the usual amount of soap. Clothes emerge soft, spotless, utterly without fading. For soap fade, and soap eat are ended this way. In recent tests men's blue shirts were washed 75 times without noticeable fade; sheerest French hosiery 100 times or more—to prove the blandness of this way.

Banish Bathtub Ring

Add a tablespoonful of Climalene to your bath water. It makes the water soft as summer rain. A quick, rich lather is made with soap. After the bath—just rinse the tub. That is all. There just isn't any "high-water" mark. No scrubbing—no rubbing.

Why It Cleans

Climalene instantly takes all the harshness out of lake water, medium hard water, and hard water. Makes it soft and gentle as rain water. So soft it does the work with ¼ the soap you now use. At the same time, due to certain bland cleansing agents, it instantly DISSOLVES all grease, dirt and grime, and thus cuts your working time ⅓ or more, in washing, cleaning and in the dishpan.

City Named in Actions Involving Patrolman, Alleged Defective Street

A suit against the City of Pittsburgh seeking to recover $25,000 damages was filed in Common Pleas Court by Ora D. Greene, who alleged she was injured July 13 when thrown from the sidecar of a motorcycle, driven by her son, Roy Greene, when it struck a hole in South Twenty-seventh street.

Attorney Thomas J. Prather, former Crawford County judge, filed suit on behalf of his daughter, Marion A. Prather, in Common Pleas Court, asking $6,000 damages from John Gordon Mack, of McKeesport, for injuries to her in an automobile accident. She was a passenger in Mack's automobile when it overturned in Beechwood boulevard in avoiding a crash with another automobile, the suit averred.

Raleigh F. Noland of the West End, asked $15,000 damages, for injuries alleged to have been inflicted by a police motorcycle in a suit against the City of Pittsburgh filed in Common Pleas Court. A motorcycle operated by D. Tamburino, traffic patrolman, struck and knocked him to the street while he was walking in West Carson street March 5, Noland averred.

A moving van parked crosswise was responsible for a collision which injured Anna Goughenour, according to a suit filed in her behalf by a sister, Thelma Goughenour, in Common Pleas Court, seeking to recover $15,000 damages from L. H. Strickler.

Could Write a Book About It

"Nine years ago after my little girl was born dead, I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for about four months. The next year I became the mother of a fine 11 pound baby boy. After he was born, I kept on with the medicine to build me up. Four months ago I was nervous and rundown and suffered from other troubles which I knew Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would relieve so I started taking it and now I feel fine again. Many of my friends could write a book on the good the Vegetable Compound has done them."—Mrs. W. Lang Admits Pressure by Kline to Cambridge Springs, where he spent most of last week.

Director Lang was the first witness called when the hearing resumed today, and after an argument with Attorney Lee C. Bolin, counsel for the Works Department, director as to his procedure in questioning the witness.

"You said the other day you made 99 per cent of the appointments in your department. Who makes the other one per cent?"

NAMED BY MAYOR

Lang answered:

"The Mayor, when I'm away or ill."

"So you or the Mayor make all appointments?"

"Yes."

"On January 1, 1926, you acceded to what I believe is a vicious system. You have not taken a dishonest penny, yet I believe that your career is now in jeopardy."

The questioning was interrupted by Councilman W. Y. English who said that Evans had no right to review Director Lang's past life. Evans replied that he had taken this into consideration, but desired to ask the works director one question. Turning to the witness he asked:

"Has Mayor Charles H. Kline made appointments for political reasons of men whom you know are not fit to fill the position?"

Lang's reply was:

"There are some appointments along these lines."

Attorney Evans then asked that President Herron summon Mayor Kline. Herron demurred, pointing out to Mr. Evans his understanding that the public hearing had to deal principally with the Department of Public Works and the methods in which its work is done.

UP TO ENGINEERS

Evans, replying to President Herron, said in part:

"We have agreed to pass the question of technical problems on to a committee of engineers."

Councilman English then interrupted with:

"I didn't know we had done that. I understood that we were to wait to see what comes of the meeting of two groups of engineers."

Another argument followed in which President Herron declared that he was not sure of Council's authority to summon the Mayor into a councilmanic hearing.

He mentioned that during the councilmanic investigation of the Public Safety Department following the resignation of Police Supt. E. N. Jones, the city legal department had ruled that Council did not have authority to call the Mayor.

EVANS IMPATIENT

Impatient at Herron's delay, Attorney Evans asked for a second time:

"What about the Mayor."

Attorney Beatty, asserting that the investigation is holding up the city's improvement program, insisted that it confine itself to the specific charges relating to street improvements. He asked opportunity to resume taking of testimony to explain in detail the Lincoln avenue project.

Attorney Evans replied it was not his desire to hold up the improvement program, adding that he anticipated that the employes of the department would take more care on estimated quantities than before. He added:

"I will admit that there are some unforeseen difficulties which may arise in any improvement."

Evans then related events which led up to the previous investigation and of his reference of the charges of Councilmen Malone, Alderdice and McArdle. Councilman English interrupted with:

"Did these men talk of bringing the matter into Council? It is a pity they had to wait until the legislature was in session with the city manager plan bill to bring this thing in and make whoopee."

NOT POLITICS

Evans retorted:

"That's your obsession, Mr. English, but I repeat that this is not political propaganda."

Criticizing the system of including contingent items in contracts and asserting that if a contractor loses money on a public works project, it is a business chance, Councilman Charles Anderson said:

"I do not think that this system should be carried out if we are to spend $5,000,000 this year. I recommend now that there should not be any items for lumber in repair jobs."

Continuing, Anderson said:

"I feel that this department (the works department) should care for the city affairs, and not the affairs of the contractors."

A. Snyder, a project engineer of the department, called by Attorney Beatty to explain a tabulation of the amount of lumber used in the Lincoln avenue improvement, said that 75,607 board feet of lumber had been used as temporary footwalks for residents along the mile of improvement.

OPPOSE FOOTWALKS

Both Attorney Evans and Assistant District Attorney William H. Colvin criticized the practice of building footwalks for residents and William A. Fox, an engineer of the department, addressing his remarks to Evans, said that orders for such footwalks come from Council, Director Lang and from taxpayers. He added:

"We have never been able to get out of doing this no matter how hard we have tried to work for economy."

Chief Engineer Charles M. Reppert, recalled to the witness stand and questioned by Beatty regarding the lumber item, said he left decision as to the quantity to be used largely to his subordinate engineers. He said he had ordered that a careful record of the amount used be kept.

Investigation of the charge by John B. Love that "favoritism" had been practiced in the Department of Public Works in the letting of contracts for the removal of buildings on Mt. Washington, brought out last week, revealed that the contract had been let six months before Love made his offer, Attorney Colvin said.

AUDITS SPEEDED

Attorney Colvin, who is also in charge of the audit of the Department of Supplies, informed that Controller James P. Kerr expects the audit to be completed by the en dof next week, said:

"We hope the audit will be thorough enough that if any criminal irregularities exist, it will expose it. It should be thorough enough to preclude any necessity for a grand jury probe."

Councilman Harry Little announced today that he would support a councilmanic investigation of the Department of Supplies if the completed audit "shows irregularities to the extent of dishonesty."

LANG EXPLAINS

Relative to his methods of hiring and firing employes of his department Director Lang made the following statement:

"I was misquoted in my testimony referring to the dismissal of inspectors when I made plain the fact that when an inspector was dismissed, he flagrantly violated the rules of the department and his obligations to the city, if not worse things of which he had a suspicion. The records will bear out that when this testimony was given, it referred to inspectors only, and not every employe in the department who might be dismissed and penalized for some minor infraction, but whose record of faithful and loyal service should be given some consideration. When an inspector was discharged, he was never reinstated.

"I think in all fairness to me, this should be made plain to the public, as there seems to be some grave misunderstanding as to what the testimony brought forth.

"In the case of Joseph Foster, immediately on learning that he was on our payroll and had a position in Harrisburg, I sent for him, advised him that he would have to give up one position or the other, and he then asked for a leave of absence. Had I known sooner that he was on two payrolls, I would have resorted to the same method of dispensing of his services with the city."

Rooster's Crowing Saves Five in Fire

ARDMORE, Pa., March 31.—(INS.)—The crowing of a rooster early today so irritated Roy W. Hill, proprietor of a poultry store, that he arose from his bed uttering dire threats against the voluble chicken. Downstairs he found his store afire and filled with dense smoke. Hill summoned firemen and led his wife and three children to safety. The rooster was credited with having saved the family.

LOS ANGELES, March 31.—(AP.)—Mrs. Myrtle Hardy, wife of Oliver Hardy, screen comedian who caused a police search for her last week when she disappeared from a sanitarium, was paroled yesterday after a hearing on charges she was an excessive user of liquor. Don't Be Skinny

Gain pounds of weight in few weeks with new IRONIZED YEAST — a special combination of dried brewer's yeast plus iron — or pay nothing

It seems almost unbelievable how fast new Ironized Yeast has added pounds of good firm flesh—on men and women, children and old people. Nervousness, tired feeling changed to new strength and pep, constipation, indigestion vanished.

People ask—what is the wonderful power in Ironized Yeast that has transformed sallow, lifeless, blemished complexions into fresh, smooth, lovely skins? No wonder thousands of women pour in letters praising the marvelous youthifying effects of Ironized Yeast.

Yet the answer is simple. Ironized Yeast is two tonics in one—special weight-building dried brewer's Yeast and blood-enriching, strengthening iron. The Yeast is the same used in making malt and which makes malt so beneficial. It is specially cultured and concentrated to give the utmost in flesh-producing value. Double-tested for strength, purity and potency. Used by doctors and big hospitals.

To this concentrated dried brewer's Yeast is added three kinds of easily assimilated Iron to quickly make rich, red blood and tone up nerves and muscles. By this special process Ironized Yeast is made more effective than yeast or iron taken separately. Contains no starches, flours or gas-forming fillers. That's why Ironized Yeast works so quickly. Pleasant little tablets—no nasty taste, no gas or bloating. Never spoil, safe for everybody.

Go to any drug store today, get a full size treatment of Ironized Yeast, and take the little tablets as directed. If after this generous trial you are not delighted with quick results, your money promptly refunded by manufacturer.

Kotex stays soft longer

One of the many reasons why you should demand this sanitary pad

KOTEX is soft, and it stays soft. It does not pack into chafing hardness after use. Millions of women have discovered that fact, and they are particular to specify Kotex.

One of the reasons why Kotex stays soft is the way in which it absorbs — quickly, scientifically over the entire length of the pad. Many other pads absorb in one concentrated area which soon becomes uncomfortable.

Kotex is guaranteed to last longer, stay soft longer, than any other sanitary pad. You can wear Kotex on either side, with no chance of possible embarrassment, with the same degree of efficiency. It is treated to deodorize. It is shaped to fit. And it is, of course, disposable.

REED 'HANDOUT' TALK SCORED

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Senator Norbeck took Senator Reed to task for saying the Treasury deficit was due largely to Congress giving "handouts" to the farmers and soldiers and that the Farm Board should be abolished.

The South Dakota Independent Republican said Reed, a Pennsylvania Republican, voted for the "so-called farm relief law in its present form." Norbeck added he voted against it and that the act was "forced upon" the farmers by the industrial states. He said:

"They were told what kind of farm relief they must take."

He also said the agricultural depression was due mainly to interference with economic law for the benefit of others. Norbeck asked:

"If it is a sin for the Progressives to disagree occasionally with the President, is it a virtue for the regulars to do the same?"

MACMILLAN TO MAP LABRADOR

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., March 31.—(AP.)—Twenty years ago, Commander Donald MacMillan promised Sir Wilfred Grenfell, noted missionary, that he would map Labrador for him.

The Polar explorer has announced he would make good the promise during the coming summer. He plans to leave Boston June 20 by air for his scientific station in Labrador. He hopes to make the flight in a dawn-to-dusk hop, a journey that would ordinarily consume eight days by water.

With the expedition will go, as a mother ship, the schooner Bowdoin, veteran of eight Polar expeditions, and three or four smaller craft.

Most of the mapping will be done from the air, with a special camera from an altitude of 8,000 feet, although some of the coastal work will be done from the Bowdoin and other water craft.

OHIO DENIES PA. EXTRADITION

COLUMBUS, O., March 31.—(AP.)—Gov. White has declined to honor an extradition warrant from Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania, seeking the return to Meadville of two Conneaut (O.) policemen to face kidnaping and robbery charges.

S. P. Dunkle, executive secretary to Gov. White, said evidence showed the officers, C. E. Denison and James Mowry, were not in Pennsylvania when the crime was committed.

NOTED WOMAN AUTHOR DIES

NEW YORK, March 31.—(AP.)—Miss Era Betzner, widely known as a pageant director, producer and author, died at her home after a year's illness.

In June, 1929, she was sent to Shanghai, China, to write, produce and direct the first international pageant given in the Orient. Given to promote international understanding, the pageant had as its theme the maxim from Confucius, "All Men Are Brothers."

Burial will be at Kitchener, Ontario, where Miss Beltzner's parents reside.

WOMAN, NATIVE SLAYER BEGINS OF U. S., BARRED PRISON TERM

BALTIMORE, March 31 (AP)—Immigration officials have excluded from the United States a woman born in this country and her husband and are seeking to impose a $2,000 fine on the operators of the ship that brought them into the port.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Bokonich, who arrived from Colon, Panama, on the Tasmore, were accused of entering the country on a non-quota visa.

The woman, rated as a citizen of Jugoslavia because she married a citizen of that country before September 1, 1922. According to the immigration officials, they should have had a quota visa to enter the country because they have been aboard so long.

The steamship company will be given 60 days to show cause why it should not be fined for bringing aliens into the country.

James C. Gray, Negro miner of Morgan, Pa., today began serving eight to 20 years in Western Penitentiary, for killing his wife, Lelia May Gray, 24, during a fight November 11. Visiting Judge C. M. Culver, of Bradford County, refused Gray a new trial. Gray had reported that his wife committed suicide, but later admitted shooting her while struggling with her for possession of a revolver. He was found guilty of second degree murder.

Angelo Ercole, 20, Carver street, was refused a new trial and sentenced four to eight years in the penitentiary for arson, by Visiting Judge J. Frank Graff, of Armstrong County. He had been convicted of setting fire to a store and dwelling at 5941 Chaucer street January 20, with intent to defraud an insurance company.

CANADA VOTES CANAL FUNDS

OTTAWA, Ont., March 31 (AP)—The House of Commons passed in committee $2,000,000 in supplementary estimates for work on the Welland ship canal.

Passage came after one of the fiercest scenes of the session in which Premier R. B. Bennett and Mackenzie King led clashes between the government and the opposition.

Discussions started when R. J. Manion, minister of railways and canals, said the canal would cost another $7,000,000 or $8,000,000.

NAUTILUS DIVER CONFIDENT OF SUCCESS

Declares Wilkins' Sub Will Reach Pole, Return; Recognized as Authority

Universal Service

A hardy sea-traveled lot are the 18 Americans who will accompany Sir Hubert Wilkins on the trans-Polar submarine Nautilus when it dives under the Arctic ice pack in an attempt to reach the North Pole. They are prepared to risk their lives for the sake of honor and scientific achievement. Why they are going—and who they are—is answered in a series of personality sketches, one of which is given below. It deals with the internationally-famous Frank Crilley, master diver of the expedition.

By HERMAN GIESKE

NEW YORK, March 30.—"To be frank with you, I know a lot of people think this expedition is 'nutty'—but they're wrong!"

The words were spoken in a soft drawl and they came from the lips of a man who has looked death in the face without flinching. They were spoken by Frank Crilley, known throughout the United States Navy as its bravest, most efficient and most daring diver.

The statement represented Crilley's final judgment of the approaching trans-polar voyage of the submarine Nautilus. Since Crilley will be one of Sir Hubert Wilkins' aides when the sub-sea boat plunges under the Arctic ice pack, the statement may be taken as Crilley's reasons for his forecast that he expects to come back alive to tell the tale of a glorious adventure.

MAY BOMB ICE PACKS

Crilley, master diver, has been farther down into the depths of the ocean in a 200-pound diving suit than any other living man.

Indeed, upon Crilley's 25 years of diving experience may eventually depend the fate of the expedition. If everything else fails—if the Nautilus' ice-borers won't work; if the men in the hull are gasping for air and can't get through the ice pack overhead—Frank Crilley may be called upon to get them out.

He would descend into the sea in his diving suit, through the small door in the bottom of the Nautilus's forward compartment (the old torpedo room) and clamber up the vessel's hull and touch off a bomb that would blow a few thousand acres of Arctic ice to smithereens!

Then the Nautilus could bob up through clear water like a cork, and all would be well. That's the job assigned to Frank Crilley.

ADVENTUROUS LIFE

Aside from these hazards, he'll be called upon to descend to the ocean floor for scientific specimens, to clear away any submerged obstructions the Nautilus may encounter, to let down and bring up the scientific men's buckets with specimens of submarine life, and when not thus engaged to make himself generally useful about the vessel.

Crilley is now 46—and what a life of adventure he has led! Submarining "20,000 leagues under the sea" is no novelty for him.

He showed the camera men how to take submarine pictures for the original motion picture film of Jules Verne's book many years ago, when the mock Nautilus voyage was enacted for the screen off the Bahamas.

He has dived, too, for sunken treasure, being one of those chosen to attempt to bring up $3,000,000 in bullion from the Merida, foundered off the Virginia Capes in 1913.

Quiet, modest, efficiency, Crilley knows the Nautilus' adventure will not be any lark—but when he thinks of the forthcoming voyage his eyes glow with an inner fire—the challenge of a brave man, who knows the perils of the deep and faces them willingly, as an expert, for the sake of science.

CAPONE DENIES FILM OFFER

CHICAGO, March 31.—(AP.)—Alphonse "Scarface Al" Capone dismissed with a laugh reports from Los Angeles that he had been offered a million dollars to become a movie actor. He said:

"There is no deal on for a picture."

And he added for the benefit of Buron Fitts, Los Angeles district attorney, who promised jail—not Klieg lights—if the gang overlord ventured into his jurisdiction:

"Mr. Fitts as a district attorney is a good press agent. He seems to be more interested in the movies than in crime.

"If there were—but there isn't—a deal on for a picture, I would go to California and not care whether I saw Mr. Fitts or not."

Vacation Refused, Cadet Corps Strikes

DANVILLE, Va., March 31.—(AP.)—Danville Military Institute, a preparatory school, was practically deserted after the corps of cadets went on a strike because an Easter holiday had been refused.

Late last night all of the students except 15 had left school, school authorities said, and were on their way to their homes or visiting friends in the city. The corps was composed of 95 youths.

parents,

BY ALL MEANS, SHOULD KNOW THESE FACTS

Because nothing could be more important than early and proper care of a child's teeth and gums. But how will you decide the best way to care for your child's teeth? There are so many different dentifrices and countless theories.

A leading research institution made an investigation among 50,000 practicing dentists in order to get the opinion of a real court of authority. Here is the summary of the replies received:

95% of the answers stated that germ acids most frequently cause tooth decay and gum irritation;

95% agreed that the most serious trouble occurs at the place where teeth and gums meet;

85% stated that the best product to prevent these acids from causing decay and irritating the gums is Milk of Magnesia.

Doesn't this point straight to Squibb Dental Cream as an effective dentifrice to offer your child—to use yourself? It is made with more than 50% Squibb Milk of Magnesia.

Squibb's is a safe dentifrice. It contains no grit, no astringent, nothing which might injure. It cleans beautifully. And it refreshes and soothes the mouth. Children like its pleasant taste.

VINA DEL MAR, Chile, March 31.—(AP.)—This center of the Chilean Riviera, which found itself in the headlines throughout the world when the Prince of Wales and Prince George were here recently, is settling down to its fall and winter slackening of business, well satisfied after having enjoyed its greatest season in history.

By far the greatest attraction—the new $1,000,000 casino with its three big roulette and baccarat rooms, cabaret, theater and restaurant—was given a big boost by the royal visitors, who played in the gaming rooms, danced in the cabaret, and dined in the sumptuous restaurant.

The Prince of Wales won a total of 27,420 pesos ($3,800) and George only 500 pesos ($60) at baccarat.

U. S. TO DEPORT ALIEN 'REDS'

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(INS.)—The Labor Department is to invoke the weapon of deportation against alien leaders in the Communist movement as a part of a vigorous drive against all aliens illegally in the United States, it was learned today.

Backed by the recent action of the Supreme Court in approving, in effect, a lower court ruling that a Communist advocating overthrow of the government can be deported, the department is understood to be listing Communist leaders who can be reached under this power.

The action of the department in refusing to extend the visa of Feodor M. Ziavkin, general manager of the Amtorg Trading Corporation, of New York, was hailed by Representative Fish (Rep.), of New York, chairman of the House committee which investigated Communist propaganda, as a move in the right direction. Fish said:

"Deportation of about 1,000 Communist leaders would help the situation."

HOW TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Makes One Look Younger

Men and women who used to be called Grandpa and Grandma are now setting the styles by darkening their gray hair at home.

For instance, J. A. McCrea, a well-known Californian, recently made the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture in five minutes that will darken gray hair and make it soft and glossy. Merely take a half-pint of water, add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at trifling cost. Apply to the hair twice weekly with a comb. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off.

NEW ALLEGHENY SENATOR ASKED IN BILL

Foch Lauds Joffre For His Masterly Defense on Marne

In yesterday's instalment of his War Memoirs, Marshal Foch told of his part in the historic First Battle of the Marne early in September, 1914. The 9th French Army which he commanded was driven back under the terrific onslaught of the Germans. Foch issued a stirring order calling upon his forces to "summon the last spark of your energy to resist the invader." Today Marshal Foch tells of the turn in the tide of battle at the Marne that resulted in Allied victory.

By MARSHAL FERDINAND FOCH

Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies During the Closing Phases of the World War.

CHAPTER III.

The fatigue of the men and the exhaustion of some of the officers following the trials of the retreat and the exigencies of a furious battle lasting several days were now more and more evident, notwithstanding the stimulation brought by their success.

Nevertheless, in spite of their physical exhaustion, troops who have won a great victory perfectly understand the immense consequences which will ensue if their commanders, no longer depressed by defeat, but now elated by triumph, refuse to content themselves with enjoying the turn of fortune, but on the contrary, seek with new ardor, foresight and decision, to enlarge the results obtained.

If the enemy is allowed a few days' respite, all the work must be done over again, and what might be accomplished at the expense of exhausting, even cruel, effort today will have to be purchased tomorrow, at the price of the soldier's blood.

When evening came the heads of the 9th Army's columns had arrived on the line Trepail - Les Grandes Loges-Cuperly. On the left, the 10th Corps of the 5th Army had reached the Vesle, above Rheims. On the right, the 21st Corps of the 4th Army was holding Bussy-le-Chateau and Saint - Remy-sur-Bussy.

Marshal Foch

At 1 p. m. I entered Chalons and established my headquarters at the Prefecture.

All day long there passed through the town in perfect order the numerous columns of the 11th Corps, as well as the artillery and trains of the 42nd Division and the 9th Corps. These, having found it dangerous to attempt to cross the Marne by the hastily repaired bridges on their front, came to Chalons, where the bridge was intact.

The Germans had swept the town of everything to eat as well as of all the accessories to cleanliness, and, for several days, the army had to supply

POPULATION ENTITLES CHANGE

Allied Boards of Trade Sponsor District Changes; Seven Divisions Proposed

A bill to apportion the state into new districts which would give Allegheny County another senator was introduced in the State Senate in Harrisburg last night by Senator Frank J. Harris, of Crafton. The bill has the sponsorship of the Allied Boards of Trade.

Allegheny's growth in population entitles the county to a seventh senator, the Boards of Trade feel, contending that an effective redistricting has not taken place since 1900.

DIVISIONS PROPOSED

The bill would divide the county into these districts:

Fortieth—Oakmont, Verona and Penn and Plum townships and all boroughs and townships north of the Ohio and Allegheny rivers.

Forty-first—Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth Wards of Pittsburgh, Braddock, Edgewood, North Braddock, Rankin, Swissvale and Wilkinsburg, and Braddock Township.

Forty-second — First, Second, Third, Sixth and Twenty-first to Twenty-seventh wards, inclusive, of Pittsburgh.

Forty-third—Fourth, Fifth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh and Twelfth wards of Pittsburgh.

TOWNSHIPS LISTED

Forty-fourth—all boroughs and townships between Allegheny and Monongahela rivers not included in Fortieth and Forty-first districts; Clairton, Duquesne, McKeesport, Dravosburg, West Elizabeth and Whitaker and Jefferson and Mifflin townships.

Forty-fifth—Thirty-first Ward Pittsburgh, and all boroughs and townships south of Ohio and Monongahela rivers not included in Thirty-eighth and Forty-fourth districts, but including Neville Township.

SIDEWALKS —of— PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

Elmer Kenyon, who quit teaching English at Schenley High School to express himself in the idiom of the press agent for the Theater Guild, has departed after ballyhooing "Green Grow the Lilacs," the Guild play with the mysterious title.

William Pfarr

Mr. Kenyon told about the troubles of casting the Guild production. Herbert J. Biberman, the director, was interviewing a mess of cowboys who had been yelling at the rodeo in New York. One applicant was a strapping steer roper who went through the stage tests with such imperturbable assurance and stolidity of expression that Biberman feared the man might be a wooden Indian.

"Wouldn't you be scared if a herd of steers stampeded you?" the director shouted.

"Naw," the cowpuncher retorted in disgust.

"Well, what if you were rid-

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., March 31.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

See by the paper where the Bureau of Indian Affairs has promised to have its Indian agents do better this year. I mean do better for the Indians, for a change. If you want to read an interesting document (and it may have something to do with this shakeup) read a new book just out called "Massacre." He gives you the dope. Lots of people think 'cause the Osages have oil that all Indians are rich. Why, the Pine Ridge Agency Siouxs have eaten so much horse meat that they are wearing bridles instead of hats.

Yours,

WILL.

CULVER ALUMNI TO MEET HERE

It will be the first reunion of graduates living in this section in several years.

Gen. Gignilliat

Smith Discusses Civic Problem Here

Ralph H. Smith, assistant to the state attorney general, addressed a smoker and entertainment held last night by the Sunday school classes of four Elliot churches in the basement of the Lorenz Avenue Baptist Church. The meeting was called to create interest in civic problems. H. S. Cobun was in charge of the meeting.

STREET SAFETY PLAN FAULTY

A proposal to prohibit street car loading on the green signals of the stop-and-go lights, was disapproved in a resolution submitted to Council yesterday by Frank L. Duggan, chairman of the Better Traffic Committee. The committee's statement, accompanied by the Traffic Planning Bureau's survey of the suggestion, indicated that such a plan would probably result in increased congestion and greater hazards for pedestrians entering, or alighting from street cars.

The construction of more car-loading zones, according to Lewis W. McIntyre, chief engineer of the City Bureau of Traffic Planning, will eliminate the delays and hazards through street car loading in the downtown district.

KAUFMANN CALLS ON EMPLOYERS, WORKERS TO AID JOB PLAN

URGES ADVANCE PUBLIC WORKS PLANNING

Projects Should Be Laid Out During Prosperous Times, Hungry Club Members Told

Edgar J. Kaufmann, one of the organizers of the "Pittsburgh Plan" to stabilize employment, yesterday told members of the Hungry Club at a meeting in the Fort Pitt Hotel that the plan must be accepted by employers as well as employes if the attempt to combat unemployment is to succeed. He said:

"The wealth of a nation is not measured by its surplus of wheat, its gold reserve or its cheap money, but by the ability of the nation to keep its citizens at work under the protection of the government. It is, therefore, suggested that public works be planned, estimated and charted as to the number of men required, materials necessary and length of time to construct during times of prosperity.

"During our years of high production we were short of labor, probably to a greater degree because public works were going at the same speed as industrial production.

"When the depression came, the first men released were undoubtedly the last men employed. Then the employer felt relieved of his responsibility.

"It is our American duty to feed, clothe and shelter the unemployed, and so the relief organizations pay the rent, provide food and clothing for this group.

"Suffering stops—at least physical suffering stops, but a new mental attitude begins. We instill the idea that society owes one a living, and provides it without work. That is what relief teaches in spite of its goodness during such times as these. It is called a dole in some countries—it is called relief in Pittsburgh.

"The Pittsburgh Plan hopes that it can prove to employers and employes that unemployment depressions can be handled by allowing the employed to feel assured that work will be at hand, and that what he earns will be the means of keeping his self-respect and continued happiness."

MRS. DOROTHY LAMAR BLOUNT WINSHIP AND HER ONE-YEAR-OLD SON, EMORY, JR.

Mrs. Winship, widow of Emory, 59, retired naval officer, San Francisco millionaire who shot himself to death. His will, not yet probated, is believed to disinherit his wife and to leave everything to his year-old son. In the inquest, his Negro servant testified that Winship had planned to kill his wife and Chauffeur Ray McGunigle. The note to right substantiates that.

Ethel Baird, Actress, Weds London Broker

SEEKS WINSHIP FUND FOR GIRL

SAN FRANCISCO, March 31.—(AP.)—A fund assertedly established by Lieut. Commander Emory Winship, wealthy retired naval officer, out of which Miss Helen Elizabeth Thompson, motion picture actress, was being paid $200 monthly was sought by Edward Cunha, Miss Thompson's attorney. Cunha said:

"We have every reason to believe that this fund, allegedly established by Mrs. Dorothy Lamar Blount Winship, the naval officer's widow, amounted to between $40,000 and $50,000."

Cunha said he was informed Mrs. Winship directed discontinuance of payments to Miss Thompson, although there was no evidence the fund itself was terminated. He declared Miss Thompson was entitled to all of it.

Concerning the alleged fund Charles W. Slack, Mrs. Winship's attorney, said it was not exactly a trust fund but "more of an agency through which $200 monthly was being sent Miss Thompson."

During an inquest into the suicide of Winship, it developed he had been paying Miss Thompson $200 monthly because of an "interest in the girl." The jury blamed Mrs. Winship for the suicide because of her alleged association with Ray McGunigle, handsome family chauffeur. Both denied intimacy.

ROSSITER ASKS WITNESSES BE QUIZZED

Convicted Lawyer Declares Government Suppressed Evidence Favoring Him

Samuel Y. Rossiter, prominent Erie attorney, who was convicted in the prisoner substitution trial by a jury in the United States District Court at Erie, March 21, filed a petition with Judge Nelson McVicar, the trial judge, asking the court to compel certain government witnesses to appear for cross examination relative to their knowledge of material facts regarding the case, which were not disclosed at the trial.

The petition is supplementary to a motion Rossiter has pending for a new trial. Rossiter avers, in the petition, that the government suppressed evidence that would have been favorable to him.

RULE GRANTED

Judge McVicar granted a rule, returnable Thursday, on United States Attorney Louis E. Graham, to show cause why W. E. Peterson, a Coast Guard, and Prohibition Agents Park McCandless and Robert Young should not be compelled to attend a hearing for cross-examination, and why Judge Rossiter and J. M. Schilling should not be permitted.

Rossiter averred that Young had been subpoenaed as a government witness, but not called to the witness stand. He alleged that if Young had been called he would have testified that the petitioner was not present at the commissioner's office when the bonds were given.

ACCUSES WITNESS

The petition alleges that the government did not bring out testimony tending to show that Peterson obtained admissions from Wells that Rossiter had no complicity or connection with the substitution. It cited that Peterson went to Colborne, Ont., to interview Wells for the purpose of gaining admissions that would incriminate Rossiter, but was informed by Wells that Rossiter had nothing to do with the crime charged.

ONE KILLED, THREE INJURED IN SAWMILL RUN CRASHES

TRUCK DRIVER HELD; WOMAN SPEED VICTIM

Carrick Resident Struck by Machine as Police Pursue; Collisions Snarl Traffic

A man was dead and three other persons were in hospitals today as a result of two automobile accidents which occurred within five hours on a curve in Sawmill Run boulevard near the entrance to McKinley Park last night.

P. M. Sillman, 60, of Revere, Fayette County, was killed in the first crash when an automobile in which he was riding collided head-on with a truck owned by the Harrison-Shields Company, 1607 Center avenue, and driven by James O'Connell, 29, of 242 South Millvale avenue.

Ralph Donges, 45, of 174 Grand street, Uniontown, driver of the car in which Sillman was riding, suffered a skull fracture and was reported in a serious condition in St. Joseph's Hospital. O'Connell was arrested and turned over to the coroner.

HITS PEDESTRIAN, AUTO

Joseph M. Mullen, 23, of 204 Fairhaven avenue, Overbrook, and Miss Myrtella Haworich, 20, of 5916 Douglas street, were the victims of the second accident, which occurred but a few yards from the fatal crash.

Mullen, employed as a watchman for a transfer company directing trucks dumping earth from the excavation of the new downtown postoffice, was struck by an automobile driven by Angelo Spedaler, of 18 Wysox street, according to police. Spedaler's automobile, police said, then struck a machine driven by Henry G. Figer, of Grove road, Castle Shannon, injuring Miss Haworich, a passenger in Figer's car. Mullen and Miss Haworich are in Mercy Hospital.

WOMAN RUN DOWN

Struck by an automobile pursued by a motorcycle policeman last night, Mrs. Alida Ahrenholtz, 32, of 253 East Meyers avenue, Carrick, was in South Side Hospital with a probable skull fracture and a crushed leg.

Mrs. Ahrenholtz was crossing Brownsville road, at Thielman avenue, Carrick, when the machine, driven, police said, by Harry E. Martin, 31, of 461 Norton street, struck her, skidden about 100 feet and crashed a pole.

Motorcycle Patrolman Harry Gordon, who arrested Martin on a reckless-driving charge, reported he had been chasing Martin, who was alleged to have been speeding, when Martin's macnine struck the woman and was stopped by hitting the pole. Martin was denied bail, police said.

Three automobiles were damaged in a collision in Bigelow boulevard, near Kirkpatrick street, which resulted in a 30-minute tie-up of traffic last night. Automobiles involved in the crash, according to police, were those driven by Adolph Sposato, of 1460 Dormont avenue; Robert L. Moore, of 108 Bower Hill road, Mt. Lebanon, and Thomas G. Susa, of 7029 Frankstown avenue.

Dr. C. R. Price, of 1003 Wylie avenue, and Dr. John J. Lanave, a dentist of 718 Main street, Sharpsburg, suffered slight injuries when an automobile driven by Dr. Price skidded off the icy Lincoln Highway, near Chester, W. Va., and plunged down a 30-foot embankment yesterday.

Margaret Kaduk, 17, of 1444 Orchlee street, suffered a broken leg when struck by an automobile at Davis avenue and Brighton road last night. Philip Piazza, 22, of 4459 Lucerne street, driver of the machine, was arrested. Miss Kaduk was taken to St. John's Hospital.

WHARF PARKING BAN URGED

A plan for beautifying the city's wharves instead of leasing them to private corporations for commercialized automobile parking, is suggested in a letter to Council today from Attorney Harry I. Miller.

Suggesting construction of flood walls and a general "toning up" of the sites, Miller writes that the work could be done under supervision of the Department of Public Works with a $25,000 gift "by a philanthropist or some public-spirited organization." The "philanthropist" is not named.

After the first section of the improvement is completed, more money could be obtained, according to Miller, and the project continued. Cost of the work is negligible, Miller declared, and work would be given to hundreds of men now unemployed.

The Propellor Club of Pittsburgh also has entered protest against lease of the wharves by the city. Paving and beautifying of the sites by block stone or bricks is suggested as a means to improve parking and marine facilities.

Ohio Men, Students Inspect Plant Here

Five hundred business men from Massilon, O., 90 students from Yale, and 27 students from the University of West Virginia, were among groups making inspection tours of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing plant at East Pittsburgh yesterday.

The Yale visitors are on a tour of leading industrial and manufacturing concerns of the eastern part of the country.

"I guess," the cowboy responded, "it might scare the horse."

P. S.—He didn't get the job.

There's the story of the hooo which Attorney Kivie Wolfe tells.

In rags, the man rapped and rapped at the door of the numbers man's home. It was 5 o'clock in the morning.

The numbers man fell out of bed and staggered to the door.

The hobo handed him $1 and said: "Play this on 411."

"You musta had a hunch to come around at this hour," the numbers man suggested. "Did you dream about it?"

"Dream nothing," the hobo answered. "I had no place to sleep tonight."

The moving-picture theaters are serving coffee now, and we're all for the idea. In fact, we'd go further. Why not an indoor tennis court, a card room, a sandwich counter, a reading room? Then one wouldn't have to look at the movie at all.

George Dennison, of the Pittsburgh Clearing Bureau, is telling a true story which seems convincing proof that most of us, when confronted by a questionnaire, will sign the darn thing and mail it back rather than go to the trouble of examining its contents. Recently a firm sent out a questionnaire to business men and college students. Included among the questions was one to this effect:

"Do you agree to be hanged on October 25?"

The firm wanted to determine just how closely such questions were read. And it did. Ninety-eight per cent of those who replied agreed to be hanged.

This is the Pennsylvania Railroad clock season, inaugurated by us last year. Every year, about this time, we glance out the window, note that the face of the railroad's big clock is none too clean and prepare for the battle of the season. We call the railroad all kinds of names until finally, in defeat somebody sneaks out in the dark of morning and cleans the clock. Last year we compared the Pennsylvania Railroad with Russia, although by what mental process we can't remember. Anyhow, here we sit, hoping that Spring dust will collect about the clock. And if it does watch out, Pennsylvania Railroad! The bigger they are—why, the bigger they are, we always say.

SUMMER COURT PLANS MAY BE DROPPED

Many Reasons Advanced By Judges Not Favoring Move; Urge More Activity

Judges of the Allegheny County courts are not likely to adopt a plan this year to keep the courts in session during July and August, it was learned today.

Some members of the bench say that a plan may be observed to keep Quarter Sessions Court more active, but that the Common Pleas branch is likely to be closed.

Heretofore court has been held three days a week during the hot months in Common Pleas Court.

In the Quarter Sessions or Criminal Court branch business is transacted one day a week, but with all important cases disposed of before the arrival of July. Some judges favor more activity in that branch during the summer months and this may be considered in the near future.

Many reasons are given by some judges for not holding court sessions in Common Pleas Court during the summer. Some of these are as follows:

Three-fourths of the Common Pleas Court cases are personal injury cases. To try these cases within even a few months after suits are filed, if filed promptly following the accident, might do defendants irreparable injury.

To hold court by using a stagger system, it is claimed, would not expedite the business, since the schedule of the courts is so arranged that such a system would not relieve the pressure of untried cases.

Summer court, it is said, would disarrange the vacation season of a large percentage of individuals called for jury duty.

HOME BURNING, SHOTS WAKE 3

The firing of a pistol by a neighbor aroused the family of Mrs. Helen Barosky and enabled them to flee from their burning home in the Little Deer Creek road, near Springdale today. Three members of the family fled in night clothing a short time before flames destroyed the two-story frame store and home and threatened nearby dwellings.

The police say fire had been caused by an exploding oil stove in the rear of the store on the first floor. J. E. Richardson, a neighbor, saw the flames and attempted to awaken the family, but was unable to enter the house. He then returned home and fired several shots, arousing the Baroskys.

Firemen from Springdale, New Kensington and Cheswick, who fought the flames, were hampered by the lack of water. Loss was estimated at $12,000 by Fire Chief Karl Althauser, of the Springdale fire company. Much of the loss was in store supplies.

A final checkup of votes on a proposal to supplant the student council at the University of Pittsburgh with a Men's Self Government Association similar to that of the Pitt co-eds now in effect, was to be made this afternoon after the school of pharmacy votes had been taken.

A preliminary checkup of votes from the college and schools of engineering and mines, education, business administration, and dentistry indicated defeat for the proposal, Walter J. Rome, graduate manager of student activities, stated. Passage of the proposal was urged by a committee headed by Emanuel Fishkin, member of the student council.

TAX EXEMPTION SOUGHT BY CITY

Pittsburgh, as well as Philadelphia and other municipalities, is entitled to exemption from payment of gasoline tax when the fuel is used for municipal purposes, an opinion on a recent ruling of the Dauphin County Courts, in Council's hands today from the City Law Department, states.

On motion of Robert Garland, Council recently asked the department for an opinion on the city's status in connection with this matter. Thousands of dollars would be saved here annually if the ruling applied to Pittsburgh as well as Philadelphia, Garland declared.

Prepared by Charles Lang, special assistant solicitor, the opinion declares that, to his knowledge, there is no ruling yet from the State Supreme Court on the question. It may be, he points out, that the state has appealed the Dauphin County decision.

The new Oakland is a powerful, roomy, beautiful car—built to exacting standards of comfort and dependable operation. You will want to see and drive it. Meanwhile, the value may be judged by these distinctive fine-car features:

V-TYPE 8-CYLINDER ENGINE—the type long identified with cars outstanding for ability. Oakland's motor develops 85 horsepower smoothly and quietly. Remarkable evenness is maintained under all driving conditions.

SYNCRO-MESH TRANSMISSION—the quick, clashless, quiet-shifting mechanism hitherto considered a luxury for the few—now just a part of Oakland's new value.

NEW QUIET SECOND GEAR—comparable in quietness to the "high" gears you know, and of a new design which plays an important part in Oakland's notably rapid acceleration.

RUBBER-CUSHIONED CHASSIS—at 41 points, absorbing shocks, greatly adding to riding ease and stability on the road, and prolonging the life of the car. In addition, Oakland's rubber-cushioned spring shackles are rattle-proof and eliminate twelve points of lubrication.

NEW BODIES BY FISHER—not only contributing new values in modish appearance, comfort, craftsmanship and safety, but introducing advanced insulation against heat, cold and noise.

WHIPCORD OR MOHAIR UPHOLSTERY—giving Oakland interiors the atmosphere of flawless good taste and the wearing qualities essential to lasting value; fittings of corresponding quality.

Other Oakland features are: five wire wheels; Lovejoy shock absorbers; one-piece fenders with fender lamps; heavy single-bar bumpers; new sturdy rear axles with ball and roller bearings—oil sealed in and dust sealed out.

Naturally a motor car's real character and value are best determined by personal test. A demonstration of the new Oakland will be arranged at your convenience, without obligation.

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, March 31.—It is strange the archdukes of the microphone don't find a place for John Philip Sousa in their musical councils, if for nothing else than the prestige his name would give to their deliberations.

Sousa is today America's most famous musician—the only musician whose compositions are known in every corner of the civilized world. Yet, the broadcasters hesitate to add his authority to their huddles.

It may be that they believe that the advent of the jazz era has dimmed Sousa's appeal, that the march, as a musical composition, has lost its place in the American scene save when a parade stomps down main street. But even jazz and all its prophets—to say nothing of its profits—cannot deprive him of his glory as the chief musical symbol of the gusto and glow of American life.

Sousa has arrived at that important junction point of a musical career where he arouses no jealousy in his composing and conducting contemporaries. Goldman, Pryor, other bandmasters would no more arrange a program without reserving enthusiastically a conspicuous portion for his pulse-quickeners than they would petition Congress for a law banning permanently the airing of the "William Tell Overture." Even Gershwin, high priest of jazz, makes an unconscious knee-bending to the Sousa altar in his tangy "Strike Up the Band."

The broadcasters find room at their council tables for Damrosch, for Werrenrath, for Schumann-Heink, but Sousa, master of the march and other forms of light music, is outside the gates. His very absence makes us wonder if Victor Herbert, were he alive today, would also be missing from the radio roster.

This department recently complained of the failure of radio to produce any outstanding musicians, stressed the fact that the mad scramble of broadcasters for concert artists and the desperate effort to find work for them would retard further their coming. Comes a message from Henry Busse, dance bandman, which seems to us deserving of reproduction.

"I have a theory in regard to your observation, which may or may not interest you. Musicians in the symphony orchestras, as talented as they are, are usually elderly and, ofttimes, have become quite blase. Playing the immortal music of the masters, they get 'inferiority complexes,' and feel that they could never compete with music that is heaven-inspired. And so they go on, proud of their affiliations, with a stagnant sense of well-being and content.

"Jazz musicians are different. Young, alert, they thrill to the rhythms they employ and take a keen delight in every new 'hot lick'." (Editor's note: We can't recall ever seeing the expression "hot lick" before) "jazz 'figure' or interlude that a fellow musician plays. They worship those of their craft who create new styles and tempos; men like 'Red' Nichols, Joe Venuti, Arnold Brillhart, 'Fuzzy' Farrar, Benny Goodman, Miff Mole, Arthur Schutt, Eddie Lange, and those other virtuosi who are heard on every radio program on the air. Several of these lads have as many as 15 broadcasts weekly, and, with the fee for rehearsals, they earn huge sums."

SMARTNESS FOR SPRING

—At a Saving

The stores are offering newest Spring models now in the necessities of Milady's wardrobe. Coats—cloth, cloth and fur—fox-trimmed, galyak, flat furs. The coat is the foundation of the ensemble. The Pittsburgh woman chooses a coat in blue or black and builds her ensemble to it—or she chooses the smart new rough tweed town coat, which serves her for any daytime function. The mode in coats, as in all factors of Milady's ensemble, is Femininity. Frocks are chosen for more occasions than one.

The redingote idea, which offers both a dress and coat, either worn in varied combinations, introduces the economy idea. Every woman is aware of the economies which may be practiced in every department of her Spring buying. To meet this, the Pittsburgh stores are offering values that have not been equaled in a decade. To obtain the greatest dollar value on your Spring purchases, you will follow the store advertising in the Sun-Telegraph—then shop the stores. The smarter merchants tell their store news through the advertising columns of the Sun-Telegraph; the smarter Pittsburgh women make the Sun-Telegraph their buying guide.

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

AS YOU LIKE IT

Well, well, well. The "Old Maestro" crashes the WJAS gate at 10:15 tonight. Ben Bernie makes a witty program even wittier (no attempt at poetry) when he puns a few rounds with his host, Richy Craig, Jr.

Harb Drury is to call the plays in KQV's hockey broadcast from Duquesne Garden at 8:30 tonight.

Cadman's beautiful Indian lyric, "Land of the Sky Blue Water," conjures a picture for Cyrene Van Gordon, of the Chicago Civic (KDKA at 9).

As a special feature of the Barlow Symphony first anniversary celebration (WJAS at 9:30) the orchestra is to play Mr. Barlow's arrangement of Schubert's "Moment Musicale."

Morton Downey left his sickbed Sunday, sings on WABC-WJAS at 10:30 tonight.

If you can hear the name "Buffalo" mentioned without getting a nightmare after those two hockey defeats, twirl the dial to WJAS at 9 for funny blackout sketches by Henry and George.

Sacred Songs on KDKA grows more popular with age. In its fifth year, it still leads the pack in fan mail.

Raymond Knight started something with his "nickelodeon" on the Cuckoo Hour. Gus Van, celebrated comedian, gives us "Miniature Movies" on WJZ, WENR at 7:15 tonight. The illusion of being in a theater is to be created by special effects such as the whirring of a picture machine and "talkie" dialogue. Mr. Knight, however, may stop the show, charging infringement.

Helen Oelheim, contralto, is to replace Lillian Taiz as "Freda" in the Peter Zorn sketches over WJAS Friday nights.

"Gold Medal Express" was good competition last night for Sigrid Onegin. This new series via KDKA offers Rudy Wiedoeft as next week's attraction.

How they sprinkle "Stardust" over the United States after midnight! Six out of seven orchestras "spot" it. Page Lorna Fantin!

"Hear Jimmie Joy's arrangement of 'The King's Horses' on KDKA," advised Miss D. W., of Greenfield. We're glad we did. One can almost visualize "Sir Oliver Andrews"—narrator—in walrus mustache and London walking clothes, by jove! Nice work, boys.

Pittsburgh gets a lot of "soft" advertising in that mattress program via CBS-WJAS Monday night. The product was tested and approved in Mellon Institute.

When speaking of superb orchestras don't forget to honor Guy Lombardo's outfit, rated by most critics as one of the five best dance bands on the air. Guy's arrangement of "I Love You Truly" is one of radio's sweetest contributions.

When Brian McDonald first adopted this cognomen (yes, it's a radio name) he had to carry it on a slip of paper so he wouldn't forget. Now conditions are reversed and when he is addressed by his rightful name (Jack Daum) he hardly recognizes it!

J. L. V., East Palestine—No station interfering with KDKA. You may be hearing WBZ, which comes in 10 kilocycles higher on the dial. WBZ has a new transmitter. Decrease the length of your aerial to make signals sharper.

If you stay up to hear Kate Smith on WJZ at 11:30, postpone your sleep a little longer and take on the Mound City Blue Blowers at 11:45 via WJZ, WENR. They get music out of anything. A suitcase is their drum and the drumsticks are a couple of clothes brushes. William McKenzie, the director, gets music out of a fine-tooth comb. The only real musical instruments are two guitars.

Who hasn't enjoyed James Fenimore Cooper's "Last of the Mohicans"? Hear it dramatized on WJAS tomorrow at 2:30.

"Moonshine and Honeysuckle" is back on WCAE this Sunday at 3 o'clock, friends.

J. A., Apollo—Tom Manning, sports announcer, handles the "Gene and Glenn" broadcast from WTAM at night. Tom is 28. You will hear him on network programs this summer.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

Two enormous brown bears at Conneaut Lake, known as "Jake" and "Lena," recently came forth from winter hiding with two cubs. The little ones have been named "Gene" and "Glenn."

Stardust

Ben Bernie — Miss Van Gordon

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Loyalty and Contentment Must Be Earned

Handsome or homely—tall or short—smart or dumb—

Rhoda falls in love with 'em all . . . One after the other!

And she just can't understand it!

"I simply seem to go cuckoo over any fellow who notices me!" she moans. "And when he leaves me flat, I just turn around and fall for the next one I meet just as hard!

"How'll I know when I really fall in love?"

Ever asked that yourself?

Dear Sally —

"I never thought that I would have to write and ask a perfect stranger for advice about my love affairs, but here I am, a badly bewildered girl who finds herself doing just that thing.

Falls for All Boys

"I am 17, and have my share of good looks—and more than my share of trouble. I suppose that, after I finish telling you all about my worries, you will say I am just plain fickle. How well I know I am! But how will I overcome it? That's the question that I'm all in a muddle about.

"Whenever I meet a new fellow, I fall head over heels in love with him whether he is good looking or homely . . . smart or just a sap. It seems whenever any boy pays any attention to me at all, I just go cuckoo over him. Then, when he takes me out once or twice, I naturally thinks he cares for me and I start dreaming about him. Then if he shouldn't happen to call me up on a set date, I start worrying so that I can't eat or sleep or anything.

"Usually, after going out with him for a month or so, he leaves me flat and of course, I am left with nothing but a big broken heart. And then I do it all over again! I go to a dance or a party or something and there I meet some other fellow, and the same thing happens to me. So once more I have a torn heart to mend.

Is Puzzled

"What I want to know is how will I know when I have really fallen in love? Or maybe—do you think I ever will fall in love, really and truly? Maybe I was made to live a spinster . . . . but oh, if I thought that I guess I would go out and end it all, right now.

"I just don't understand myself, at all. I go out with a group of girls and they all like boys, but none of them as much as I do.

"Right now I am going out with a fellow and what puzzles me is that when I am with him, I do not give a snap for him and I am truly ashamed to have my friends see him as he really is very funny looking. But when I do not see him, I keep thinking of him all the time, and, at such times, I feel as though I really did care for him.

"Can you diagnose my case? I certainly need some advice, or a good bawling out, or something. Please help me.

"RHODA."

No, you don't need a "bawling out," Honey. And there's nothing abnormal or unusual about these romantic ups-and-downs. It's all as natural and right as the warm, sweet rioting tide of springtime that's bursting and spraying every rock and clod. That mad tide is at work in you, too—bringing you to blossom, ripening your heart for harvest.

Don't be ashamed of loving, little girl. And don't be afraid of the hurt that love brings. Love is the greatest thing on earth and it's worth all it costs. But remember this—there are rules for loving as there are rules for everything else in life. And you'll never find joy in love unless you learn them.

Common Sense Needed

Love is a job, like everything else . . . a job that calls for common sense and loyalty, patience and good-nature, self-sacrifice and discipline.

You'll never find a 100 per cent love or a 100 per cent lover. You'll never "fall in love so deep" that you won't be bored or irritated or humiliated . . . or wonder if you wouldn't like the other man better.

Loyalty and contentment don't "just happen." You must work for them . . . fight for them . . . hang on to your dream through long, weary days of disillusionment and indifference. Remember that, when the Big Love finally comes. No love will ever be a constant fairy tale. You, yourself, will have to make its magic.

And for the present, you'd better not try to pick your Lasting Lover. You are not even ready to live with yourself, much less with a man. That's why your feelings are so off-again-on-again. Rhoda, herself, isn't tied together. And Romance in 1931 is a two-fisted job for grown-up ladies. So learn a little more about life, and much more about yourself, before you risk the Big Adventure.

WORK CAN BE A RUT OR A ROMANCE, ACCORDING TO THE INTEREST AND ATTENTION YOU GIVE IT

By FAY KING

Work can be a rut or a romance, according to the interest we take in it.

Many persons are not interested in their work because they know nothing at all about it except the bit they must do.

It is like reading one page in a book, or seeing a snatch of one scene in a play or a movie.

Without knowing what has gone before you cannot possibly appreciate it.

Every line of work has an interesting history, concerning its past, present and future.

The more you learn about it the more interest you will take in it.

Study those who succeeded before you, and those who are succeeding beside you.

Every vocation has its stars and heroes who can inspire you.

Lillian Urges Madge to Make Last Effort to Cure Veritzen

I stared at Lillian stupidly as she finished her answer to my question of what was to be done about Mary. She eyed me shrewdly for an instant, then laughed unmirthfully.

"'Aghast,' 'astounded,' 'uncomprehending'—you're registering all of them," she gibed. "You don't 'get me,' do you? Well! pull my spiel to pieces then and ask me about each separate item. 'Ask me!' Go on!"

She had given me time to pull myself together, and I faced her resolutely.

"First I want to know what you mean by my bringing Mr. Veritzen 'to the mourners' bench during this Christmas vacation.' He doesn't plan—"

"Oh! yes he does," Lillian replied promptly. "He told me a little while ago that he intended to go down to Long Island to that hotel near the farm house for the holidays, saying that he hated Christmas time in the city—can you imagine cosmopolitan Phil springing a spiel like that. He also moaned about how he missed a family gathering at holiday time. You'd better be prepared, old dear. He's going to hint so strongly for an invitation to your Christmas dinner and kindred entertainments that you won't be able decently to do anything except invite him."

"Oh! don't say that!" I exclaimed, as I shrinkingly visualized Philip Veritzen at the family Christmas celebration. "He'll simply spoil everything."

Lillian grinned sardonically at me.

"You sound as though you and Dicky and Junior had a sacred Christmas celebration which couldn't be shared by any outsider. Will you kindly count on your fingers the assortment of old and young which is already scheduled for your festive board. Item, husband, wife, cheeld, wife's father, husband's mother, one niece and three nephews, suitor of niece, four family friends, itemized as three Underwoods even if one'se name is Morton, and one Katherine Bickett—why old dear you've simply got to have old Phil. You'll be 13 at table if you don't. Unless—you want to ask Ede instead"—she laughed slyly.

I gave her a withering look.

"She would be all I need to make my Christmas complete," I said sardonically. "But I still stick to my guns. Everyone else you have named 'belongs' to the family. There won't be a jarring note unless that man—"

"Don't call the old dear such a profane name!" she admonished with a grin then sobered as she saw my troubled eyes.

"Honestly it won't be half so bad as you think. When Phil lays himself out to be 'nice' there isn't anybody can do it better. And he'll be on his best behavior. I don't know what the idea is—I'm afraid to hope that maybe he's unconsciously regaining the senses he appears to have lost since Princess Olina went back and getting in a more tractable frame of mind. Mind you, I say, 'unconsciously'—he no doubt is planning all sorts of devilment with his conscious mind. But if you have Mary's and Noel's interests at heart, I think you'll make a mistake if you don't handout a Christmas dinner invitation to your revered employer. There's one comfort you won't have to ask him to be a member of your house party. He made it most emphatic that he was going to stay at that hotel he likes so well."

"Can you tell me where I'd put him even if he invited himself for a sojourn at the farmhouse?" I asked with a mirthless grin.

"You'd manage, some way," she answered comfortably, "but fortunately you won't have to. You ought to be thinking about one thing, however, and that's what I said about 'bringing Phil to the mourners' bench which seemed to puzzle you. It should be perfectly clear to you, and if it isn't I'm going to repeat in words of one syllable what I've hinted and told you outright many times before."

She paused, looked me steadily in the eyes and then said slowly:

"If you cannot win Philip Veritzen to the cause of Noel and Mary, then it's hopeless, and you might as well let Mary grab what chance she can for fame and fortune. I know it's a mean, thankless job, and Dicky will no doubt act like a hyena with the mumps for several weeks to come. But I'm banking on you not only to win the old boy over, but to tame him so he won't be everlastingly bothering you with his sheep's eyes and his compliments. Honestly, every time I hear him talking to you lately, I want to lay back my ears and bleat."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, April 1

The astrological forecast for this day is a very interesting one, showing much substantial progress following upon a prolonged period of stagnation and frustrated plans. Now, with old congestions removed there should be definite advancement made, largely through diligence, hard work and the assistance and good will of elderly persons or institutions. Personal popularity and worthiness may be an element of success and co-operation, especially of feminine influence.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which much substantial progress may be made, following upon a term of obstruction and inertia. With definite plans and practical application, the assistance of elderly persons or institutions may be counted upon, with much aid through social popularity or the influence of feminine friends.

A child born on this day should be talented, popular, hard-working, and may achieve success and standing through its own worthy efforts aid winning the co-operation of elders.

Fur Cleaners

Equal parts of magnesia and dry flour rubbed into white fox fur will greatly whiten it.

White or gray angora or tibet will wash in warm soapy water, to prevent cockling.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Temperance and Hygiene Reduce Ravages of Gout

In reading the works of Charles Dickens, you are sure to run across characters described as "gouty" persons. Thackeray and other writers of his period frequently spoke of this ailment.

Dr. Copeland

Gout was a penalty paid by the individual who led an inactive life, indulged in little exercise, and lived on the fat of the land. These writers gave it to the "country squire," who in his life had partaken more frequently of alcoholic beverages than of water.

With the growing practice of temperance, gout is far less common. However, the disease may afflict an individual who leads a sober life, but whose ancestors were of the self-indulging type.

Hereditary influences are rarely important factors in the causation of disease. But by inheritance certain individuals appear to possess a tendency toward this particular disease.

It may occur in persons who have eaten poor quality food for a long time. This is not surprising, because the symptoms of gout are really due to a disturbance in nutrition.

Modern methods of living, greater understanding of hygiene and food values have contributed to the decline of this ailment. Like other human disabilities, gout is dropping from the casualty list.

In gout there is an excess of uric acid in the blood. The normal output of uric acid by the body is about a gram every day.

This amount is increased or decreased, depending upon the diet. If we eat a diet containing the ingredients which form uric acid, the output is increased. In gouty individuals, the body possesses the inability to get rid of these substances.

In gout the fluids of the body are so overladen with this chemical that they must deposit it somewhere. Usually the joints are selected for such deposits. The first joint of the big toe is most frequently involved. Next come the ankles, knees, and the small joints of the hands and wrists.

The victims of gout complain of twinges of pain in the small joints of the hands or feet. Other symptoms are restlessness at night, irritability and dyspepsia. The urine is scanty in amount and low in the content of uric acid.

The attacks are quite severe and come suddenly, usually in the early morning hours. The individual is aroused from sleep by a severe pain in the joint of the big toe. The joint rapidly swells, becomes hot, hard, and shiny and is extremely sensitive to touch. Fever is present and may be as high as 103 degrees.

As the morning advances, the pain disappears, but the swelling remains. The pain may recur the following night and continue for from five to eight days.

Some persons have three to four attacks in a year; others have more. "Once gouty, always gouty," is a true statement. However, with proper care, the severity and number of attacks may be decreased.

Hygiene, avoidance of alcohol, simple yet nutritious food are essential in the treatment of gout. Outdoor life with moderate exercise, the drinking of a great deal of water are important in warding off future attacks.

Household Hints

For the average woman the kitchen sink should be 36-inches high.

Stand the silver in cold water a few minutes before the usual washing and the odor of fish will disappear.

Mix your stove polish with turpentine and apply as usual. The turpentine will remove and prevent rust and the combination will make the stove look like new.

Inch-wide adhesive tape may be used instead of tacks to reattach to their rollers window shades that have torn away.

Rubbing with a strong solution of hot soda or strong hot vinegar will remove paint from window panes. Leave the solution on until it is nearly dry, then rub it off with a woolen cloth. A discarded safety rezor blade is an excellent tool.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Don't overlook elbows. Facing toward the rear, as they do, they never get even a once-over. The skin there is coarse and, as the elbow is a hinge, the skin falls into creases. It will lap up skin food with relish and gratitude.

Mouth breathing is harmful. The function of the nose is to filter the air free of dust, to moisten it and warm it before it enters the lungs. The mouth breather should have an examination made by a throat and nose specialist who will find out what causes this unnatural condition. Sleeping on the back with head tilted backward causes mouth breathing.

Eyebrows are getting longer, by which we mean that they are extending further toward the temples. This type of eyebrows give the face an arresting, mysterious quality which is supposed to be something or other in the ultimate tra-la of pulchritude. Never clip the eyebrows. Instead use brilliantine or vaseline and slap the hairs down with an eyebrow brush.

When the hair is excessively dry, breaks and splits, a small quantity of any good oil—olive, mineral or sweet oil—should be rubbed into the scalp immediately after the shampoo. Oil should be applied liberally not only to the hair but to the scalp the night before the shampoo.

With a small pole fastened in a doorway, a girl can get the best possible exercise by chinning the bar. This form of calesthenics is regarded as an aid to girls whose arms are too fat or too thin and to the flat-chested babies whose muscles have never developed properly. Try it. Good fun.

By filing the ends of the finger nails into a rather long oval, short nails will not appear stubby. Certain shaped nails are natural to certain shaped hands, but proper filing will do a lot toward improvement. File from the sides toward the center, being careful not to make an abrasion in the cuticle. Use a steel file that is sharp and flexible. Clean the nail eaves with an orangewood stick, then file with an emery board.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Ruffled Organdie Not for "Large" Girls

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

"A" says that a girl who weighs 180 pounds is not too large to wear an organdie dress with ruffles down to the ankles. "B" says that she is entirely too large. Which is right? Thank you for your advice.

GRACE.

I certainly agree with "B" that a girl who weighs 180 pounds is "entirely too large" to wear an organdie dress with ruffles down to the ankles. Every ruffle would emphasize her bigness, and unnecessarily so. More than this, I should think that she would be able to find, in this world of charming and gracious materials, one that would be more appropriate for her size and no matter what her age—than organdie. Organdie is charming for slim girls, but large girls should make an effort to find a more "relenting" material! How about chiffon or georgette—or one of the lovely new and thin flat crepes? Flat crepes are the salvation of the Big Gals!

Use Your Napkin When Necessary

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me, when a lady sits down at the table and opens her napkin, is it proper for her to wipe her mouth with the napkin during the meal, and at the end of the meal?

A. B. C.

Yes, we use our napkins whenever it is necessary to use them, during a meal and at the end of a meal. But meticulous eaters use them as little as possible, because they eat with such care that the napkin is not necessary, as it is with people who are careless.

Returning a Young Man's Ring

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a boy gives a girl a ring, and later wants it back, should she send it or give it to him?

They are still friends. If she sends it, would it hurt his feelings? DISAPPOINTED.

It would probably cause less awkwardness and embarrassment if the ring is sent back, rather than given back. There should be a polite note accompanying the ring, a note written by the girl to thank the boy for his kindness in letting her wear his ring and saying that she is returning it at his request. Girls are very apt to get themselves in just this sort of awkward situation by borrowing boys' rings, and, when they do, they should get themselves out of it with as much graciousness and friendliness as they can summon to the situation.

It Would Be All Right On a Picnic

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Is it good form to eat bacon with the fingers?

2. Wouldn't you consider it very rude and poor breeding when in company to write notes when you want to know something that you don't want the others to hear? MRS. B.

1. No. This is terrible form. We should never eat in our fingers food that is greasy or food that makes our fingers "messy"...never, if we can avoid it. And we always can avoid eating bacon in our fingers, except, perhaps, at a picnic!

2. Yes! I should consider this exceedingly bad form.

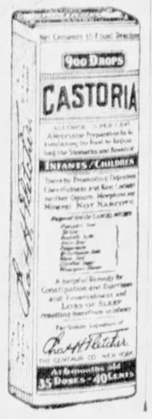
If BABY HAS COLIC



COLIC comes suddenly. Your first intimation that something is wrong may be a warning cry in the night. If you have a bottle of Castoria handy you needn't worry, for a little of this pure vegetable remedy will soon have baby his happy self again; let him go back to sleep.

Castoria is always the sensible thing to give an ailing child. When a child is restless, fretful, with coated tongue, bad breath and lack of appetite, it is a mother's standby. Most mothers give Castoria an important place in their homes. Ready for sour stomach, constipation, or upset. When buying Fletcher's Castoria always look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. This identifies the genuine product.

SEWICKLEY MAN DENIED DIVORCE

Judge Joseph Stadtfeld in Common Pleas Court refused a divorce sought by Julius J. Wagner, interior decorator, of Sewickley, from Zuze Wagner, on the grounds of cruelty and indignities. The court held that Wagner did not meet the burden of proof required and that his testimony was not clear and convincing. Judge Stadtfeld in his opinion asserted he was not impressed by Wagner's action in presenting his two daughters to testify against their mother.

Wagner charged that his wife neglected their house, refused to prepare meals, interfered with his business and attempted to humiliate him before friends and neighbors. He testified she wanted him to live in Europe. Mrs. Wagner denied these charges and declared that he struck and kicked her on one occasion. They were married in Yonkers, N. Y., in 1914, having known each other since childhood in Breslau, Czechoslovakia. They parted in December, 1928.

COUNTERFEITER SUSPECT HELD

PHILADELPHIA, March 31.—(AP.)—Joseph F. Trembley, 36, of San Francisco, chief steward of the freighter Absaroka, arrested when customs agents found alleged counterfeiting equipment in his cabin, was held in $2,000 bail today for a further hearing on Wednesday.

SEASON POT-ROAST WITH SUGAR AS WELL AS SALT

Combined Flavors of Sugar and Salt Blend Deliciously with Meat

These are days when there are always bargains on the meat counter. A lady who bought a chuck-roast for 45 cents—made a tasteful discovery by cooking it as follows:

Sear and brown both sides of the meat in an iron or pot-roast kettle containing two or three tablespoonfuls of fat. Then sprinkle top surface of the meat with sugar as well as salt. Add about a cupful of water, then cover the kettle and cook for an hour. Turn the meat and sprinkle newly exposed side with sugar and salt. Continue cooking until the meat is tender, adding just enough water to keep the meat from burning. Serve with the gravy which remains in the kettle, thickened with flour if you wish. You'll be surprised at the unusual, full-bodied flavor in the meat as well as in the gravy.

Cheap cuts of lamb respond to this seasoning if you prefer that meat to beef. Vegetables also are more tasteful when a dash of sugar to a pinch of salt is added. Most foods are more delicious with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Society Folk Seen at Theater

"Green Grow the Lilacs" attracted just hundreds and hundreds of folks to the Nixon last night, who went home with pungent, western tunes lilting in their heads. In the one intermission folks crowded into the foyer for a chat and a cigaret.

Among the many distinctive gowns was that worn by Mrs. T. M. Jones. The skirt was of two tiers of ruffled black lace with a bolero jacket of white chiffon having full, flowing cuffs falling from the elbow over the bodice of black chiffon.

And before I talk any more about gowns I want to mention that gracious Dame Rachel Crowdy, who came to town to address the Twentieth Century Club and who stayed to attend a Smith College tea yesterday and to address students at the Pennsylvania College for Women, was in the audience last night with B. Iden Payne.

Black Is Favorite

Mrs. Felix B. Snowdon was there in black velvet, and I believe I had a glipse of Mrs. Dorwin J. Donnelly.

Arriving together were the junior William Christopher Robinsons, the Alexander Laughlin Robinsons and the David Meade Gilmores. Mrs. Robinson wore black crepe, and Mrs. Gilmore chose turquoise blue velvet.

Mrs. Samuel Harden Church wore black chiffon and a wrap of black and gold with a shawl collar of sable.

Mary Mellon McClung wore a gown of dark green velvet, with a matching wrap. Others I noticed were Mrs. Wallace Hurtte Rowe, Jr., in beige chiffon velvet; Mrs. Joseph M. Scribner in black velvet; Mrs. William S. Moorhead, black velvet; Mrs. Frank W. Endmondson, bronze crepe with a coat of gold lame, and Wilhelmina Balken in a quaint gown of off-white lace. Her coat was of white crepe embroidered lavishly in gold and had a collar of mink.

Metallic Fabrics

Mrs. Frank Adair Leovy wore black velvet, and Mrs. George S. Ebbert was there, too. Arriving with her mother, Mrs. George Pearson, was Georgia Pearson. Mrs. Gordon King chose black crepe and a wrap of black velvet and ermine, and Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., was in the audience, and so was Mrs. Mortimer Miller.

A debutante of the season just past, Carolyn Clare Snow, home from Miss Dow's School, was at the theater last night; she wore blue satin with a finger tip jacket of white lapin.

Others I saw were the Reginald Quailes, with Mrs. Quaile in black crepe with a wrap of green brocaded velvet and silver. Suzanne Trimble I had a glimpse of, and Mary and Florence Carroll, I'm sure, I noticed in the audience.

The Arthur P. Woolfolks were theater patrons, too, with Mrs. Woolfolk choosing scarlet crepe. Also attending the play were Mrs. Theodore F. Smith in black velvet, and Mrs. Frank R. Wheeler in black chiffon with an interesting motif of sequins distinguishing the back decolletage.

Now that the undergraduates of the various schools and colleges are home for the Easter holidays, there is no lack of entertaining for them. Yesterday two notable events were given in their honor, one was a luncheon in the Pittsburgh Golf Club for the undergraduates and alumnae of the Dobbs Ferry School. And after the luncheon there was a "movie" in the outdoor tennis court building with pictures of Dobbs Ferry. Mrs. Wallace Hurtte Rowe was chairman of the affair.

Students Honored

The other affair was a tea given by the alumnae for undergraduates of Smith College in the Women's City Club. Mrs. Kirkland Wiley Todd, president of the alumnae association, received in a gown of burmatan brown crepe with a matching hat, and receiving with her were Dame Rachel Crowdy, of London, England, and Geneva, Switzerland, to whom Smith College has given an honorary degree in recognition of her war work and interest in the League of Nations; Mrs. Charles Raisig, in chukker green crepe with a black straw hat; Mrs. Theodore Brown, in navy crepe with a matching hat, and Mrs. Joseph H. Bowman, who wore pirate blue crepe with a black straw turban.

Serving as aides were Mrs. E. P. Buchanan, Betty Nicholson, Georgia Pearson, Mrs. John O'Hara Anderson and Mrs. John Peterson. Mrs. J. Graham Chalfant and Miss Sophronia Roberts poured.

Deafened Hear Talk

Dame Rachel Crowdy Talks Before Century Club On Social Reform

In introducing Dame Rachel Crowdy to the Twentieth Century Club yesterday morning, Mrs. Carroll Miller, lecture chairman, spoke of her as "the most noted Englishwoman of her day." The address which Dame Rachel gave on "International Aspects of Social Reform" was largely an account of what the League of Nations has done in social reform work, but of espcecial interest to the audience was the account of that work in which the speaker herself has been active.

Dame Rachel said somebody had spoken of the League as "the city of lost causes and impossible ideals," but she amended, "the ideals are not impossible and many causes are not lost." The pace at which we live makes internationalism not only a luxury but an absolute necessity, she said as she went on to remark that while the United States "has not been able to take the ultimate responsibility in the League," no other nation has given any greater co-operation in its social work.

She discussed the post-war evils, rehabilitation, traffic in women and children, opium traffic and repatriation of Russian refugees. Between 40,000 and 50,000 Armenian women and children had been deported and sold by the Turks and the astonishing thing the League workers found in this connection was the attitude of mind on the part of the traffickers, some of whom spoke of "making an honest living" through such activities. Those on the League commission appointed to investigate conditions were horrified to find that the average marriage age, even in some states of the Union, is as low as 10 years, Dame Rachel pointed out.

At the opium limitation conference of the League in April, some way will be found to apportion manufacturing quotas to the various countries engaged in it, the speaker believes. She mentioned gradual substitution of crops as the most probable solution to the problem, so far as its economic aspects are concerned.

Indorsement of candidates for state nomination is the principal business being transacted by the executive board at today's district session of the State Federation of Pennsylvania women. Reports from district committees and department chairmen occupied the morning session. In the afternoon, Mrs. Janet McMullen, contralto, is singing, accompanied by Mrs. W. J. Osborne, district chairman of music. The speakers are Mrs. John A. Frick, president of the Federation; Judge Sara Soffel and Mrs. John M. Phillips. Mrs. John F. McKirdy, who is retiring after four years as district president, is in the chair. The meeting is at the Hotel Schenley.

A brilliant assemblage of about 150 guests was entertained last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose N. Diehl, Hobart street, by the Pittsburgh Branch, League of American Pen Women. The occasion was the second recital of compositions by women composers which the National Pen Women's League has sponsored.

Entertain Composers

The program opened with Mary Howe's 1930 prize winning composition, "Cancion Romanesca," played by the Fillion String Quartet. The works of Miss Marianne Genet, Pittsburgh composer, were interpreted by Marjorie Evans Stewart, soprano, and Arthur Davis, tenor, with Miss Genet at the piano. A flower cycle by Dorothy Radde Emery, of Washington, formerly of Pittsburgh, was sung by Evelyn Randall, soprano, with Ferdinand Fillion, violin; Ero Davidson, cello, and Mrs. Emery, piano, accompanying.

Phyllis Fergus (Mrs. Thatcher Hoyt) had come from Chicago to read to her own compositions and in one of her selections she was accompanied by Roe Marsten, baritone, and the quartet, Harlan Randall, baritone, with Mrs. Emery accompanying, interpreted several songs by Pearl Adams, the quartet, Mrs. Emery and Mrs. Randall completing this group. Another Pittsburgh Pen woman, Gertrude Martin Rohrer, contributed three songs to the evening and these were sung by members of the Tuesday Musical Club choral with Dr. Charles N. Boyd directing and Elsie Breese Mitchell accompanying.

A luncheon of 22 covers was given at noon in the Woman's City Club honoring the out-of-two composers and artists. Miss Suzanne Beatty, president, introduced Dorothy DeMuth Watson, national chairman of music, who spoke both at the luncheon and at the recital.

SEMI-SPORTS FROCKS PLAY DUAL ROLES THIS SPRING

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, March 31. — The newest frocks don disguises and lead Jeykll and Hyde lives. It's all very new and delightfully thrilling, investigating the new models that have all sorts of detachable sleeves, scarfs and things, that are so well concealed—or at least their fastenings are—that not even one's best friends can detect anything. And, so, we find a semi-sports frock, capable of holding its own anywhere in town suddenly shedding a scarf and sleeves and proudly preening itself as the most utilitarian sports frock ever. Clever, these dressmakers, don't you think? A frock of this type should be most useful in the wardrobe of the rabid week-ender, as one could get along with a frock of this type, an afternoon frock and a dinner gown, and make the grand success at a most important week-end. We are being helped to travel light, and soon even those women who love to drag their whole wardrobe with them on a week-end visit will have little excuse and certainly no reason for so doing.

WE ARE GLAD to present the first sketch of the new two-in-one frock that is by the clever and practical Lanvin. We present the sketch showing the frock with its full disguise of which you may mentally divest it from the description. The material is white crepe marocain. The long close sleeves are separate and button on beneath the pointed capelets at the shoulder. There is a detachable scarf of red foulard dotted in white and matching a crush belt of this fabric. And now for the secret of the scarf. It is triangular in front and buttons onto the bodice, its mission being to conceal the neckline, which is V shaped. The long narrow ends of the scarf are knotted at one side in back and hang loose to below the waistline.

THUS, WHEN the frock is divested of the long sleeves and the scarf, the frock becomes a wrapped, corded turban of matching foulard to complete the ensemble.

GUILD DRAMA, STOCK PLAY AND NEW PICTURE VIEWED BY CRITICS

'Green Grow the Lilacs' Turns the Cowboy Into a Lyric

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Something of the big-eyed incredulity of the little city girl who saw a cow for the first time must have seized some of the elite at the Theater Guild opening last night, "Green Grow the Lilacs" is so different. This drama by Lynn Riggs shows a corner of America at a moment of new birth—and catches the authentic atmosphere in a web of poetry. In fact, at times there is more atmosphere than action. But the whole picture is one of large truth, although some of these cowboys in the Nixon do philosophize more than they should and are obviously preparing for the concert stage.

George Seibel

It is the West, but a West more like that of Hamlin Garland than that of Bret Harte. It is Indian Territory before it became Oklahoma, at the nick of time when the cattle were retreating before the threshers. And the people of this period, seen in this drama, are human beings, not the rip-roaring caricatures of the ordinary Wild West novel or the old-style melodrama.

It is a real piece of folk life from the page of the recent past—put together with much poetry, much humor, and some dramatic skill.

It is not as ornamental as "Porgy," not as inexorable as "Desire Under the Elms," but sparks from both those plays have evidently fallen into Lynn Riggs' dramatic workshop.

The cowboys, farmhands and girls who form the singing curtain for the separate scenes play an important part in keeping the audience under the spell of the prairie tamed by the plow.

IT'S A SIMPLE STORY

To the ordinary playmaker there would hardly seem to be any drama in the simple story.

The cowboy hero comes courting the farm girl heroine. He is played by Franchot Tone, who puts real zest into his acting, to atone for having had to play a sawdust doll the last time he was here with Lenore Ulric in "Pagan Lady." She is played by June Walker, who plays the unsophisticated maid without sticky sentimentality. Both are quite as pastoral as anything could be from Broadway.

The cowboy hero finds the hired hand has cast an evil eye on the girl, who is afraid of what he'll do if she dismisses him. The scene between these two men in the Smokehouse is full of tense drama.

When the hired hand reveals his evil purposes, the girl fires him, and turns to the cowboy lover for protection. At their wedding, culminating in a riotous "shivaree," this dastard sets the haystacks afire and is stabbed with his own knife while attacking the hero.

So far the play is plausible and natural, though rather too neatly arranged for absolute naturalism.

HERE WE STOP BELIEVING

But the last scene of all strains credulity. The hero in jail! Never! Human nature is even stronger in a frontier community than in the effete East, and everybody on the range would have gone bail for Curly McClain. Especially as Franchot Tone plays him—those farm girls would have stormed the Bastille to free him.

Especially for killing such a villain as Jeeter Fry—especially as Richard Hale plays him, all skunk and no cologne.

For this cast plays as smoothly and sincerely as the usual Theater Guild cast. Two amusing character studies are contributed by Clare Woodbury as the philosophic aunt and Ruth Chorpenning as the fat girl. And every character is a character—there is more portraiture than drama.

Perhaps that helps the illusion of life. That illusion is strongly sustained by the production, the scenery, all the little things that fill in the corners of the picture. For a moment, when Lee Strasberg comes on as a Peddler, one thinks there is going to be a vaudeville intermezzo, but Strasberg does his share in keeping the scene from burlesque with a deft Warfield touch.

The greatest share of the credit for the play, of course, should go to Herbert J. Biberman, who directed the production, and to Raymond Sovey, who designed the ingenious scenery showing the farm homestead from all sides.

The last play of the Theater Guild season is worthy of its traditions—and is so different that it looks like a brindle cow meandering down Fifth Avenue.

STONE-CASTING IN PITT IS EFFECTIVE DRAMA ON OLD THEME

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The topic for this week's sermon in the Pitt was uttered some nineteen hundred years ago when a member of "the oldest profession in the world" was told to go and sin no more as no man had cast a stone at her because the condition of being sinless was imposed upon the one who would be first to cast.

It seems that the Magdalene of that day still wanders about, here and there where stone-casting might be considered a sport and that her influence still is potent to arouse the same effective restriction as when it first was given as a gentle rebuke.

IS EFFECTIVE DRAMA

Hence, the title, "The Eternal Magdalene," given to the dramatic play being presented by the George Sharp Players in the Pitt. Written by Robert McLaughlin and originally produced quite a few years ago, "The Eternal Magdalene" is the feminine angle of "The Servant in the House" theme, but is lacking the spirituality of the Charles Rann Kennedy play. Nevertheless it is quite effective drama if one overlooks what appears to be a too strong sentimentalism and a rather inexcusable exaggeration of character, faults not altogether of the company alone, but, to some extent, of the author also.

Mollie Cohn, guest star with Mr. Sharp's company, plays the title role, and plays it very well, too. She invests it with an alluring mysticism that is sufficiently shaded with realism to make it convincing and natural, reaching a quite dramatic apex in an expression of the eternal plea that all judges of conduct be first aware of their own weaknesses.

CHANGES HIS MIND

Fred Sullivan, one of the original members of the Pitt organization, returned, also has a vivid part as a business man who had forgotten the old stricture against casting stones until it is brought back to him so impressively that, within a few hours, he changes his mind about what is proper to do in a vice crusade he has instigated as a side issue of a religious campaign. He, too, does well in his characterization.

Robert Fiske nicely portrays a friendly newspaper reporter, whose lines recall the fact that Toledo once had a "golden rule" mayor named Sam Jones. Billy Link is prominent as a clergyman, the like of whose existence in real life is a grave doubt. Peggy Dougherty, Hugh Banks, Horace Sinclair, Laurette Brown, John Thorne, Katherine Maison and Norman Porter all help out efficiently.

MR. ARLEN AT HOME ON ATHLETIC FIELDS

Richard Arlen, who snares wild horses on the western range as the star of the gangster-western picture, "Gun Smoke," is considered one of the best all-around athletes of the screen. He probably is at home upon more fields of athletic endeavor than any other actor in pictures.

At one time Arlen was a professional hockey player. This game is one of the fastest in the world. To be able to play ice hockey quick eyesight, skating ability and flashing judgment are needed.

It was Arlen's ability to swim under water that landed him his first chance as an extra. As swimming instructor of the St. Paul Athletic Club, Arlen left a wide circle of acquaintances and friends in the Minnesota city. There, too, he was expert on the club's rowing team.

Another branch of adventurous sportsmanship claimed Arlen during the early days of the World War, when he joined the British Royal Air Force, as a pilot. This thrilling experience came in handy for him when he received his first real opportunity in pictures as one of the leads in "Wings," an epic of the war in the air.

In the fistic arts, Arlen also ranks high and this again comes in handy in the he-man encounters he is called on to engage in during the course of his film work. In "Gun Smoke," Arlen finds himself in a terrific rough-and-tumble with the doughty William Boyd, remembered as Sergt. Quirt in the play "What Price Glory."

LONELY ROAD IS FATE OF DOCTOR'S WIFE IN THE WARNER

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

He is there at the beginning of things and at the end, officiating at the dawn of life and at its close. He is the first to be called—and the last to be paid. He is the doctor.

And she is there waiting for him to return from the beginning of things and from the end. She is the first to have claim on him—and the last to have him. She is the doctor's wife.

These two important characters of life are glorified, or something, in "Doctors' Wives," new picture in the Warner. It is a romantic drama of a successful physician, who has an office full of women patients, and his young wife, who has a head full of doubts. She wonders if it is professional interest only that makes her husband late for dinner and takes him out nights?

A LONESOME LADY

Warner Baxter portrays the doctor. He accords the part intelligent treatment. He gives it a touch of realism. And Joan Bennett plays the wife. What she lacks in emotional expression she has in attractiveness. She gets sympathy for her lonesome lady.

Victor Varconi makes an impression as a physician who says he hasn't time for love. But when Miss Bennett makes a solo visit to his apartment, the sight of her afterwards makes you think he found time after all. Anyway, this all leads to a climax in a hospital operating room, with the eternal triangle as the participant. And, after a little more film footage, comes the happy ending.

WHAT PRICE BEAUTY!

Technically, the picture may have its faults. We doubt that even a movie heroine would be exempt from the stern makeup that goes with an operating room. But the picture entertains. Its theme is presented with an exacting restraint. There is no sloppy sentiment. The doctor-hero is not called upon to choose between saving his child's life or that of a neighbor's child. In fact, he has no child.

Anyway, after seeing the picture you know, if you didn't know before, that home for a doctor is just a place to be called away from and home for his wife is just a place to be left alone in.

BUC UNDER ANESTHETIC BARES PLANS

IN ADDITION TO having three of the keenest minds in baseball against him when he matched wits with Barney Dreyfuss, Harry Pullman and Fred Clarke in attempting to raid the playing ranks of the Pittsburgh club during the war days of three decades ago, Ban Johnson was thwarted by a turn of fate so unusual as to rival the wildest fiction.

Jesse Tannehill

In 1901, his first efforts to induce Pirate players to jump to the newly-formed American League, except for the luring away of Third Baseman Jimmy Williams by John McGraw, were checked by the summary release in July of Fred Ely, one of the greatest fielding shortstops of all time, who, it had been discovered, was acting as Johnson's secret emissary in the Buccaneer fold. Ely promptly was given a job by the Athletics.

But in 1902 another movement of the same sort, much wider in scope, was started among the Pirates and it had taken definite shape and made considerable progress before it was discovered in a strange manner. The "plot" was detected and partly frustrated as the result of disclosures made unconsciously by one of the local players involved, Jesse Tannehill, lefthand pitching star.

IN ALIGHTING FROM a trolley car near the old Arlington Hotel in Sixth street some time before Tannehill had slipped off the step and suffered a dislocation of his pitching arm at the shoulder. After he had returned to duty, the Bucs were in Atlantic City one day for an exhibition game and in spite of the doctors' orders to exercise care in the use of his arm, Tannehill engaged in a friendly wrestling match in a hotel room with Jimmy Burke, extra infielder.

During the tussle, Tannehill's arm slipped out of the socket again. To have it put back in place it was necessary to remove him to a hospital and put him under an anesthetic. By a strange prank of fate, the pitcher requested that President Dreyfuss remain near him, the one man in the world whom he would have wished not to be present if he had known what he was about to do. For, while under the anesthetic, Tannehill proceeded to "talk his head off" and tell everything he knew about the American League's operations in the Pirate camp, implicating half a dozen players, including himself, and laying bare the whole "plot" to undermine the Pittsburgh club.

DISCOVERING IN THIS manner that Catcher Jack O'Connor had succeeded Ely as Johnson's agent among the Buccaneers, Dreyfuss, Pulliam and Clarke set about to break up the scheme.

When Johnson and his lieutenants came to Pittsburgh for a secret meeting with Pirate players, the heads of the local club broke in on them during the session at the old Lincoln Hotel in Penn avenue, now the Mayfair, with the result that Ban and his aides beat a hasty retreat in confusion, descending on the freight elevator and hiding behind several garbage cans, which constituted its cargo.

IT WAS DISCOVERED through Tannehill's revelations that the lefthander himself, Pitcher Jack Chesbro, Third Baseman Tommy Leach, Catchers O'Connor and Harry Smith and Outfielder Lefty Davis had agreed to jump. O'Connor was released in August, Tannehill in September, and Davis at the end of the season. Leach and Smith were induced to stay, but Chesbro made the leap. On another occasion between seasons Pulliam spotted Johnson on a trip to Worcester, Mass., to get First Baseman Kitty Brensfield. Taking Johnson's shoes from under his berth and hiding them, Pulliam made it necessary for Ban to ride through to Boston while he (Pulliam) got off at Worcester and signed Bransfield to a Pittsburgh contract.

Jack Mitchell

BASEBALL FANS THROUGHOUT the country have declined to take seriously the yarn about a 17-year-old girl named Jack Mitchell having signed to pitch for the Chattanooga club of the Southern Association, "the first of her sex ever to sign a contract in organized ball."

But Joe Engel, owner of the club, crosses his heart and asks you to believe that there's no hokum about it, that Miss Mitchell has signed a contract, validated by her father, will get a thorough tryout, and will pitch against Babe Ruth tomorrow or Thursday in one of the two exhibition games with the New York Yankees.

ENGEL DENIES THAT it's just a circus trick to bring out larger crowds to see the Yankee games. He declares the girl was signed as a real minor league prospect on the strength of the ability she displayed in semi-pro games. Moreover, he says he has taken out a $10,000 life and pitching-arm insurance policy on the young woman.

Jack has just returned from Dallas, Tex., where she played basketball for a Chattanooga team in a national tournament. Her home is in Memphis, Tenn., where Dazzy Vance, pitching for Memphis and Rochester, lived in the same house with the Mitchell family, first started her toward baseball around in 1920. Miss Mitchell will be chaperoned by her mother on any trips she may make with the Chattanooga club, Engel concludes, in sticking to his story.

THE ABSENCE OF Mike Donohue, who has gone to the Pacific Coast League, will be the only change noted in the umpiring staffs of the two major leagues when the season opens two weeks from today. The National League has bought Charles Donnelly from the International loop, but will let him continue to work in the minors until a vacancy occurs. The National League staff will be made up of Klem, Stark, Quigley, Jorda, Rigler, McGrew, Clarke, Scott, Reardon, Magerkurth, Moran and Pfirman. The American League arbiters will be Connolly, Campbell, Dineen, Geisel, Guthrie, Hildebrand, MacGowan, Moriarty, Nallin, Ormsby, Owens and Van Grafilin.

THOUGH THE BASKETBALL coaches at their annual clinic decided to leave the rules unchanged for another year and took steps only to urge uniform officiating and interpretation of the code in the East and West between which a difference now exists, they were warned that another thing which they must do is to speed up the game.

That basketball, unless it pulls itself together and puts on more speed, is going to be replaced by hockey, was the warning sounded. Lew Andreas, of Syracuse, president of the association, was particularly emphatic on that point. "If you coaches don't speed up our game, some of you soon will be wearing skates," he said.

THE ARGUMENT AS to the relative merits of Mike Hall and Sun Beau as race horses is not ended. Willis Sharpe Kilmer is not satisfied with the Agua Caliente handicap result, and still insists that Sun Beau is the best horse over a route on this side of the Atlantic.

Paul Berlenbach

He will grab the first chance offered to prove his contention, and has entered Sun Beau for the Arlington Cup and the Arlington handicap in July, both mile-and-a-quarter races, with the expectation that Mike Hall will be one of his opponents.

THE LATEST OLD fighter who refuses to believe that he can't come back and be as good as ever is Paul Berlenbach. He has been out of the game almost four years, but he's going to start on the return trip tonight, when he meets Eddie Clark, Negro veteran, in a four-round bout in Brooklyn. Berlenbach, who won the world light-heavyweight championship from Mike McTigue in 1925 and lost it to Jack Delaney in 1926, beating Young Stribling among other challengers in the meantime, is over 30, but has been idle so long it will be surprising if he gets very far in his attempted comeback. He says he is doing it because his old earnings are tied up in trust funds and the interest is defaulted on some of the bonds. He needs money badly, he adds.

LOS ANGELES, March 31.—Remy Kremer, star pitcher of the Pirates, and one of the outstanding hurlers of the diamond game, has not yet signed a Pittsburgh contract, according to a reliable report here today.

Kremer, it was said, is not satisfied with the contract offered him and there has been considerable haggling. The information at hand is interesting. The French ace went up the scale of success in such a fast manner he was paid as high as $14,000 per season. Then he had a mediocre season and was cut a thousand or two.

ASKS CUT BE LIFTED

The reduction felt by Kremer hurt his pride and Remy went out to show his employers he could repeat on his great form. He was one of only two National League pitchers to win 20 games last season, Altoona Pat Malone being the other.

Kremer wanted to have the earlier salary cut lifted and some kind of an argument arose. It is very unusual for a player to be taking part in games without having signed a contract.

Reports among the Buccos today were to the effect that Remy would sign before the club leaves California.

ONLY A DEPRESSION

The Pirates, being true representatives of Western Pennsylvania, are Republicans, so Manager Ens says it isn't a panic—it's only a depression. But the Cubs have gone Democratic and thus far it has been a landslide in the California primaries involving the two National League teams.

Possessors of five victories in a row in the Native Son commonwealth, the Bruins today were in a mood to josh the ruffled Buccaneers, who will make another attempt to stem the Chicago offensive this afternoon. The men of Hornsby snowed under the BRADENTON, Fla. — (AP.) — After being barred from the St. Louis Cardinals' training camp here for two days, Pitcher Dizzy Dean has been restored to good standing by Manager Gabby Street. Repentant and tearful, the 20-year-old Texan asked Street for another chance and was given permission to work out with the team. LOS ANGELES.—(AP.)—Lynn Nelson and Leroy Herrman, right handed pitchers, and William Campbell, catcher, have been released to the Los Angeles club by the Chicago Cubs. They will engage in another combat on the same green cloth tonight at 8 o'clock and again at 9:30 at the Kalmer Parlors, Forbes and Atwood streets.

Cochran won yesterday afternoon's match, 200 to 89, at balkline, while at three cushions Hoppe copped, 25 to 2. In the evening Hoppe had a run of 136 to beat Cochran, 200 to 23, at balkline, but he lost the three-cushion encounter, 25 to 12. Cochran's high run in the afternoon combat was 77. Hoppe having stepped off to a lead with a run of 73. Yesterday's balkline scores:

Heavy Title Bout Site Undecided

CHICAGO, March 31.—(INS.)—Participants in the conference here with William Carey, president of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, regarding the coming Stribling-Schmeling heavyweight championship bout indicated today that an agreement on the site had not yet been reached.

Carey would make no comment on the session which began yesterday, but said that any announcement would come from Sheldon Clark, representing the Illinois Madison Square Garden Corporation. Others attending the conference were Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, and George Getz, Illinois Athletic Commission member.

Rookie Tales

NO. 13—LLOYD VERNON KENNEDY

LOS ANGELES, March 31.—When a lad reaches the pinnacle of national fame in the fascinating sphere of track and field sports, his cup of joy naturally overruns, but to Lloyd Vernon (Irish) Kennedy, the lure of baseball in an obscure bush league carried a thrill that was quite unique, to say the least.

Irish Kennedy is one of the finest athletic specimens in the Pirate squad, and when he makes the jump from a "thrower" to a "pitcher" you are likely to hear from this stalwart Missourian.

L. V. Kennedy

Kennedy was distinctively a "thrower" when he reached the Paso Robles camp. Under the tutelage of Otis Crandall, than whom there have been few smarter hurlers, Irish has improved almost 100 per cent in the art of pitching. Already he has mastered a change-of-pace pitch, a delivery that was as strange to him as a lower berth when he received the big league summons.

DECATHLON WINNER

"I guess it was because I entered from such a small college that they gave me so much prominence for winning the decathlon," said the Penn relays champ as he discussed his career. "I competed as a student from Warrensburg Teachers' College, of Warrensburg, Mo., and the school is not well known outside of its own section. Certainly it was a big thing in my life to win the decathlon, and I was just about ready to call it a day when I tossed off the one-mile run after taking part in the other nine events."

But Irish is built for endurance as well as speed. He owns one of the fastest balls in the Pirate camp, too, but already he has learned that you cannot throw high, fast balls to good hitters and expect to lead a peaceful and well-ordered life. Just a few days ago, in Los Angeles, Vernon tried to throw two high "swifters" past George Harper and Ray Jacobs. The two offerings brought two homers and victory to the Angeles. But those are the things a boy from a horse-and-buggy circuit must learn, and Irish is learning.

TAUGHT BY CRANDALL

Wise Otis Crandall offered his pupil sage advice. Said he:

"Vernon, when you get that pitch up where they can see it good, it is already hit."

Vernon was in the Class D Mississippi Valley circuit last season when Scoops Carey was sent over to watch him. Carey saw enough in one day to O. K. the proposed purchase. Kennedy came from the same district that produced Glenn Wright, Dazzy Vance, Zack Wheat and many another big athlete of renown.—CHARLES J. DOYLE.

ABT MANAGER AT STANTON

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

J. B. (Johnny) Abt, erstwhile manager at the South Hills Country Club, has been engaged by the Stanton Heights Golf Club, in East Liberty, it was learned today, and will assume his new duties this week.

Abt has been at South Hills for several years, having resigned his position there only recently. He is rated by fellow club managers as one of the smartest men in the business and unquestionably will be a big asset to Stanton Heights, which is anticipating one of its biggest social and golf seasons.

Georgie Swankie, who has been a fixture at the Sharon Country Club, has resigned his position there, and will be seen from now on at the new Duquesne Golf Club—a berth coveted by many district professionals. Swankie was affiliated with Sharon for no less than 15 years. The signing of George sets aside all rumors of Eddie Towns, or any of the other applicant getting the job. Swankie has worked for the Pup's Foot, Edgewood and Brackenridge Heights clubs in the past.

James A. Fownes, of Oakmont, chairman of the Pennsylvania Golf Association handicapping committee, is receiving many applications for handicap ratings for this year in the committee's office, 1108 Farmers Bank Building. Lois Miller, secretary, and it is expected that the handicap list this year will be greater than ever before, because the P. G. A. has taken under its wing for handicapping purposes the three major golf organizations of the Keystone state—the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association, Central Pennsylvania Golf Association and the Philadelphia Golf Association. Persons desiring handicaps should send their three best scores as of last season, their club handicap, and $1 fee to Miss Miller as quickly as possible. District golfers will not be eligible to W. P. G. A. handicap tournaments without them.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

GAME TONIGHT
Chicago at New York Rangers.

LAST NIGHT'S RESULT
Boston 3—Les Canadiens 1

By CARL W. SHATTO

The Yellow Jackets will be out to shake loose the International Hockey League crown worn by the Cleveland Indians when they meet the Tribesmen in the fourth game of the circuit's annual championship series at Duquesne Garden tonight.

Because they suffered three defeats in their first three played games, the Schooley icemen are not regarded as being eligible to perch the crown on their [illegible] brows, but they do regard themselves as being both eligible and able to knock the prized headgear down over the Indians' eyes, and that the defending champs will be able to offer any consequential resistance when either Buffalo or Windsor reaches out to lift it.

LAST CHANCE

Tonight's game will mark the Jackets' last opportunity to avenge certain indignities suffered at the hands of the Clevelanders this season. The Indians jeopardized the locals' chances in the regular campaign by breaking Gordy Fraser's hand in a game here about a month ago, and then added insult to injury by pulling out an unearned 2-1 decision over Pittsburgh in the playoffs lid-lifter in Cleveland.

The locals' impression of the opener in the Forest City is that the Tribesmen used their sticks for cracking enemy heads and their hands for advancing the puck. Albie Cox and Roger Smith were well pummeled in the Cleveland engagement, in which Young is said to have tossed in the winning goal with a neat, but illegal, pitch.

As a result of suffering a setback in Windsor in their second playoffs start, the Indians' chances of retaining the championship already are somewhat uncertain, and it is no secret that they plan to use Pittsburgh as a stepping stone to greater security in the title scramble. These intentions are very much at difference with those of the Jackets, and only three periods of wild and torrid battling will determine which team is to have its way.

SCHOOLEY ON JOB

President-Manager Roy D. Schooley, who was too ill to accompany his team to Buffalo Tuesday, will signal his return to the driver's seat tonight by making several lineup changes. McCurry is to return to left wing on the starting front line, and McGuire will be transferred from left wing to center on the second forward trio. Fields, whose position McGuire is to take over, will help Berlett make up a new defense combination. Reise and Smith, who have been carrying the defense burden, will be used as spares.

Schooley and Coach Charles Reid expect the locals' new battle formation to give them the punch needed for a creditable finish. In addition to the Cleveland game tomorrow, Windsor is to be met at Windsor on Thursday and here on Saturday. The locals' finish in the regular campaign convinced all and sundry that they are well endowed with the "old fight," and it won't surprise Pittsburgh fans if their favorites finish the playoffs with three wins to balance their three defeats.

Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

BILOXI, Miss., March 31.—There is no kidding about that female pitcher being signed up by the Chattanooga club. She makes her debut this week against the Yankees. I understand Babe Ruth already quit chewing tobacco.

Nick Altrock

The Chattanooga management is also in a huddle figuring what is the right etiquette for informing a lady she has been batted out of the box. The boys don't know whether they should send some scented soap and an embroidered towel out to her as a suggestion for a shower bath or the manager should waltz out to the pitcher's box, offer his arm and suggest they sit out this inning on the bench.

Three cheers for co-educational baseball.

They can take the Jackie Rodgers-Johnny Datto "feud" and embalm it in mothballs after the third meeting between the pair in Motor Square Garden last night.

This bout was as bad as the first two between the pair were good, and throughout and at the finish it drew a shower of raspberries from the crowd, which openly accused the pair of "doing business." Of course, such a charge is hard to prove, but a prearranged fight between two so-called deadly rivals hardly could have been more messy, more lacking in accurate punching and less satisfying in action than this one turned out to be. Several times in the latter rounds, with the fans demanding a run for their money, Referee Al Grayber stepped between the rivals and warned Datto to quit pulling his punches and step in and fight his fight, while, on another occasion, he went to both corners between rounds and ordered the pair to speed up.

SPLIT ON DECISION

The judges split on the decision at the conclusion. Frank Brown calling it a draw, while L. K. Meininger voted for Rodgers, and Referee Grayber also voted for the local man, giving Jackie his first win in the three starts with the Cleveland Filipino. So far as the disgruntled capacity crowd was concerned, a "no contest" verdict probably would have been more popular, and, if a decision really had to be made, Datto again was the actual winner. He won six of the 10 rounds, outclassed Jackie in the early stages and contributed what efforts were made toward developing a fight until he tired in the last two rounds and had to take it on the run. The only thing that could be said in favor of Rodgers was that he finished in better condition than his opponent, and he figured to do this after fighting only one round and a small fraction of another in the first eight, stalling and mauling ineffectively at close quarters the remainder of the way.

Whereas Rodgers was on the floor four times in the second round of their first bout, on New Year's night, and Datto was down three times in the first four rounds of the second meeting, in the same ring, on February 9, last night's clash was singularly free from knockdowns or thrills, only a few effective punches being landed.

DATTO TAKES LEAD

Datto got off to a big lead in the first three rounds, during which he toyed with Rodgers, who remained in a shell, tapping away at close quarters and seldom leading a punch. Late in the fourth round, Rodgers came to life for the first time when he nailed Datto in Jackie's corner and made him break ground as he followed up with a barrage of punches that gave him a slight edge in the round.

Rodgers continued the assault throughout the fifth round, with Datto going suddenly almost entirely on the defensive. The Filipino appeared to be shaken up by rights to the head and body early in the round. And, at the finish, Rodgers was aiming pot-shot rights for the jaw, but showing poor marksmanship.

Along about this time it began to appear that there had been method in Rodgers' lazy early milling at close quarters and that he had tired out Datto and prepared him for the "kill," but, just when the crowd began to sense that it was to be a Rodgers night, Jackie went back into his shell to let Datto spear him with sloppy lefts and right uppercuts through a listless sixth round.

CROWD DEMANDS ACTION

The seventh round was so tame that the crowd began to hoot and jeer. Rodgers was merely going through the motions, stalking Datto around the ring and stopping flocks of lefts for his efforts. Before the next round began, the referee went first to Datto's corner and then to Rodgers' corner and warned both to open up and fight.

Midway in the next round, Grayber again heeded the cries of the cash customers, stepping between the boxers and halting what little action there was to tell Datto to put more steam behind his punches. As Datto uttered a protest, Rodgers flashed a spurt that momentarily carried the Filipino before him, but it was not sufficiently prolonged to win the round.

Again Grayber was on Datto in his corner before the bell rang for the ninth round. The session again saw the tide of battle change suddenly and inexplicably, Datto dropping his role of the light-hitting aggressor to let Rodgers rush him about the ring and score more or less solidly with both fists. A right to the jaw shook Datto,

Boxer Stopped As Mother Lies Dead

"The show must go on."

That is the slogan of the stage troupers, and the tradition was carried on in the ring at Motor Square Garden last night by little Jackie Griffiths, Negro boxer, of the Hill, who was knocked out in the third round of the opening bout by Joey Bazzone, of McKeesport, while his mother lay dead in her home, 829 Kirkpatrick street.

Mrs. Sarah Howard, the mother, died from pneumonia in the West Penn Hospital Sunday night, and will be buried tomorrow. Griffiths experienced considerable difficulty in obtaining the match at the "big club." Motor Square Garden, and, hiding his grief, gamely went through with it rather than cause a last-minute switch in the program.

BARNARD RITES ARE HELD

CLEVELAND, March 31.—(AP)—Hundreds of persons—baseball fans, players and former players, bankers, businessmen and laborers—passed by last night to pay final tribute to Ernest Sargent Barnard, whose career in the national pastime, ranging from player to club owner and American League president, was ended by death last Friday.

Baseball notables and other friends and associates are gathered here to attend final rites this afternoon. Among the greats here are Kenesaw M. Landis, national baseball commissioner; Harry Grabiner, secretary of the White Sox and personal representative of Charles A. Comiskey, owner. They, with the other club owners of the American League, and John A. Heydler, president of the National League, will act as honorary pallbearers.

Mrs. Mary Sargent-Barnard, of Parkersburg, W. Va., mother of the late league head, was here with the widow.

Rev. Miles A. Krumbine, pastor of Plymouth Church, in Shaker Heights, and personal friend of Barnard, will participate in the funeral ceremony at Masonic Temple, under auspices of Allenby Commandery No. 73, Knights Templar.

After burial in the mausoleum at Knollwood Cemetery, attending baseball leaders will leave for Spencer, Ind., to attend the funeral tomorrow of Ban B. Johnson, whom Barnard succeeded as league president four years ago and who followed the Clevelander in death by a few hours.

REMY KREMER IS HOLDOUT

Pittsburghers in yesterday's scrap, the returns being 18 to 8.

Manager Ens today put it up to Kremer to stop the Cubs. The ace of the Bucco squad, who is reported as unsigned, did not look very impressive in the last appearance on the slab, but the Pirate chief expects better than this in the second game of the present series.

Rogers Hornsby opines "it ought to be a good game." The Rajah says he will send Pat Malone out to buckle up the Pittsburgh offensive, and Altoona Pat has been known to do this very thing to the queen's taste. Well, anyhow, it looks like a lively scrap.

Paul Waner's leg is still a bit sore and Ens is not taking any chances with him. It may be that Brother Paul's influence would have turned one or two of the games that were dropped by close margins, but that is a horse of another color.

Ens is provoked over the showing of his players this spring, but there is nothing much he can do. Aside from one or two luminaries who are suffering from hurts, the Pittsburgh squad is in good shape. Yet the team is taking it on the chin regularly. The pitchers are to blame for a lot of it, they finding it hard to keep the ball in advantageous spots. Most of them are throwing the old home-run ball, and that is a sad thing for any manager.

The Bears jumped all over Heinie Meine, Andy Bednar and George Grant as they copped yesterday. Manager Hornsby was not in uniform, he staying in the stands out of respect to his mother-in-law, who was buried yesterday at St. Louis. The Bruins were directed by Hornsby's able assistants, Ray Schalk and Charley O'Leary. Jake May and Recruit Warneke pitched for the Cubs.

It was a nip-and-tuck battle until the eighth, when the Bruins ran away from the Freebooters. The eighth produced five tallies and the enemy added four more in the ninth. In all, the Bears collected 22 safeties, Stephenson and Grace connecting for homers. The Pirates were credited with a dozen safe blows.

FLOOR TITLE AT STAKE

The Catholic Lyceum League floor title will be at stake tonight when St. John's rout St. Joseph's battle at Duquesne University in the third and deciding contest of their playoff series. It will start at 9 o'clock.

BOWIE MUTUELS

SOUTHEASTERN GOLF LEADERS DEADLOCKED

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 31.—(AP.)—Prizes totaling $5,000 awaited the first 26 players to reach the end of the golden trail today in the Southeastern open golf tournament.

Willie MacFarlane, New York, and Paul Runyon, White Plains, N. Y., entered the final round three strokes ahead of the field.

They shot consistent golf yesterday to turn in 36-hole totals of 142 each, par for the Forrest Hill-Ricker course.

Clarence Hackney, Atlantic City, N. J., and Bill Mehlhorn, Chicago, shot 145's to tie for third place.

The battle between Gene Sarazen, New York, and Johnny Golden, Norton, Conn., to determine the season's biggest money winner, failed to materialize when Golden did not enter the tournament. Sarazen was well down in the list when he shot a 151.

Joe Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y., Walter Hagen, Detroit, and Bobby Cruickshank, Purchase, N. Y., were in a tie for fifth place with 146 each.

Dave Oglivie, Augusta pro, was alone at 147. Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn, Craig Wood, Deal, N. J., and Johnny Farrell, Mamaroneck, N. Y., scored 148 each.

First prize will be $1,000. Second place will net the winner $750, and third place, $600.

MISS ORCUTT MEDALIST

PINEHURST, N. C., March 31.—(AP.)—Maureen Orcutt, Englewood, N. J., scored a 75 to win medal honors in the 18-hole qualifying round of the twenty-ninth annual North and South tournament and set a competitive course record here yesterday.

Her 75 was two strokes better than Glenna Collett's record of 77 and 1926, which was equaled yesterday by Virginia Van Wie, Chicago, who finished second.

Four strikes behind in third place came Martha Parker, New York, Metropolitan champion, with 81. She had three birdies under men's par.

Tied for fourth at 82 were Edith Quier, Reading, Pa., who was runner-up to Miss Collett last year, and the veteran Mrs. O. S. Hill, Kansas City.

All scores of 99 or better qualified for the first flight. Mrs. S. F. Wadsworth, Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Jay Lee, New York, tied at 92, and played off for the championship flight position, the former winning on the third extra hole.

DUFF VICTOR

OCALA, Fla., March 31.—The first annual winter golf tournament held on the course of the Ocala Highlands Club was won by William H. Duff, II, of Oakmont. The match went to 20 holes, the Pittsburgher taking the cup from F. C. Anderson, of Ocala.

At the tournament were the following Pittsburghers: Mr. and Mrs. Morse Sloan, W. L. Hankey, P. W. Morgan, A. T. Morgan, Dr. Carl McKee, John Hughes, James Strickler and Mr. and Mrs. William H. Duff, II, and son. Ellsworth Giles, Jr., set the course record with a 74, two over par.

Ohio Pin Star Rolls Perfect Score

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., March 31.—C. H. (Red) Makeever, deputy county surveyor, who a year ago, after a luckless evening at a local bowling alley, dropped his ball into Tuscarawas River from the South Side Bridge, yesterday, while rolling single-handed here, compiled his 300 score—a perfect mark.

Chillysauce

Rogers Hornsby is all kicked in over Shortstop Bill Jurges, Reading graduate, who subbed at second for the Rajah yesterday. The sturdy recruit is a fleet performer who seems to be a standout among the Cub rookies.

"You can have Crosetti and I'll take Jurges," was the positive statement of Hornsby to this writer concerning the International League.

Hornsby thinks he has a fine ball club. He has so many pitchers he will have quite a task in selecting his starters. Jack May looks like a different performer in the Chicago lineup.

Lefty Grimm appears to be on the verge of another big season. The colorful one was a big feature of yesterday's contest. Grimm entertained with a lot of lively chatter. His hitting was timely and hard.

Hazen Cuyler is another former Bucco who is keen for the bell. The best outfielder in the National League, Cuyler seems even faster than before. His arm is such a threat that Lloyd Waner yesterday refused to try to go from first to third when Thevenow singled behind him into right on the hit-and-run play. On other right fielders, Lloyd probably would have taken a chance, but our boys know from experience that it is best to play safe when the rocket is in Kiki's territory.

Guest of Poreda Gets Excited, Dies After Fight

NEW YORK, March 31.—(AP.)—The excitement that prevailed in Madison Square Garden last night when Stanley Poreda, Jersey City youngster, was given a 10-round decision over Johnny Risko, was too much for Rudy Hasse, of Delawanna, N. J.

He attended the fight as Poreda's guest. When the verdict was announced, he slumped down in his seat, unconscious. He died a few minutes later, presumably from heart disease. He was 50 years old.

LOCALS COP A. B. C. CASH

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 31.—In the heaviest day of pin-slugging of the annual American Bowling Congress tournament here, Pittsburgh and Braddock bowlers yesterday were not to be denied certain portions of the prize fund.

They did not hit exceptionally high, but managed to get over the top in good shape. Braddock particularly. One Pittsburgh pair, G. Antic, Sr., and A. Hogel, shot a winning 1158 in the doubles.

Braddock's best bet in this event was G. Ziacan and E. Shepherd. They hit 1151 in spite of a final game of 345. Ziacan came right back in the singles with a handsome pay figure of 668, in which his opening game of 243 was high. His fine singles effort carried him into the all-events money, with a nine-game total of 1832.

F. Parlock, of Braddock, after a brace of 235 games as a starter fell to 187 to gain a 653 in the singles.

Iroquois No. 2, Pittsburgh, shot a 2594 to land the outside money. Its games were 901, 833 and 860.

Several changes occurred among the leaders in the doubles division. Bill Roche and Steve Balog, Toledo, took fourth place with a 1721 total; Pat Downing and Cecil Walker, Toronto, seventh, 1255, and John Feher and Frank Morris, Indianapolis, eighth, 1247. The all-events and single leaders remained unchanged. Yesterday's Pittsburgh district scores:

STAR PITCHER JOINS MATES IN TRAINING

NEW YORK, March 31.—(INS.)—Dazzy Vance, star pitcher of the Brooklyn Robins, today ceased to be a holdout. He wired the Brooklyn National League headquarters from Florida that he would sign for the 1931 season at a salary of $23,000. He had been holding out for $25,000.

Vance will join the Robins at Macon, Ga., this afternoon. He was the last of the Brooklyn holdouts.

PLAYERS FIGHT COACH BAN

NEW YORK, March 31.—(AP.)—Opposition to the recent decision of officials of the Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball League barring coaches from the benches during the playing of league games, has developed among Columbia players, and threatened to spread to other teams in the circuit.

Edward Obey, of Pittsburgh, captain of the Lion squad, sent a circular letter to the captains of the Pennsylvania, Dartmouth, Yale, Princeton and Cornell nines, comprising the league opposition, asking that they sign a petition calling for repeal of the "coach-less" agreement. He enclosed a petition already signed by 12 of Columbia's 13 lettermen.

"I am reliably informed," the letter said, "that both Pennsylvania and Dartmouth favor repeal of the agreement."

The agreement was adopted at a meeting of officials at the suggestion of Dr. Charles W. Kennedy.

Obey said the agreement had been put through without consulting the wishes of the players themselves. Cornell was understood to have opposed the plan from the outset, but agreed to go along with the league majority.

By TOM BIRKS

There will be two soccer meetings this evening. At Bridgeville there will be a meeting of the committee of the spring junior soccer competition. This will be its first year, and it will be held for junior clubs of the district.

All junior managers have been invited to attend. The first-round games may be staged Sunday.

At Heidelberg, President Phillip Hillen will hold a meeting of the Keystone League, and Morgan's failure to appear at Dunlevy last Sunday will be the big business. Manager Grandy, of Dunlevy, and Howard Mangus are likely to make it a point to be present.

RAZOR AD-VENTURES by don herold

NEXT to its almost soothing shaves, the thing I like best about the new Gem Micromatic Razor is that it's all ONE PIECE—with no hand-full of spare parts to flounder and fool with and drop like a clown juggler.

You simply twist the handle, and the roof of the razor clamps down automatically and sets the blade in precisely the right shaving position. After shaving, twist again and the roof flips up for cleaning—nothing to take apart. In short, you don't have to be a technical engineer to run this razor.

The Gem Micromatic Blades are the patented new micro-perfect surgical-steel. They fairly smooth away the beard.

FOCH LAUDS JOFFRE FOR MARNE STRATEGY

such necessities to the inhabitants. Many of these had remained during the occupation, others soon returned.

The Hotel Haute Mere Dieu, where we dined that evening (providing, by the way, our own food and cooks), had, on the evening previous, entertained the 26th Army, served a sumptuous meal to the commander and "from the number of distinguished personages of the Army of the Somme to the Vosges . . . headed by the Crown Prince" that of September 10 read of Saxony. We were certainly on the enemy's heels.

The Battle of the Marne was drawing to a close. It was undoubtedly a great victory. It was the work of the man who, as early as August 24, had begun to plan it and who had carried it through to the end, the commander-in-chief, Gen. Joffre.

Courageous
Troops Fight Fiercely After Retreat

Immediately after our reverses on the frontier, he had clearly perceived wherein the game had been poorly played. He therefore broke off the action with the idea of resuming it energetically as soon as he had repaired the weaknesses disclosed.

Clear as to the enemy's intentions, calm in the face of difficulties as they now were to his powerful maneuver across Belgium, he did not hesitate to undertake a new distribution of his forces, as well as a reassignment of general officers, made necessary by several proofs of incapacity. He created an army of maneuver on the west and then continued his retreat until a favorable moment for halting his forces should present itself.

When this moment arrived, he judiciously combined the offensive with the defensive after executing an energetic about-face. By a magnificently planned stroke he dealt the invasion a mortal blow.

From the Ourcq to Lorraine all the armies had moved to battle in perfect cohesion and with ferocious energy, knowing full well that the country could not survive the disaster which would follow defeat in such a vast encounter. The higher commanders and their staffs had vied with one another in carrying out their tasks, giving mutual help in the finest spirit of comradeship and discipline. The men had fought until they fell exhausted in their tracks, only to rise and fight more fiercely than before.

Paris Saved
Prestige of German Army Broken

This battle proved once more that the spirit of an army in war is the reflection of the profoundest sentiments of the nation, and when these unseen forces are wisely directed by a capable commander-in-chief, a great historical event results. Such was the meaning of the Marne.

Paris, the heart of the country, had been saved by a victory in which her own immediate defenders had done their share. They had been sent to the battle by her own military governor, who realized that by so doing he was deciding the fate of the capital.

The German plan had failed, the prestige of the German Army was broken. The swift and violent invasion which was to put France out of action had not only been stopped, but it had been driven back and partly disorganized.

Under these circumstances, it remained to be seen how the enemy was going to rearrange his forces and what new plan of operations he was going to adopt on the western front. During this time, and here were questions which concerned us deeply, would not the great Russian masses in the eastern theater be able to make themselves felt?

Again, was the high command of the Central Powers of a caliber to conduct upon two fronts an action henceforth sure to be separated, and which had already failed when concentrated upon only one?

Victory News
Also Learns About His Family Losses

On August 28, when I took had, on the evening previous, served a sumptuous meal to the commander and "from the number of distinguished personages of the Army of the Somme to the Vosges . . . headed by the Crown Prince" that of September 10 read of Saxony. We were certainly on the enemy's heels.

I was happy that it had fallen to me to have a most important part in this reversal of fortune for our arms.

The German forces that had attacked the 9th Army with the object of breaking through the center of the French front were as follows:

German 2nd Army—10th Corps (whose attack bore also in part against the French 10th Corps), 10th Reserve Corps and Guard Corps.

German 3rd Army—13th Corps (32nd and 23rd Divisions) and 12th Reserve Corps (23rd and 24th Reserve Divisions).

While engaged at Chalons in clearing up all sorts of matters, there arrived at the same time as the happy confirmation of the greatness of our victory, news of the sad losses which my family had suffered at the front, beginning on August 22. This information was sent me by Gen. Sattail, commanding the 33rd Army.

Carries On
Feels Necessity of Exploiting Success

Engrossed as I was in pressing matters which concerned my country's interests, I had no time even to mourn over my dead. But I did feel that, if these willing sacrifices were not to remain sterile, it was imperative to exploit with the greatest rapidity the success that had been gained.

While at Chalons, also, various notabilities of the region came to see me. First was followed by Monseigneur Tissier, Monsieur Chapron, prefect of the Department of the Marne, remained at his post during the German invasion. He was received by Monsieur Chapron, prefect of the Department of the Marne, remained at his post during the I made him no apologies for having taken possession of his prefecture and led him to hope that we would only have need of it for a short time. As a matter of fact, it was destined for many long months to house an army headquarters.

Monsieur Chapron was followed by Monseigneur Tissier, bishop of Chalons, who had no apologies for German occupation, how by his personal appeal to the Crown Prince of Saxony he had been able to save the town from certain heavy contributions, when there arrived Monsieur Bourgeois, a senator of the department, together with Monsieur Montcuillard and Dr. Pechandree, two of its deputies.

We all took a moment from our preoccupations to celebrate the greatness and the strength of our beloved France, which in utter forgetfulness of all party quarrels had united all of her sons to drive back the invader.

GERMAN COMMANDER

GEN. VON KLUCK . . . GERMAN FIRST ARMY COMMANDER

Gen. Von Kluck, whose army was the right of the German line and whose headlong advance on Paris placed his forces in a critical position when Joffre ordered French hordes to attack.

'What Hours of Agony!'

9TH ARMY CORPS. CHALONS, 20-9-1914.

My Dear General:

I have, today, September 20th, received your letter of August 28th. It increases my remorse at not having written you sooner. But—there has been so much to do. On August 29th I took over the command of an army detachment of 2 corps, 1 division of cavalry, 2 reserve divisions, in retreat, that is to say in route. I led it almost to the Aube in retreat, then from the 6th, forward to Fere Champenoise. There, a great 5-day battle (took place) with troops that had still recovered little of their morale.

What hours of agony! At last we are victorious, I am showered with compliments, but, above all, my troops have recovered their morale. Nothing daunts them now. What a beautiful thing victory is from this point of view of confidence.

As soon as we pass the Marne, we are stopped by a line of first-class fortifications. I have no heavy artillery, I am blocked. After tomorrow I shall have some, and then I shall strike a powerful blow. Meanwhile I'm up to 5 army corps, 2 cavalry divisions, 2 reserve (divisions).

My family affairs are most distressing. Becourt and my son killed August 22d near Joppecourt on the Belgian frontier.

I learned of it September 13th and broke (the news) gently to my wife (who is) still at Ploujean, Finistere. They could not have known anything about it there, and now I tremble to think of the consternation in their midst—of the grief of my poor womenfolk.

As for me, I am steeling myself in regard to this matter that I may not fail in my duty, but it is not easy. The cruel sacrifices that we are making must not have been made in vain. I am working toward that end with all the energy of which I am capable, absolutely confident of the outcome of the struggle, with the help of God.

Farewell, my dear General, in your grief please believe more than ever in my profound and devoted respect.

F. FOCH.

Enemy Soldiers Hold Strong Positions

After October 4, the operations on the front of the 9th Army entered upon a period of stagnation that lasted some time. The enemy was established in commanding positions armed with powerful artillery of large caliber; he had constructed continuous lines of deep trenches protected by machine-guns and flanked by cannon, generally well concealed; it was not the moment to try to drive him out.

On the other hand, his big offensive of September 26 had completely failed. Moreover, our own defenses were getting stronger every day and gave us greater security against any attacks he might deliver. Under these conditions nothing decisive could be expected for a long time in the Champagne region.

What was happening on the rest of the front, and more especially in our armies constituting the left wing, I knew only vaguely through the daily communiques. It was in this state of ignorance that I received on the afternoon of October 4 a message from the commander-in-chief calling me to his headquarters at Romilly-sur-Seine. I reported there about 4 p. m.

Strategy
Attempt to Envelop Enemy Wing

Gen. Joffre informed me that the primary object of the operations then being pursued on the western wing of the Allied Armies was to envelop the German Army's opposing wing. If this should prove impossible, the maneuver would serve to prevent any corresponding attempt on the part of the enemy to envelop our left.

With this object in view he had transported to the left of the 6th Army north of the Oise and Somme, Gen. de Castelnau's 2nd Army (headquarters at Breteuil). An army detachment under the command of Gen. de Maud'Huy (headquarters at Saint-Pol), had also been constituted for the same purpose and was now moving on Arras. This detachment was being constantly reinforced and given a more and more independent role. On October 5 it would be transformed into the 10th Army.

Liaison between these two armies (the 2nd and the 10th) was maintained by a group of territorial divisions, under the command of Gen. Brugere, with headquarters at Doullens.

In addition to this, the British Army had asked to be transferred from the Aisne to our left flank. This request had been acceded to and the move would shortly take place. British headquarters was to be established at Saint-Omer. Finally, arrangements would have to be made, sooner or later, for co-operation with the Belgian Army, now grouped in the vicinity of Antwerp.

New Role
Given New Mission as Commander's Aide

In the presence of certain hesitations manifested by some of our commanders in this region and with a view to coming to satisfactory agreements with our Allies, the commander-in-chief had decided to send me immediately to the North, where I would take charge of our affairs and coordinate our operations with those of the Allied armies. I was to have the title of assistant to the commander-in-chief.

I returned at once to my headquarters at Chalons, arriving there at 7 p. m. I formed a staff, sent for Gen. Humbert, then commanding the Combined Corps, and handed over to him the command of the 9th Army.

I settled with him all outstanding matters, said goodbye with considerable emotion to good Monsier Chapron, the prefect of the Marne, and at 10 p. m. I left the town which had witnessed our victorious entry of September 12 and started off in pursuit of new fortunes. The remainder of my staff was to rejoin me in the course of a few days.

Our route took us at first across the battlefield of the Marne, through Montmirail and Meaux. Here we passed over the river and traversed the field of battle of the Ourcq, then through Senlis and Creil, where we crossed the Oise. Next came Clermont, Saint-Just-en-Chaussee, and finally Breteuil, which we reached October 5 at 4:30 in the morning.

I immediately sent word to Gen. de Castelnau that I had arrived, and while waiting for him I lay down on a bench in the schoolhouse. He came in shortly afterward and I took over the direction of our affairs in the north.

Historic Water Mill Destroyed by Fire

CONSHOHOCKEN, Pa., March 31.—(AP.)—A hundred-year-old water mill built on the Schuylkill River by James Hood, founder of Conshohocken, was destroyed by fire. Police estimated the loss at $35,000.

In recent years the building had been used as a warehouse by the John Wood Manufacturing Company, makers of septic tanks.

The old mill was said to have been the first in Pennsylvania to use water power in the manufacturing of sheet iron.

ADDITIONAL SPORTING NEWS

LOWER MERION HAS STRONG QUINTET

By JESS CARVER

Stamina, or the lack of it, may be the hole in the dyke for this Lower Merion basketball team, booked for an appearance here Saturday night against Scott High in the final game of the annual P. I. A. A. championship tournament.

The word is out that a team able to finish strong can take Lower Merion. Three of four teams have turned the trick this season. Sharon put on added pressure in the late periods of the title game in the Palestra in Philadelphia last season to knock the Millionaires out of the title and in one of the interdistrict games this year, against Palmerton, the Maroon entry had to go two extra periods to cop.

ANDERSON COACH

Coach Bill Anderson, former Lafayette College star and a native Pittsburgher, has constructed his team this year around Herb Pennypacker, a forward, and Turner, center, the only holdovers from last year's team. The newcomers are Eaton, Bradford and Wynn.

Coach Johnny Reed, of the Scotties, believes in sending his club out to get all the points possible early in the game and then go on through on the momentum of a first-period attack. He has been able to do this consistently this year, even though his team had to be shaken up for the semi-final last Saturday. At the half, against Hollidaysburg, Scott was ahead by 21 to 3, a more or less safe margin.

SKILLFUL PASSERS

As was the case last year, the tall and rangy Maroon team (Lower Merion) is a skillful passing outfit, boasts some fine marksmen and hops back on the defense very quickly. At the same time, the team's record shows that it has been susceptible to attacks by opponents more enduring in the final period.

Just how Lower Merion will cope with Scott's formidable and devastating early punch remains to be seen, but if the team isn't able to do any better than other opponents Scott has tackled since the inauguration of the W. P. I. A. L. and P. I. A. A. play, it will be just another second place for Brother Anderson.

DATTO BATTLE PROVES DUD

but he kept on the move and the bell found them mauling away in messy fashion.

END OF "FEUD"

The tenth round was a duplicate of the ninth, with Datto tired and bleeding from the mouth keeping on the run and Rodgers pounding the body with rights whenever he could catch up with him and Grayber again halting the bout to issue a warning. Then the split decision, favoring Rodgers because of his better finish, but hardly justified by his miserable showing over the route.

The result leaves Datto still one up on Rodgers in their series, which, it is to be hoped, they automatically brought to an end through their poor exhibition last night.

Rodgers weighed 123½ pounds and Datto was two pounds heavier at 3 p. m.

The best-looking fighter on the card appeared in the second bout in the person of Frankie Goosby, a Negro middleweight, of Los Angeles. A protege of Baby Joe Gans, Goosby, tall and rangy, showed a lot of boxing class and hitting power in handing out a bad beating to tough and game blond Jimmy Taylor, of Cleveland. He weighed 155½ pounds against 161 for Taylor.

Larry Madge, of Cleveland, 147, fought his usual lackadaisical, stalling, counter fight against Young Rudy, of Charleroi, 149½, but he again fooled the local judges and was awarded the decision at the end of the eight-round semi-final to the accompaniment of merited hooting from the crowd. Rudy did all of the forcing and fighting and Madge won only two rounds, the first and third, on his harder punching, with the sixth even. Referee Jack Henderson, incidentally, voted for Rudy.

Joey Bazzone, of McKeesport, 137, knocked out Jackie Griffiths, Negro, of the Hill, 132½, in the third round of the opener.

ROSENBLOOM VS. JONES

It was announced that Maxie Rosenbloom, world light-heavyweight champion, and Billy Jones, former local Negro boxer, hailing from Philadelphia, will box the main bout at the Garden next Monday night. A collection was taken up for the family of Sammy Harris, Negro boxer, of Akron, who died recently following a bout in Johnstown. Announcement that the usual unnecessary intermission of upwards of a half-hour before the main bout would be dispensed with was cheered to the echo by the fans, and proved to be the best reform of the season at the Garden, the main bout principals coming into the ring as soon as the semi-finalists had departed, thus enabling the fans to start for home at a reasonable hour.

LIEB SIGNS VEZIE

LOS ANGELES, March 31.—(AP.)—Manfred Vezie, who played end for Notre Dame from 1927 to 1929 and last year was one of Knute Rockne's assistants, has been signed by Tom Lieb to assist him at Loyola College during the 1931 football season.

POREDA BEATS JOHNNY RISKO

NEW YORK, March 31.—(AP.)—A colorful new figure has crowded into the ranks of the heavyweight parade today—Stanley Poreda, a straight-shooting youngster from Jersey City.

Meeting his first major opponent after a long string of victories over lesser lights of the division, the big, black-haired Pole established himself as a comer last night by pounding out a clean-cut win over old Johnny Risko, the Cleveland rubber man, in Madison Square Garden. Risko rallied in the closing rounds, but could not overcome the long lead piled up by his young opponent in the early stages.

Although the Associated Press score sheet credited Poreda with six rounds and Risko with only two, the decision of the three officials was not unanimous. The two judges named Poreda, but Referee Kid McPartland picked the veteran Risko.

SEKYRA HALTS STANTON

NEW CASTLE, Pa., March 31.—Joe Sekyra, Dayton and New York heavyweight, brought the 10-round main go at Castle Bowl here night with Gene Stanton, of Cleveland, to a sudden end in the second round with a short right to the chin that made it impossible for Stanton to continue.

FIRPO BEAT BASS

PHILADELPHIA, March 31.—(AP.)—Young Firpo, aspiring young fisticuffer of Pennsgrove, N. J., won an unpopular decision over Benny Bass, Philadelphia junior-lightweight champion, in the 10-round main event at the Arena last night. Bass' title was not at stake. He weighed 131½, Firpo 136.

HOUSTON, Tex., (AP.)—William L. (Young) Stribling, Georgia boxer, smashed the wings of his airplane yesterday when he was forced to land near Kundalton, 49 miles east of Houston. The forced landing came in a blinding rainstorm. None of the party of five was injured.

Secrecy Mistake

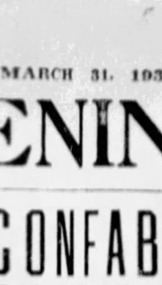
BANK CONFAB SECRECY HELD MISTAKE

Statement by Norman Seen As Check to Rumors; Policy Called Obsolete

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, March 31.—With Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, here to confer with George L. Harrison, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, the traditional policy of secrecy is adhered to.

The eminent visitor, who is one of the constructive banking minds of the world, needs to be told, in all courtesy, that the old-fashioned policy is out of tune with modern tendencies.



Mr. Rukeyser.

Both the Bank of England and the Federal Reserve Bank, despite their technical private ownership, are in reality public institutions, and they are both neglecting their opportunity to build up an informed opinion on matters relating to finance. The method of secrecy promotes reckless guessing as to the purpose of the mission. It would be an interesting innovation to issue at the proper time brief authentic bulletins, which might check the activities of rumor mongers.

In spite of diplomatic negations, the visit is far more than a courtesy call. It is a step in the new rapprochement among the central banks of the world. In the past, the public found that after virtually every visit from this distinguished foreign visitor, important tangible results followed.

PLAN CO-ORDINATION

The present visit is part of a conscious effort to co-ordinate the policies of central banks, rather than to nullify one another's objectives through conflicting purposes. The great issue which should dominate the discussion of central bank executives at this time is ways and means of breaking the blockade in world credit, which reached an acute stage early in 1929, and which led up to the world-wide economic depression.

It will be recalled that in 1929 normal world financing operations were halted. Gold flowed to an extraordinary extent to the United States and France, neither of which used gold as the basis of foreign credits to the normal extent in that year. As a result, the outside world was starved for credit.

MARKET RISES ON LIMITED TRADING

Bears Finally Content to Take Profits and Long Expected Rebound Appears

NEW YORK, March 31—(AP.)—Bears were finally content to take profits, and the stock market had its expected rebound today.

The market had been declining for five consecutive sessions, and for seven out of the past eight sessions, so traders felt that the bear side might be getting overcrowded. The rebound was not violent, however, and trading was in limited volume. The bond market also showed a better tone.

A broad list of issues advanced a point or more, including U. S. Steel, American Can, Radio and General Electric. There were a few soft spots. General Asphalt dropped nearly 12 points, then recovered partly. U. S. Industrial Alcohol and Southern Railway sold at the lowest in eight years and Standard of N. J. at the lowest since 1928.

The upturn of the general list was temporarily checked in the morning by the break in General Asphalt, which was in response to the reversal on appeal of its legal victory over Royal Dutch in London in its suit over Venezuelan royalties. General Asphalt will now appeal to the House of Lords.

U. S. Industrial Alcohol was sold in response to another cut in alcohol prices, bringing the tank car price to 19 cents. The anti-trust action against the Sugar Institute also caused selling of American Sugar. The oil shares were inclined to ease, as preliminary estimates indicate a further rise in crude output last week.

Wall street regarded as constructive President Hoover's statement that a tax increase at the next session of Congress can be avoided if expenditures are curtailed. The prospect of a Treasury deficit of some $700,000,000 for the fiscale year ending June 30 is not pleasing to financial circles, and it has been felt that a large bond offering or higher taxes were imminent.

Credit rates were stationary, with call money at 1½ per cent both officially and in the outside market.

Spring Furniture Sales Show Gain

NEW YORK, March 31.—Buyers registrations in the wholesale furniture market in New York City this month will establish an all-time record for the industry, officials of the New York Furniture Exchange said. With the number of buyers visiting the market up to Saturday, 200 ahead of the total registered during the record month of March, 1929, officials said that buying activity this spring is 25 per cent greater than was anticipated.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

The demand for fruit and vegetables was slow today, as the wholesale produce markets in Pittsburgh. There were no changes in quotations.

The poultry markets rested firm, demand fair, supply nominal, with slight changes in quotations.

The butter, egg and cheese markets remained firm, demand good, supply adequate, with few changes in quotations.

Car lot supplies were moderate with 416 cars on track. Arrivals included 11 cars of apples, 1 beets, 1 cabbage, 1 carrots, 2 cauliflower, 10 celery, 1 chicory, 1 grapefruit, 1 lemons, 6 lettuce, 3 onions, 9 oranges, 13 potatoes, 4 spinach, 1 radishes, 1 rhubarb, 2 sweet potatoes and 4 mixed vegetables.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, March 31.—With wheat importing countries showing extreme caution in buying, grain prices averaged lower early today. European millers were reported purchasing fresh supplies of wheat only on receipt of shipping instructions for flour. Opening ½@⅝ cents off to ¼ up, wheat later held near to the initial range. Corn started unchanged to ⅜ lower, but subsequently scored some advances.

Forbes

Gives Britons Pointers From This Country

By B. C. FORBES

Mr. Forbes

ONE BRITISHER who visited the United States with an observing eye and an inquiring mind has written a book which is "different." He frankly tells Britons of the things we do better as well as the things they do better. His conclusions should prod staid John Bull into "getting a move on" as we Americans say.

SINCE WE are accused of liking to hear commendation rather than criticism, perhaps it will be best to cite some of the things he found here which he urges his fellow countrymen to ponder and imitate.

Says William G. Fern, author of "Lessons From a Self-Made Continent":

"One of the outstanding lessons to me was the output in factories obtained, as I saw, happily and cheerfully, without that harassing drive which we are taught to believe is the essence of American production methods. The men I spoke to in factories were wonderfully cheerful, proud of their jobs and machines, and took great delight in explaining why and how their work was done.

"I noticed, too, the generous use of daylight and the absence of uncleanliness and disorder. Equipment is so much better. Any machine that will lower the cost of production has a chance in U. S. A.

"ONE OF THE advantages of the American method of production is that all seem to delight in records. That is, if something special could be put up to the shop, breaking all previous records, then there is every reason to attempt it. No wonder America has bred men of accomplishment.

"One of the reasons why Americans do not build as solidly as we do, and are not so interested in the life of anything, is because they know there is always a better way.

"I saw a room of 40 girls acting as telephone sales people. Telephone salesmanship is one of the methods we could develop in British business.

"The average American has a keen sense of humor. Americans are great tale-tellers, and I understand better than ever Lincoln's hold over his countrymen.

"American subways are noisier than ours, and not so trim and neat, but the expresses are a distinct improvement.

"IT IS AMAZING to find the young men who are in control of large corporations. Without the envy, too, of their fellows. The American executive thinks young and surrounds himself with a youthful atmosphere. I did not meet a single leader, no matter his years, who could be classed as 'old.' Americans are young-minded. Being such youthful optimists, it is natural for Americans to plan ahead. America is rich because its people are rich in incentives.

"America is studying food values more than any other country in the world. She knows more about vitamins, and drinks more milk, than other nation.

"For hundreds of miles you can move swiftly over roads of billiard table smoothness. Your traffic is much faster in America, both in town and country.

"BUYING ON instalments has reached a high pinnacle in America. I expected the recent depression would have caused a severe setback to this kind of trading. Apparently it has emerged with flying colors.

"CLASS FOR CLASS, notwithstanding their lack of poise and calm, I am satisfied that they are happier in America. They have that which is the greatest promoter of all happiness—the realization of accomplishment.

"America is not a country for weaklings. Fear, doubt, despair are doubly punished. It is a land for the healthy, the ambitious, the fighter, the visionary, and the practical dreamer. It is a land where, if you receive the count, the crowd don't want to hear groans. It is a land which says always, 'Hail to the victor!'"

IF READERS express a desire, another column will be devoted to the topic. he thinks Americans should learn from Britain.

New National Plants Show Profit

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE NATIONAL STEEL Corporation may be expected to report continued good results in earnings for the present year in spite of the unsettled condition of the steel business. New evidence of the fact that the company is able to show a satisfactory profit under adverse conditions was given yesterday when Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the board, told stockholders that all the plants are operating at a profit.

When it is realized that a large share of the improvements at the new Detroit plant have been completed quite recently and that the automobile industry still has a long way to go before it may be said to have regained a satisfactory basis, profitable operations for the new steel plant are distinctly favorable indications.

All the units of the new Great Lakes plant at Detroit, except one mill, have been completed and have been successfully put in operation since the beginning of the year.

Dividend Covered

NATIONAL STEEL CORPORATION probably was the only large producer of steel which earned dividend requirements in the fourth quarter of 1930. For the full year the annual report showed exceptional results since dividend requirements of $2 a share were earned twice. Net profit for the year was equivalent to $4.01 a share. No comparisons for the previous year are available since the company was formed at the close of 1930 by the consolidation of Weirton Steel, Great Lakes Steel and the blast furnaces and ore properties of the M. A. Hanna Co.

Operations were further expanded a short time ago by the acquisition of the Michigan Steel Company at Detroit, the operations of which will be closely allied with those of Great Lakes Steel.

Prospects Bright

WHILE MANY OTHER large steel companies have failed to cover dividend requirements with established plants, the fact that National Steel has made such an outstanding report of earnings while a large share of its operations are entirely new indicates that the company should show exceptionally good results when the steel business returns to a more satisfactory basis.

The company's principal plant at Weirton, W. Va., has long been known as one of the lowest cost steel producing units. The consolidation improved the organization's strategical position by giving National Steel the only large steel-making plant in the Detroit district. The importance of this is obvious when it is remembered that the automobile industry is one of the greatest consumers of steel products.

The Hanna ore properties assured National Steel an adequate supply of raw materials for many years to come. This eliminated the one weak point in the setup of the original Weirton Steel Company.

McKeesport Tin Plate

RECENT ACTIVITY IN THE STOCK of the McKeesport Tin Plate Company has carried the issue above its 1929 high. This reflects the fact that McKeesport Tin showed greater earnings in 1930 than in 1929 and at the present time is operating practically on a capacity basis. The organization with net profit of $8.34 a share for 1930 as compared with $8.01 in 1929 reflected the continued high demand for tin plate by the canning industry and reduced prices for raw materials.

Indications at the present time are that McKeesport Tin will be able to duplicate the results of 1930 in the present year. The stock may be considered on a $6 annual basis. Although regular dividends amount to only $4 a year, extras of 50 cents have been paid quarterly for a considerable period.

HE HANDED ME A FLOCK OF TALK ABOUT ME BEING BEAUTIFUL- I USED TO LOOK IN THE MIRROR AND PITY JOAN CRAWFORD BUT HE KEPT HANDING ME THE SAME LINE THREE TIMES A DAY AND I GOT HEP TO MYSELF- I TOLD HIM THE OTHER DAY THAT THERE MUST BE A CROOKED WAITRESS IN THE PLACE PICKING UP MY TIPS FROM HIS TABLE.. NOW HE HAS CHANGED HIS TABLE

Mary Lou Runs Away When Travers Sees Delight

CHAPTER XL.

Mary Lou spoke entirely at random. Lorrimer started away without more than a cursory look at the strange woman, the intruder. Mary Lou raised her in her strong, young arms, to a half sitting position, as Delight's eyes opened and the color began to return to her lips.

"I fainted. How foolish of me! Oh, it's you," she said weakly but without astonishment. "Look here, my ankle's badly sprained. How can I get away? Help me, will you? Perhaps I could walk to the road and pick up a car. Did he see me?" she asked more strongly, as her senses returned fully.

"Yes," said Mary Lou, whiter than she. "Oh, why did you come?"

"I was a fool." Delight said again. I didn't mean him to see me, of course. Did he recognize be?"

"No—"

Tries to Leave

"Here. Help me to stand." She was brusque, she was frantic with a desire to clear out, to escape, to get wholly away. Remembrance of all she had heard, thought, decided, rushed back to her. With Mary Lou's help she managed to get to her feet, but the poor swollen ankle would not bear her weight.

"I can't," she said, with a little sob. "I can't!"

She took hold of a low-lying branch of a tree and tried to step. But it hurt her cruelly, the least motion. "I must," she said, literally between her teeth, close bitten to keep back the little moan of sheer physical pain and mental distress which assailed her.

"No use," said Mary Lou, dully. "He'll be back in a moment."

"Look here, play up," said Delight urgently. "I'll lie. Perhaps I won't have to. Perhaps he won't know me. I hope to God he doesn't! Oh, it's been such a mess! I heard you talking, there behind the hedge. I had made up my mind to go away, to tell you when you communicated with me that, no matter what conclusion you and his mother had come to, I wouldn't bother any of you any more. It is impossible. The whole situation. I realized that Lorry cares for you, not for me. I don't care for anyone!" said Delight, and raised her slackened chin a little and for a moment looked somehow young and gallant and terribly honest. "I was willing. I am willing to get out of it, leave it to your good sense to tell him anything you wanted to—that I was dead, or—the truth, half-expurgated. If he doesn't know me, I'll say I was going by and came in, on an impulse. Well, that's partly true. I'll ask him to get me a taxi or send a car with me to the station. If he does know me I'll deny it. Look here, there's something you must know—"

She broke off. Lorrimer was running toward them.

"Mother's coming, with Peter—"

He stopped dead and stared. His face went slowly ashen. This woman, who was she? Of whom did she remind him? of Delight?

He pulled himself together. He said, courteously:

"If we can be of help—are you badly hurt?"

"I'm so sorry to trouble you. Yes, my ankle. I'm afraid it's rather badly twisted. If I could get to the road, and hail a taxi."

But at the very first word she had spoken Lorrimer began to shake all over like a man waking up from some strange dream into a much stranger reality. He could scarcely speak, but somehow he managed, just the name:

"Delight, not Delight?"

Recognizes Ring

"Delight!"

She pulled away or tried to. She said, with a forced note of lightness:

"I'm Diana Hackett. I think you must be mistaken."

"No. You're Delight Harford," he said, slowly. "I know you. You. You couldn't be anyone else. Why do you deny it? Don't you know me? Travers Lorrimer? You must know me."

She said, immediately:

"I never saw you before in all my life, Mr. Lorrimer," and, turning to Mary Lou, she asked, "Can't you explain to your friend that he is mistaken? I'm sorry to give so much trouble," she said again, "but if I could get help to get back to town—"

Lorrimer slipped his hand down her arm, took her hand in his, turned it—

"You wear my ring!" said Lorrimer.

Delight knew a moment of bitter anger directed against herself. Of course she had worn it, unthinkingly. She always wore it. She had fancied that, now and then, it brought her luck. The seal ring: His.

In that instant she surrendered.

"Lorry," she said weakly, appealingly.

He stepped back from her, his face black with frowning concentration. But . . . if this was Delight . . . who was . . . ?

"If you are Delight," he said slowly, "who—who is—she?"

He turned to Mary Lou, but Mary Lou was not there. At the moment when Lorrimer had been engrossed in the other girl, when he had said "you wear my ring," in the little pause that followed, she had slipped away, as fleet as a deer, on feet of panic, and was running swiftly to the house by the shortest route.

Mary Lou Goes Away

When she got there, out of breath, half sobbing, going in by the back way, to the amazement of the servants, she flew to her own room. Mrs. Lorrimer and Peter and perhaps some of the others would be on their way to Lorrimer now. She could escape them all; she would simply have to hurry and fling a few things in a bag, take what money she had in cash, and go out of Westwood at the farthest gate, the gate leading out of the North Woods.

She couldn't stay. She couldn't face it, face his disgust, his hatred. All over now. The lost was found; there was happiness ahead for these two. Whatever adjustments were to be made, they must make them without her. They were man and wife. She was nobody, just a girl who had been hired to play a role and who had wrecked her own happiness in the playing.

She took only the barest necessities. The pretty things that Margaret had given her, she would leave them behind her, start out all over again. She drew Lorry's sapphire from her finger and laid it on her bureau. She picked up an envelope, and a pencil and wrote across it, "Forgive me. I had to go—this way."

Then she was ready. One last look about the room, one terrible temptation to cast herself on the bed and yield herself up to sick weeping, a temptation she conquered, and then she had sped down the back stairs and through the servants' quarters like a flash of light.

Most of them had gone by now, to give what help they could to the old butler. Only the cook, looking up from the table at which she was standing said, "Miss Delight?" in a tone of stricken inquiry.

She reached the woods and went through them, stumbling, catching her tweed frock in undergrowth, half blind but wholly determined. She came out of the far gate and waited there a moment. To her complete surprise, a roadster going past, slowly, stopped and someone hailed her. It was Jenny Wynne.

"Delight!" called Jenny.

No time to think.

Mary Lou climbed in and slammed the door.

"Jenny, help me. Jenny, you must help me!" she cried. "Drive me to the station—not Westmill, but the Northmill station—and as fast as you can! Please! Please!"

DAILY TRUE STORY — South Wind

The executive mansion adjacent to the capitol of a middle western state was a handsome brick building, set well back amid large trees, the lawn merging into the wider lawn of the capitol grounds.

I had no hesitancy in going up to the door and handing my card to the servant.

Nor was I the least surprised or excited when the servant returned and announced with, to me, laughable dignity, "His Excellency will see you, sir."

If "His Excellency" hadn't seen me he would have heard some tall and fancy old-time cowboy "whoopees" on his front lawn because there was a time when we rode a ranch together and gathered around the same chuck wagon.

Gov. Samuel W. Truckton was in his library, and on his feet to greet me.

"Turk Smith," he yelled, smacking me on the back and then grabbing my hand, "dogone if you aren't a regular eastern tenderfoot!"

"Now look here, Gusty," I said, "did you expect me to walk in on you wearing chaps and a 10-gallon hat?"

As we talked over old times and Gusty was recalling the past, I noticed that he seemed to be staring at a sort of bronze statuette on his desk. I finally picked it up and looked at it. It was a tricky piece of work—mighty good. It was of an Indian girl, she wasn't overdressed very much, but seemed to be standing in grass and the wind was blowing her hair and she was smiling. It looked like an Indian squaw, a young one, too, not fancy, but high cheekbones, regular Indian nose and all.

An Honest Man

"I had plenty of votes to spare, but I might not have had—little things can raise the devil and all with giant undertakings and enterprises, also with political campaigns."

"But you were a pretty square shooter, Gusty—you never did anything underhanded. If you thought a man was a damn crook you told him so. If you had any drinkin' to do you did it openly, and you never got tangled up none with femules."

"No; I'm old-fashioned. One wife is plenty, and I mean it—and it has to be my own wife, not some other man's. Just the same I pretty near lost out on the grounds that I was a gambler, a drunkard and carouser with painted wimmen folks."

The Governor of the state chuckled.

"I never did orate much to Bertha. Now you probably didn't know, but she was the daughter of a minister, one of these Protestant bishops. And her uncle was a state senator. Some nice people. It was her uncle I studied law with. Well, my wife has a brother, younger than she is—a regulation minister's son."

"Ministers' sons are supposed to be black sheep."

"Far be it from me to talk about my wife's relations, but between me and you, Turk, and this statuette, you're right. Tom—he's the young firebrand brother-in-law, had been wild, but we thought we had him settled down. Bertha asked me to help straighten him out by arguing with him. It didn't work. I had better success cuffing his fool head and now and then using the toe of my boot. But we sort of got him settled down, as we thought. Finally he became engaged to just about the nicest girl you ever saw—it was a great thing for Tom. Her father owned a whopping big flour mill and Tom was to have an executive position. The girl lived in a city not more than 50 miles from here."

Wife Heartbroken

"Well, Tom was getting along pretty well and my campaign was progressing satisfactorily. I got the nomination hands down and everything looked rosy for the election, although I didn't expect any cinch, and it wasn't any landslide as you mentioned, just a good substantial plurality.

"Word came to me one day that Tom was going wild again. I tried to locate him, but I couldn't. Word also got to my wife about him and she was almost heartbroken. I told her that I would try and find him, although just then I was having the devil's own time with Nate Durkin, owner of our most influential paper. He was all for my opponent and all against me. It meant the loss of a lot of votes for his paper was sure influential.

"I had a few young friends whom I could trust and I tipped them to go scouting for this sporty young brother-in-law of mine. If word got to his girl everything would be off and Tom would go plumb to smash.

"Finally I was called out of bed one night, or morning. It must have been around 2 o'clock. My young scout friend didn't want to talk over the telephone. I got up and met him.

"'That brother-in-law of yours is down at Kelley's place, raising the devil. I tried to get in and get him out but Kelley threw me out,' he reported to me.

Locates Brother-in-Law

"Well, sir, Kelley's place was about the lowest sort of dive in these parts—a disreputable place. Bad liquor, bad gambling and bad women. I went down there. If Kelley threw me out he was going to be some out of breath. But he didn't seem to have any idea of throwing me out. It seems that he wasn't afraid of me, but afraid I might be elected and he wanted to be friendly.

"I demanded to know where Tom was. Kelley said he was in a private room, and led me to the place. Tom wasn't there. Kelley was surprised, all right, I could see that. There were cards and poker chips scattered about and plenty of empty bottles. There was also a half-dressed girl, who was plenty drunk. She cursed me and told me to get out. I insisted on knowing where Tom was. I yelled at her mighty loud after a while and made quite a noise. She said she knew where Tom was but wouldn't tell me. I grabbed her when she smashed at me with a bottle, and I didn't duck soon enough when she threw a glass of rye over me. She hurled poker chips and cards, and would have thrown furniture if she had been strong enough. She gave it away that Tom was outside, sleeping it off. I grabbed her then and took her out. I didn't notice anyone looking at me as I came out through the big room. I must have smelled strong of whisky, and I guess cards and poker chips were dripping from me. I held the girl up and got her out. She revived in the cool air and showed me Tom, sleeping off a terrific jag in his car. I gave the girl some money, got in the car and brought Tom home."

"And that," I said, "was that."

"It wasn't half of it. I got Tom home, got a doctor for him, got a little sleep and went on with my campaign.

Presented With Gift

It was a week later that Nate Durkin's newspaper turned square around and boomed me in my campaign. And then Nate came to see me.

"I had the all-firedest roast written about you," he said, "proving that you were a drunkard, gambler and consorted with wild women, and in this article that I wrote, I stated that I had wrote it late at night and left it on my desk. Then I grabbed the morning train to go to St. Louis about some advertising. At the junction I called up my city editor and told him to run the article I had written, with a page-wide headline.

"Why didn't you—and get sued?" I asked.

"'Your brother-in-law came to me the next day when I got back and explained the whole thing about being at Kelley's. Kelley verified it,' he said.

"But that was two days later, why wasn't the article printed next day?"

"'My city editor couldn't find it—along about daylight it seems a south wind came up and blew that article, all three pages, out of the window. When I learned the truth all I could do was to boost you.'"

"That's all Turk," Gusty said, "except when I was inaugurated Nate brought over this statuette—the name of it is 'The South Wind.'"

All names of characters in this story are fictitious.

Family History

I WENT OVER TO YOUR AUNT HATTIE'S TODAY. HER HEARING ISN'T AS GOOD AS IT WAS, AND WHEN I RAISED MY VOICE TO ASK HER A FEW QUESTIONS ABOUT YOUR GREAT-GRANDFATHER, HER DAUGHTER ESTELLE TROTTED IN FROM THE KITCHEN AND TURNED THE CONVERSATION OFF ON SOME OTHER SUBJECT.
ESTELLE IS VERY RITZY.
THE FIRST TIME SHE INTERRUPTED ME I THOUGHT SHE WAS JUST TRYING, AS USUAL, TO BE MERELY DISAGREEABLE. BUT WHEN IT HAPPENED AT LEAST FOUR TIMES I REALIZED SHE DIDN'T WANT HER MOTHER TO TALK ABOUT THE MATTER.
I HEARD THAT MY GREAT-GRANDFATHER HAD A BIT OF TROUBLE NOW AND THEN. SOMETHING ABOUT HORSES.
YOUR AUNT HATTIE WASN'T ANY TOO ANXIOUS TO TALK EITHER. MY STARS, ONE SKELETON MORE OR LESS IN A FAMILY SO FULL OF CATTY WOMEN DOESN'T MEAN MUCH TO ME.
OH I WOULDN'T EXACTLY CALL IT A FAMILY SKELETON. FROM WHAT I HEARD AT TIMES, HE WAS JUST TERRIBLY FOND OF HORSES.
EVERYBODY HAS HIS WEAKNESS. I LIKE HORSES MYSELF. PROBABLY THE ONLY DIFFERENCE BETWEEN MY GREAT-GRANDFATHER AND MYSELF IS THAT I'VE FOLLOWED THE PONIES FROM A GRANDSTAND AND HE FOLLOWED THEM ON A HORSE.
OH ALL FAMILIES HAVE SUCH HAPPENINGS IN THEM. WHAT GIVES ME THE CREEPS IS PERSONS LIKE ESTELLE TRYING TO MAKE ME-ME MIND YOU, THINK THE BUNGLES ARE PERFECT.

May Doom Blue Law

Strength in House Revealed in Vote on Measure That Can Be Amended.

Advocates of a modern liberal Sunday law in Pennsylvania are much heartened by the result of a test of strength in the House at Harrisburg Monday night. By a vote of 102 to 91, members refused to recommit the Schwartz milk-delivery bill, legalizing the delivery of milk as late as 9 o'clock Sunday morning.

This measure, seen by advocates of a liberal Sunday law as providing an opportunity for getting the entire question of Sunday observance before the House for discussion through presentation of amendments, was kept from death in the hands of the committee by a prompt rally of those who believe in repeal of the law of 1794 or a new local option measure on Sunday observance.

The House Law and Order Committee last week pigeonholed the Musmanno bill for a liberalized Sunday, despite the fact that there appeared to be a strong body supporting it in the House. The strength of the support may be only partially revealed in the vote to prevent recommitting the Schwartz bill because Blue Law opponents made a sudden and unexpected surprise move. Nevertheless, it proved to be sufficient to encourage all who deplore our present un American Sunday law.

Representative Musmanno, sponsor of one of the bills killed by the Law and Order Committee, is confident that the test vote strength of 102 can be maintained on a Schwartz bill amendment that will be presented to make it more inclusive. Possibly the 105 votes to pass the measure in the House will be forthcoming.

There is even hope that politicians who have dodged the issue as "political dynamite" will realize that there is less danger for them in supporting such measures than in opposing them.

Let there be a free expression of opinion and an unhampered vote.

Power Profits

Duquesne Light Earned More Money Last Year in Spite of Depression.

The Duquesne Light Company does not seem to be bothered by business depressions. Its net profit after deducting all expenses and setting up reserves was $14,024,981 last year. This was $1,107,459 more than in 1929.

While large industry used less power last year, residential customers increased their consumption of electricity.

There is nothing wrong about a company increasing its efficiency and making more money in a bad year than in a good one. In fact, it is to the interest of consumers for a public utility to operate more economically.

But some disclosures about valuations made at Harrisburg last week indicate that it might be worth while for the Public Service Commission to look into the workings of the Duquesne Light Company. It might be worth while to know whether Duquesne Light is passing a reasonable share of these economies on to the public.

The Duquesne Light's properties are valued at $49,000,000 by the company for tax purposes, but at $149,000,000 as a basis for rate making. No real valuation has ever been made by independent engineers. No recent investigation of the company's rate structure has been made.

The wide discrepancy between these valuations certainly indicates that it is time for some honest effort to be made to establish a real value and to find how much of a return the company is getting on its investment.

Service Is Watchword

New Postmaster's Program in Contrast to That of Some Officials.

"Testimonial" banquets usually are significant of nothing more than the addition of a little strength to plans political leaders may have with reference to the future of the "guest of honor." That reflection, however, does not apply to the dinner given in honor of Postmaster James B. Anderson, who sat down with more than 1,200 fellow workers of the postal service, workers from whose ranks he has risen, first, to the position of assistant postmaster, and then to that of the head of the postal service in one of the nation's great and important cities.

When Mr. Anderson spoke to the men who will assist him, he handed out no "taffy." He stressed the fact that "service" is what the public expects and that service and efficiency would be the basis of his manner of conducting the office he now holds. Advancement would be made on merit as well as seniority. "As a last word," he said, "service is paramount and comes first."

Wouldn't it be fine were there more public officials having the same ideals?

Money Breeds Money

$2,115 Becomes 4½ Trillion.

C. J. Starkey, a mathematically-minded gentleman in Ashtabula, O., has figured that Queen Isabella made a mistake by pledging her jewels to help Columbus discover America. She could have put the money in the bank—or whatever corresponded to it in those days—at 5 per cent interest. If she had, her estate would now be worth four and one-half TRILLION dollars.

"That is 11½ times the value of the United States and all its foreign possessions," says Mr. Starkey. "The interest alone would be 112 billions, and it would be due every six months."

Mr. Starkey takes $2,115 as the value of the Queen's jewels. It seems a modest sum to grow in a few centuries to four and a half trillion, but money breeds money.

Experts, by the way, have disposed of the myth that the Dutch cheated the Indians when they bought Manhattan Island from them for $24 and a barrel of rum. The dollars alone, at interest, would have multiplied until it was far greater than the value of Manhattan and all its skyscrapers.

And, as for the rum, there are not enough figures in mathematics to indicate what it would be worth now.

The Breaks We Get

By Nelson Harding

Our Uncle Sam's been given work
And is not unemployed,
Although the job he has to do
Is one that's not enjoyed.

These are the kind of breaks he gets
In orders from abroad,
He's demonstrating that the sledge
Is mightier than the sword.

One picture is worth a thousand words.

These four pictures of the powerful Mussolini are e to 4,000 words. In fact 50,000 words wouldn't tell yo much about the man as these pictures tell, showing strong face, powerful chin, intense concentration. There deed, is a "Roman."

You see him in the first picture courteously receivi visitor.

Next, emphasizing the value of time by answering a c tion as follows:

"We are sincere in desiring no war . . . It needs peace for her industry and trade . . . Therefore we shall do nothing to upset the internal stability which we have brought. But we mean nobody else to upset it either. And when I see other nations with words of peace on their lips and their hands upon their sword hilts, it would be treachery to Italy not to take steps to safeguard our country.

You notice what he says about other nations "with hands upon their sword hilts." We might be able to use or two men like Mussolini in this country, although, of co as high-spirited Americans, we should not want a dictator.

We like to run ourselves or at least think that we ourselves, even if we make mistakes.

His skull belongs to the brachycephalic type, which m a short head, making up in breadth for its shortness. typical American business head is dolichocephalic, which m a long head.

Some believe that the wide head means energy and long head thought. This particular head of Mussolini's sesses both.

Mussolini says truly:

"It is not true that Fascism began with me a will end with me. There is much more work to done in Italy, and when my work is done then I sh leave in the people a spirit which will endure. So people liken me to Bismarck; they say I have c ated a machine which I, the inventor, can work. have something besides a marvelous machine Italy today. We have a people tried and tempe by the ordeal of anarchy, and we know what th patriotism is worth."

Mussolini rules Italy and lives for Italy, and says t workers looking him in the face:

"Workers—as an immediate witness to work, know that I have no passion but one: to sure work for you, to increase your well-being, to raise you up morally and spiritually!"

THE FIRST ZEPPELIN

By Archibald Henderson

In 1863 the titled young German, Von Zeppelin, who had served as a military observer with the Union armies, made an ascension in a captive balloon near St. Paul. "It was while over St. Paul in the balloon," he wrote 52 years later, "that the idea came to me that successful dirigible flights could be made." For many years he reflected over the idea of an elongated, cigar-shaped balloon which would forge through the air and conquer the winds, to which all other ballons were subject. As early as 1784, the Frenchman, Gen. Meusnier, had made flights in an elongated balloon. Sixty-eight years later Henri Giffard constructed an elongated balloon, 144 feet long, 39 feet in diameter, which achieved a speed of seven miles an hour. But no one had conceived the idea of dividing the balloon into separate, gas-filled compartments; nor were these balloons called "airships."

In 1873, Zeppelin read a little pamphlet by Heinrich von Stephan, entitled World Post and Aeronautics. This gave him the final impulse to draft plans for his dirigible rigid airship. For 15 years he kept his plans a secret from everyone except his wife. No doubt his interest was attracted by the temporary success of F. A. Gower, an American living in France, who afterwards lost his life in making one of his experiments. With a fish-shaped balloon filled with petroleum gas and driven by a bronze steam engine of five horsepower, Gower actually flew across the English Channel in 1883—an epochal chapter in the history of the dirigible. The dirigible balloon built by Col. Renard for the French army the next year was no mean achievement; but it was a semi-rigid affair, and had no compartment system.

In 1887 Zeppelin wrote his first report to the King of Wuerttemberg on the possibilities of airships. He laid down three indispensable conditions: ability to navigate against very strong air currents; to remain in the air without landing for at least 24 hours, and to carry a heavy weight of men, supplies and ammunition. He set forth the important role the dirigible was destined to play in transportation, in warfare and expeditions of exploration.

At the age of 52, presumably because of his independent spirit, he was retired from the army. His career seemed at an end; but in the large sense, it had not begun. He engaged an engineer, however, and began to make the necessary machinery and designs for a rigid dirigible. He talked so constantly of the subject that he came to be called the "crazy count." Finally after three years of intensive work, he produced his first airship, L. Z. 1. It was 419.84 feet long, with a diameter of 38.37, and contained about 400,000 cubic feet of hydrogen gas. The motor generated only 15 horsepower. To exhibit the enormous development in this field, the L. Z. 127, which made the world tour in 1930, was virtually 10 times the size of Zeppelin's first ship.

The initial experiments, while demonstrating the possibilities of this mode of transportation, were regarded as a failure by the public, as narrated by Margaret Goldsmith in her interesting biography of Count Zeppelin. Little directive ability was exhibited by this first airship. Zeppelin made another, raising money from every quarter and almost pauperizing himself; but the experiments with this one ended in disaster. His career seemed truly ended now; his fortune gone, the public's confidence unwon. Success finally crowned his efforts of many years, in the flights of his third airship L. Z. 3, on October 9 and 10, 1906. A speed of 16 yards a second was attained. Zeppelin had won his great fight—at the advanced age of 68. It is one of the most superb scientific achievements of the centuries.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I'm convinced that the best thing about Us Women is our Nuisance Value.

Know what "nuisance value" means? Watch any fractious youngster of 5 and he'll show you. Youngster wants you to do something. You don't want to do it. You're busy or lazy . . . can't be bothered. You ignore him, scold him—maybe swat him. But the youngster keeps on pestering—pestering—pestering—until you HAVE to notice him. Finally you do what he wants, just to get rid of him. That youngster knew the value of Nuisance . . . he got what he wanted by making a Nuisance of himself. And he doesn't care a hoot whether you like his methods or not, as long as he gets what he wants.

What did I mean about Female Nuisance Value? That's what I meant. We do our stuff by making Nuisances of ourselves. AND THE HUMAN RACE HAD BETTER THANK ITS LUCKY STARS THAT WE DO!

Much has been said about the Uplifting and Inspiring Influence of Noble Womanhood. And it's true. We do inspire. We DO uplift. Don't believe it? Take an hour off, tonight, and read some history. See what women have done. Not the beautiful, brainy femmes. Just ordinary women. Little weak, plain, bowlegged, discontented wives and mothers with a lot of children—see what they've done. They've done Plenty!

They drove men out of trees into caves, so their babies could be safe and warm. And then from caves into tents, and from tents into huts, and from isolated huts into walled cities. It was a job. Their men were as weak and as dumb as they, and considerably more scared. But they drove them. They got their way. They made those weak little men face bears and fight cannibals and wage wars and bridge rivers and build roads. They made them bring home mastodon meat and human scalps and diamonds and gold and a better car than Mrs. Jones. In short, they built civilization.

All this, women have done.

But did they do it by being noble? Did they get their way because infatuated and inspired males wanted to give them their way?

No, stranger, they didn't.

THEY GOT IT BECAUSE THEY ACQUIRED NUISANCE VALUE.

If women had just gone around Being Noble, we'd all still be roosting in chestnut trees and eating our in-laws. But women knew a better trick than that. They nagged. They pouted. They wept. They stormed. They had headaches. They ran up bills. They gave papa the well known Dog Eye. And compared him, most unfavorably, with Tilly Stonehatchet's papa. In short, they made him feel like Thirty Cents. Whereupon, in self defense, papa went out and did wonders—AND TOOK ALL THE CREDIT. BUT WHAT DID THE DEAR LITTLE WOMAN CARE, AS LONG AS SHE GOT HER WAY?

Spring Reading

What do I read on a day in spring,
Lovely lines that lilt and sing,
Spun in a poet's lofty mood,
Tales of a world that is wholly good?

Never a book do I open then,
Never a line from a poet's pen
Tempts me with words that are sweet as song
Painting a realm that is free from wrong.

Over the fields and glens I move,
Following Spring where her footsteps rove,
Dancing with daisy and daffodil;
On, to a primrose-bordered hill!

What do I read? Why, the scroll Spring writes,
Glowing lines that her joy indites,
Shining through jonquils and robin's wing,
Rainbow lyrics of madcap Spring!

NEW YORK DAY BY DA

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 31. — Sons and daughters o footlight favorites of another generation are adding a de ful spice to current theatricals. Never before have des ants of the great shone so resplendently. None is baski the reflected glory of parents. They are on their own.

Particularly conspicuous is Dorothy Stone, eldest daughter of the beloved Fred Stone. She became a bright particular star when most fledglings were only mouthing small bits. Two other daughters of the Stones hope to follow their sister to the heights.

Eddie Foy, Jr., has become a leading comedian of musical comedy. He has acquired a loose gaited walk and displays a pair of nimble feet. For a moment he cocks his head, indulges a U shaped smile and talks the dribbly talk of his sire. Always bringing down the house.

Dwight Taylor, son of the capable Laurette, is following in the talented footsteps of his playwriting father, J. Hartley Manners. He has a play in rehearsal. Owen Davis, Jr., has had luck with his first play. He wrote it alone and sold it immediately.

Alice Brady is, of course, a dramatic star and the daughter of the old Roman, W. A. Brady. Leila Hyams has shown rare talent in the films, as have also Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., William Collier's son Buster, and Taylor Holmes' son Phillips.

Pat Rooney, III, expresses the versatility that distinguished his fast stepping father and grandfather, coupled with the remembered charm of his mother, Marion Bent. Miss Bent has retired but the father and son carry on in an offering that warms the old timers.

Ethel Barrymore's daughter and son are on the boards. Otis Skinner's daughter, Cornelia, has become a close rival of Ruth Draper with her impersonations. Lew Fields' son and daughter, Herbert and Dorothy, have sponsored musical hits, and Julius Tannen's son is a stage juvenile.
